More Disaster Planning Needed

By JEFF GREER

Marin's third disaster training drill "went too easily," disaster officials agreed yesterday.

But, they said, it showed that more planning is needed in terms of setting up a better disaster center, handling mass evacuations, getting information to the public and, above all, communications.

Asked "where does everyone come in a real emergency," County Administrator John F. Barrows said, "I'd consider the command post to be in the county communications department" in the ground floor of the Marin County Civic Center. But Barrows and Frank E. Kirby, emergency services coordinator, admitted that the county has no adequate room for all the disaster section chiefs to gather.

More maps, desk space, telephones and other equipment must be provided, officials agreed. Otherwise workers in charge of various disaster sections such as medical services, firefighting, or law enforcement may find themselves unknowingly countermanding each others' directives or overlooking facets of any real emergency.

"There's never going to be a disaster that you can adequately plan for, but there are a lot of good things happening," said Arnold M. Baptiste. As chairman of the board of supervisors, he is titular head of the county's disaster services.

"We're only two years into disaster planning in Marin; we have a lot more to go," added Barrows.

Barrows said that disaster planners up to yesterday had considered problems of getting out public instructions and warnings, and handling the press "somewhat secondary" to

Mail Flow Continues Despite A Blackout

It was a dark night and day in the San Rafael Post Office yesterday — but postal workers lived up to the old motto and got the mail through on time, despite a 14-hour blackout and the Christmas rush.

High winds toppled a utility pole and transformer behind the building on Bellam Boulevard into Highway 17 at 12:40 a.m. yesterday, Postmaster Hugh Cassidy reported today. All electrical power to the building was lost. About 125 workers were on duty, sorting mail for distribution for all the other cities' post offices in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties.

Crews toiled in the rain, loading mail onto trucks, then taking it to Hangar Two at Hamilton Air Force Base, where the sorting continued. Mail to be delivered in San Rafael was sorted in the Post Office garage, which didn't lose its lights, Cassidy said.

Workers strung long extension cords into the main post office so the counters could be lighted. The building has windows only on the street side, "and let me tell you it was dark," Cassidy reported. Emergency lighting systems in the building are good for only an hour or two during normal brief power failures, he explained.

Incoming mail was taken to Corte Madera, Novato and other post offices where it was processed.

Power was restored to the San Rafael building at 2:20 p.m. by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. crews. Cassidy proudly reported that by 5 p.m., all mail operations were back on schedule.

Christmas Time Is Crisis Time

One of the pieces, sung to the tune of the Twelve Days of Christmas, is as follows:

On the twelfth day of Crisis,
my true love gave to me
Twelve cops policing,
Eleven truckers trucking,
Ten stations closing,
Nine stocks a-falling,
Eight short recessions,
Seven pounds of beefsteak,
Six books of food stamps,
Five cords of wood,
Four jerry cans,
Three match books,
Two candle sticks,
And a battery-powered T.V.

Novato Bids For Growth Controls

FRANK FARRARA

Novato officials sounded a call last night for city control of a proposed growth limitation system in the Novato area.

The stand for city power came at a joint meeting of the city council and planning commission on a proposed growth control ordinance.

It was a prelude to a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday with the Marin County Board of Supervisors to discuss a joint powers agreement to establish a growth control board for the Novato area.

The Novato area, under the Novato General Plan, extends from Big Rock Ridge to the Sonoma County line and from Stafford Lake to the Petaluma River.

The Novato Area General Plan calls for limiting growth in the area to 500 dwelling units a year, and last night's meeting was the start of what is expected to be a long process to put that policy into effect.

Marin County has proposed a residential development review board which would evaluate and select developments to be permitted under the quota.

A similar system has been established in Petaluma and is being challenged in court by developers. The Novato planning staff proposed establishing an area planning commission instead.

Councilman George C. Quesada suggested the area planning commission be composed entirely of residents of Novato. "We can lay 90 per cent of our problems at the county's door, going back 25 years or more," he said.

He said three supervisors, Arnold M. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., have indicated they "want

Nixon, Aides Predict No Recession Coming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and his economic advisers do not believe there is going to be a recession as a result of the energy crisis, a White House spokesman said today.

Nixon met for an hour with four top men involved in economic policy and the deputy White House press secretary, Gerald L. Warren, said afterward:

"We do not believe there is going to be a recession."

Warren said Nixon wanted to make it clear "we are going to do everything in our power to see that the impact on the economy caused by the energy shortage is one we can control."

He said contingency plans were being worked on now "to see that unemployment does not rise unduly."

The President has instructed his energy chief, William E. Simon, and others involved in the fuel crisis program to formulate plans to assure increased supply and demand with the provision that "no

WHERE ARE THE BIRDS? IN FLORIDA?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bird's nest was found in an 18-foot Frazier fir Christmas tree after it was erected in the White House Blue Room, aides to First Lady Pat Nixon said today.

They said Mrs. Nixon was greatly elated to hear of the nest. In Sweden, the aides recalled, such a discovery is regarded as a "sign of good luck"

The tree has been decorated — with the nest still in it.

Nixon Gets Daylight Time Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress passed today and sent to President Nixon legislation to put the country on year-round Daylight Saving Time early in January.

The bill, one of several energy-saving measures asked by Nixon, would take effect Jan. 6 if the President signs it before Sunday. If the signing is dalayed until next week, Americans would turn their clocks ahead one hour on Jan. 13.

Year-round DST would remain in effect through the last Sunday in April, 1975, when the old Uniform Time Act would again become effective. Thus, most states would remain on DST through October, 1975.

The bill would allow only these exceptions:

Nixon could exempt a full

Truck Blown Up During Protest On Fuel, Speeds

One Shutdown Leader Nabbed On Gun Charges

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A tractor-trailer was blown up at a truck stop today scattering wreckage for 50 yards, Arkansas State Police reported. It was the most violent incident reported since independent truckers mounted their two-day protest against rising fuel costs and lower speed limits.

No one was injured in the pre-dawn blast, police said.

More than 30 incidents of gunfire early today and late yesterday in at least seven states marked the so-called "park-in." One of the leaders of the demonstration was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed deadly weapon. The incident involving the blown-up rig occurred at Widener, Ark. It was parked at Andy's Truck Stop on an access road between Interstate 40 and U.S. 70 when the explosion occurred.

The blast tore the cab away from the trailer and shattered the glass in a second truck parked nearby, according to truck stop operator Andy Jones Jr.

At least four shooting incidents were reported in Pennsylvania where bullets, apparently fired from passing cars, struck trucks in Cambria, Lancaster, Indiana and Bedford counties.

Other truckers said their air-hoses had been slashed by bands of truckers to prevent them from driving.

In Ohio, a focal point for much of the trucker activity, at least 25 trucks whose drivers declined to comply with the independents' call for a nationwide "park in" were fired on early today and late yesterday.

Another 450 to 500 rigs were corralled into a truckstop on Interstate 70 near Dayton and not allowed to leave.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said the men were being kept at the stop under duress.

Bandit Stages A $4,000 Corte Madera Bank Haul

A shotgun-toting bandit yesterday held up the Sierra National Bank at the Corte Madera Shopping Center, escaping with $3,000 to $4,000, according to town police.

Detective Paras Polo said the heist occurred about 2 p.m. when a man approached a teller and requested change for some money. He then produced a sawed-off double barrel shotgun, Polo said, and a paper bag which he ordered the teller to fill. Most of the loot was in $20 bills, the policeman reported.

The man was described as white 30 to 40 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, fair skinned, with "sandy reddish" hair and a medium build. Witnesses reported he wore a gray rain coat and blue pants, Polo said.

He said the man escaped on foot although the center was sealed off by police, the California Highway Patrol and sheriff's officers.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Peron Rules Out Wage Hikes

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Juan Peron, who used wage hikes to win worker support two decades ago, has told his labor backers to forget about big salary increases for now until Argentina's economy gets back on its feet.

Peron

"I believe this is the time for work with order and tranquility, giving our program enough time to bear fruit," Peron said yesterday in a 50-minute speech to leaders of the General Labor Confederation, the nation's major labor organization.

The shirtsleeved president looked fit during his speech, mixing slang expressions and tossing in a quote from an old tango song to draw roars of approval from labor leaders.

New Violence

BELFAST (UPI) — Extremists attacked two police stations last night in stepped-up assaults against Northern Ireland security forces. Authorities said they expected no let-up in the new wave of violence.

Gunmen riddled a police station at Dungiven, 20 miles southeast of Londonderry, three days after it was bombed. The raiders fired 30 bullets into the rear of the station as police were repairing the damage from the bomb blast. There was no reported police casualties.

A bomb-laden laundry truck exploded outside a rural police station at Newtown Hamilton, 40 miles southwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt, police said, because the truck looked suspicious and the area was evacuated.

Cuts Indo Fuel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to cut off Pentagon fuel shipments to Indochina, but the action yesterday was not likely to cause an immediate problem for U.S. Southeast Asia allies.

After a 60-33 rollcall vote on an amendment to a $73.2 billion defense appropriation bill, sponsor Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., said he left a loophole in the measure that would probably let oil shipments continue.

Cotton explained that his amendment applied only to funds in the appropriations bill itself, not to money given the Pentagon under other legislation.

Budget Endorsed

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Supreme Soviet, or parliament, today endorsed the government's 1974 budget and economic planning proposals, the Tass news agency said.

The favorable vote had been expected. Tass said it was "unanimous."

The legislature, which meets twice a year and has never rejected a government proposal, spent three days "debating" the proposals.

Combat Order

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Theiu today ordered his troops into "combat readiness" for a new Communist offensive in South Vietnam during celebrations of next month's Tet Lunar New Year.

On the battlefront, military sources said South Vietnamese warplanes bombarded a North Vietnamese convoy moving troops and supplies into the embattled Central Highlands.

Flood Victims

TUNIS, Tunisia (UPI) — Forty-five college students drowned yesterday when floodwaters swept away a military truck rescuing them from their school in Gafsa, southwest Tunisia, government officials said today.

They said an unknown number of other persons disappeared in floods caused by 48 hours of rainstorms mostly in the south and center of the country.

Hundreds of houses and mud and wattle huts were swept away and cattle drowned over large areas in the flood.

Judge Quickly Involved In Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judge Albert Engel of Grand Rapids, Mich., became involved in his first criminal case as a U.S. Circuit Court judge this morning.

Engel, a District Court judge who was confirmed for the appellate court post by the Senate yesterday, was in his room at the Dupont Plaza Hotel in Washinton writing thank-you notes to the congressmen who showed him around the city. He glanced out the window at about 5:30 a.m. and saw two men breaking into a clothing store across the street, police said.

He called police, who said they arrived at the downtown location within 20 seconds and arrested the men. Engel went downstairs and identified the suspects, finished his letters and went to sleep.

Kissinger In Cairo To Map Ground Rules For Geneva Talks

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met with three big power ambassadors and resumed his talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt today to map out next week's Middle East peace conference. Israel, already threatening to boycott the talks in its dispute with Syria, was reported balking at terms laid down by Sadat.

Kissinger arrived in Cairo yesterday after talks with Algerian officials on his Middle East tour and held a first round of talks with Sadat today that U.S. officials described as "most constructive."

He met later today with British Ambassador Sir Philip Adams and French Ambassador Brund De Leusse and held a separate session with Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov. He then held another round of talks with Sadat before his scheduled flight to Saudi Arabia on the third leg of his tour.

Britain and France are not directly involved in the conference scheduled Tuesday in Geneva but Sadat has expressed interest in the two countries eventually being at the conference table.

Premier Golda Meir, who said yesterday that Israel may not attend the conference unless Syria releases a list of captured Israeli war prisoners beforehand, called her cabinet into special session in Jerusalem today. Press reports said the session would include discussion of Israeli demands to keep Britain and France out of the negotiations and for a low-key U.N. role.

As the cabinet met, the military command in Tel Aviv reported its second combat death in two days in a continuing series of exchanges of fire on the Egyptian front.

Mrs. Meir, in her scheduled meeting Sunday with Kissinger, "will demand assurances that the conference be conducted under the sponsorship of the two superpowers and not give the United Nations any practical influence," the newspaper Ma'ariv said.

"Israel will also oppose the addition of France and Britain in the framework of the big-power sponsorship," it said.

Bank Of America Buys City Block

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bank of America has purchased an entire city block in the downtown section for $1.5 million.

The bank said yesterday it would use the area for private parking for its employes at a Data Processing Center.

The sale was handled by the Victor L. Marcus Co., a realty firm which represented the seller, National Inns of Atlantic City, N.J., and the bank.

Drop In Fuel Use Draws Praise From Energy Czar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Newly released figures indicate Americans are complying with administration appeals to cut their use of energy.

Gasoline consumption dropped 15 per cent in the three weeks ending Nov. 30, and the combined consumption of gasoline, heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel was down 29 per cent, administration officials reported yesterday.

That involved a 1.1 million barrel a day decline in the use of crude oil, out of which gasoline and other consumer petroleum products are made.

"Americans are responding. They must be thanked for their efforts," the administration's energy chief, William E. Simon, said.

But the picture was not all rosy. Eastern Airlines announced yesterday that another 3,760 employes, more than 10 per cent of its work force, will be laid off early in 1974 because fuel shortages have cut the number of flights. The layoffs will include 440 pilots.

Three other Airlines—Piedmont, Allegheny and United—announced cuts of some flights to save fuel.

The Airline Pilots Association wired President Nixon that pilots feel their industry has been made to bear "an unreasonable portion of the burden of the energy crisis." The union scheduled a Dec. 19 executive council strategy meeting but made no strike threat.

In other developments:

President Nixon summoned his chief economic policy advisers to a White House meeting to discuss the impact of the energy crisis on the U.S. economy.

Prime Minister Edward Heath put Britain on a 2½ day industrial work week Dec. 17 through Dec. 31 and a three day week in January to cope with an even more acute fuel crisis. He said Britons face their "hardest Christmas" since World War II.

The Senate voted 60-33 to halt new funds for U.S. military fuel shipments to South Vietnam and Cambodia. But the vote was considered symbolic, since the Pentagon has $40 billion in old appropriated funds it could use for this purpose, and these were not affected by the vote.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent moved to curb rising general petroleum exports by requiring exporters to obtain licenses.

A group of the nation's governors told Nixon yesterday that dual highway speed limits — one for cars and a higher one for trucks—won't work.

White House spokesmen said that when President Nixon goes to Florida for a post-Christmas vacation he will take a train rather than fly, to set an example of energy-saving. It was unclear how much fuel that would save.

Casa Madrona Is Still In Business

Old Hotel In Sausalito Is Serving Meals, Too

By PAUL LIBERATORE

"Tell the people the place is still open," said a disheartened Robert Deschamps, operator for 15 years of the Casa Madrona Hotel in Sausalito.

"Someday we may be out of business," added his son, Jean, "But for now we are still in."

The Deschamps report that patronage at the hotel, which also houses Le Vivoir restaurant, plummeted 65 per cent last weekend, after the first newspaper story that the city is considering condemning the aged building, a portion of which has been undermined by earthslides.

But the Deschamps insist that the hotel "has not moved one inch in the past 15 years" and that "people can come and eat and stay here without fear."

Tuesday, the city council created a committee to seek an alternative to condemnation of the hotel, one of the oldest buildings in Sausalito.

Since 1958, Deschamps has poured $80,000 and the sweat of his own labor into a building he does not own. He and his family transformed a sleazy bar and flop house into a spotless French country-style hotel and restaurant.

Owner of the hotel was Floyd D. Allensby, a friend of the Deschamps who assured them they could operate the Casa Madrona and Le Vivoir for life.

But Allensby died in May, a few months after mudslides damaged two porch areas during last winter's torrential rains.

Executor of Allensby's estate is Crocker National Bank, which has refused to repair the damage or to install drains to carry off excess water.

Deschamps' attorney, John Colteaux, has accused the bank of caring only about turning a better profit with the property. "At first they told the family they had 30 days to get out," he said. "I told them to go to hell."

Rumor is that the bank plans to build residential units on the hotel site and commercial businesses on a portion of the lot that fronts Bridgeway in Sausalito's busy downtown.

No bank representative attended Tuesday's council meeting and the estate's attorney has not been available for comment.

Public Works Director Norman Wohlschlaeger said that if no alternative to condemnation is found by Jan. 15, he will conduct his own examination of the building to determine if it is safe.

So far, only consultants hired by the bank have studied soil and structural conditions, and it is on that bank financed study that condemnation has been based.

"Ninety per cent of the time, you can walk in and see if the building is falling down," said Wohlschlaeger when asked what would be the extent of his investigation.

But the Casa Madrona is hardly falling down. Le Vivoir and the hotel rooms upstairs are gleaming and polished, with an eye toward the most meticulous detail.

"Look at that mirror," said Jean Deschamps, pointing to a mirror that covers an entire wall. "It is not cracked, this building has not moved. Whatever cracks are in the foundation have been there 15 years."

Two porches recently built by Robert Deschamps, admittedly have been undermined by the slide but they never have been used and the remainder of the building sits on solid footing, the family says.

The 60-year-old Deschamps is a dapper, white-haired man who speaks softly in his spare English and disdains the controversy that has intruded on his quiet life. He cares little about the legal intricacies and regrets that he does not have the money himself to make the repairs so that he could at least run his business until the end of his lease, which has another 18 months to run.

His wife, Mary, still does the cooking for Le Vivoir and her culinary skills and the restaurant's French charm have been the subject of numerous articles, from Los Angeles to London.

The place was featured in a spread in Playboy magazine and Herb Caen, originally chauvinistic about San Francisco, admitted in print that the most authentic French restaurant in San Francisco is in Sausalito — Le Vivoir.

Deschamps, a native of France who immigrated to Sausalito from Canada, expressed hope that the city would not lose the elderly building, even if he must give up his business. He said the hotel was built in the 1860s but one book on local history, "Here Today," places its construction in 1889. The city landmarks committee is considering buying the building.

The restaurant and hotel has gleaming wood, ornate antiques and iron work, fresh cut flowers, fireplaces, candlelight and a stunning view of city lights and the bay — but few guests these days.

RESTAURATEUR — Robert Deschamps, patriarch of a restaurant family that took a sleazy old hotel and dining room and converted it to a model of Victorian splendor and French haute cuisine, stands proudly by the fireplace of his establishment. Deschamps faces the end of 15 years of a labor of love if the City of Sausalito decides to condemn the landmark establishment because his landlord won't make repairs the city thinks necessary.

Trial Set For Four Men Arrested In Drug Raid

SAN FRANCISCO — Trial has been set Feb. 25 in federal district court for four men, including three arrested in September at a Mill Valley home in a raid which police said netted drugs valued at $35,000.

Dennis Gawland Scales, 24, of 362 Pine Hill Road, Tamalpais Valley, is charged with distributing cocaine and possessing it with intent to distribute.

Three other defendants are charged with distriubtion of cocaine. They are: Peter J. Blosvern, 30, and John D. Cook, 32, both of San Francisco, and Gary L. McLaughlin, 26, of Spokane, Wash. Cook was arrested at his home.

Blosvern, McLaughlin and Cook are free on $10,000 bail, court officials said, and Scales is free on $15,000.

At the time of the arrests, federal Drug Enforcement Task Force officials said they climaxed a month-long investigation in which undercover agents bought cocaine from the defendants. Agents reported they found 29 kilograms of marijuana, a pound of cocaine, 200 tablets of LSD, several smaller amounts of marijuana, a .22 caliber airgun and $1,200 in cash in the Mill Valley residence.

Anderson Can't Recall If Film Resulted In Parental Protests

Tamalpais High School teacher Kenneth A. Anderson took the stand yesterday to tell about a war film he once showed his class.

After Anderson said he couldn't recall if the film's showing has resulted in parent protests, attorney William O. Weissich rested the Tamalpais High School District's case.

The district is seeking to fire Anderson on charges of incompetence, refusal to follow policies and immoral conduct.

Carl B. Shapiro, the 32-year-old teacher's attorney, said the defense case, which was to open today, will take about two weeks.

Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire denied Shapiro's motions to dismiss 11 allegations of incompetence and three of immoral conduct.

In five minutes on the stand, Anderson testified he didn't remember when he showed to his English classes a film allegedly depicting Vietnam War atrocities.

He also said he didn't recall if he obtained permission from school administrators to show the movie or if parents objected to it.

Because he saw many war films between 1965 and 1972, Anderson said he couldn't remember the details of the movie to which Weissich referred.

In other testimony, two campus guards said they frequently found students who belonged in Anderson's class wandering about campus.

And Richard Mason, the chairman of the English department, testified he would have given a D to a notebook kept by one of Anderson's students, Bruce P. Lohmann. The notebook earlier had been described by another teacher as possibly meriting the A grade Anderson gave it.

Mason said Anderson was "not conforming to school grading policy" when he gave A's to every student but two in the 1970-71 school year.

After the first day of trial, no other evidence than Lohmann's statement has been presented linking Anderson to a wave of bombings and arson.

GUN CHARGE — John Sassi, one of the leaders of the independent truck drivers' protest against lower speeds and higher fuel prices, was arrested near Glasgow, Del., this morning on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon when a gun was found in his station wagon.

TRUCKS

morning, John Sassi, 29, and three companions were taken into custody after a search of their station wagon turned up a handgun, state police said.

Sassi, an independent driver who helped organize the "park in," testified before a Senate committee hearing on the truckers' plight earlier this week. Sassi accused the Senate of not acting quickly enough to redress truckers' grievances.

The work stoppage spread to the Missouri side of the St. Louis area today as "a few dozen" trucks blocked exits at two suburban Fenton truck stops. A Missouri Highway Patrol spokesman said the blockage was "very orderly" and did not affect highway traffic near the truck ports.

In Baird, Del., last night, a trucker had his windshield shot out. Similar incidents were reported on two other Delaware highways as the angry independents attempted to get other truckers to join their protest shutdown.

There were also reports of violence in Maryland where at a Whitemarsh truck stop late Thursday two trucks were fired on while waiting to be fueled.

One blast hit a truck radiator while shotgun pellets shattered the windshields of other rigs. No injuries were reported.

A new outbreak of gunfire and bricks aimed at operating trucks erupted in Ohio early today. The tires on some trucks were slashed.

The success of the shutdown, suggested by editors of Overdrive magazine as a two-day protest of rising diesel prices and lower speed limits, was only partial. Across the nation state police and truck stop operators reported trucks were still rolling on expressways, although truck traffic was lighter than normal, and in some spots cut in half.

Ohio was hardest hit by the violence, but gunfire or rock and bottle barrages also harassed truck drivers who tried to drive in Colorado and Pennsylvania. Three striking truck drivers were arrested in Pennsylvania yesterday and accused of throwing rocks at a truck.

Ohio police said at least 25 operating trucks were hit by bullets last night and early this morning. Nine trucks were struck by gunfire in Ohio and Pennsylvania earlier yesterday. No drivers have been hit.

Other drivers who were ignoring the shutdown reported numerous incidents of brick-throwing, tire slashing and being bottled up in truck stops. Near the Ohio-Pennsylvania border, drivers stood in the middle of major truck routes and flagged down oncoming truckers, redirecting them into nearby truck stop parking lots.

"They're catching the trucks as they come up routes 11, 30, 14 and 7," said the state highway patrol in Columbiana County, Ohio. "More than 200 trucks are tied up (in parking lots) at East Liverpool. But all the roads are clear.

A Brighton, Colo., truck driver was struck in the hand by a bullet that pierced the cab of his truck as he was driving it on Interstate 70 three miles east of Watkins, Colo., yesterday. He was not seriously injured.

In parts of Michigan, Montana and Nevada drivers stopped their rigs on expressways yesterday. State troopers quickly hauled them out of the way.

to get out of urban planning in the eastern coridor and we should nail them to the wall Monday, and we constitute our planning commission as the area planning commission."

"We can make a showplace of North Marin," Quesada said. The growth in the next 10 to 20 years will be in Novato and San Rafael, he said. "Give us the representatives and let us do it."

The council voted 4-to-1 that the 500-a-year limit be applied to the entire Novato planning area not just the city. Mayor Fred F. Ruegg, who wanted to set a limit only for the city, dissented.

Ruegg said he believes the county "envisioned sending all the low income housing they can to this area," and he expressed concern about "getting mixed up with the county."

Planning technician David Wade explained that under the county proposal, Novato would have the majority of the members on the proposed review board.

He explained that under the county plan the review board would rate projects after all other planning procedures were completed and the only appeal would be to the courts.

Under the city planning staff proposal, review would be integrated during the planning process, and appeals could be made to the council or supervisors, whichever had jurisdiction.

Senior planner Mark Westfall said the growth in the city has averaged a little less than 400 dwelling units a year and in the planning area 540 units a year, during the period from 1960-72.

At an earlier meeting, the planning commission passed a resolution establishing open space regulations, including a provision for agricultural preserves, as small as 10 acres.

The council adjourned until 8:20 a.m. tomorrow to interview applicants for two open seats on the planning commission.

Coast Chamber Seats Officers

The Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce installed new officers last night at its annual dinner meeting in the Rancho Nicasio.

Herbert H. Angress of Marshall was seated as president, succeeding Earl L. Lupton. Others installed were Michael Gahagan, vice president; Emma K. Benevenga, secretary, and Jeanette Tanner, treasurer.

Tomales High School students Toni Weyman and Krispin Sanford, who went to France as exchange students, showed slides of their trip.

Cuddles Just Too Expensive

Because the local government authority wants the zoo to return Cuddles' pool to its original depth, she has been offered for sale at $82,500, and there have been no bidders.

The local authority said the zoo infringed a building regulation, and the zoo said it would cost too much to return the pool to its original size.

"We shall be very sorry to see her go. But it will cost far too much money to build a new pool for Cuddles," said a zoo spokesman.

Unless a deal goes through soon, the zoo may be forced to put the three-ton whale into a small storage pool, he said.

Tiburon Hires Firm For Project

The Tiburon City Council has decided to hire Stone and Youngberg of San Francisco as a financial consulting firm to help the city with its proposed downtown redevelopment project.

City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert said that the council asked him at a closed session Wednesday to draw up a contract with the firm which was interviewed at a Monday council meeting.

At that time Terence J. McCarty of the firm said that the fee for Stone and Youngberg's services would be $250 per day.

TIME

state from DST if a governor issued a proclamation saying an exemption was needed to conserve fuel or avoid hardship. Nixon also could ignore the proclamation, however. The request must come from the governor before daylight time goes into effect.

A state split by a time zone could by law exempt the portion of the state in one of the time zones from the DST law, resulting in uniform time throughout the state.

Indiana, which exempts part of its territory from DST under present law, would be permitted to continue that exemption automatically.

Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands automatically are exempted.

Otherwise, no exceptions would be permitted.

By providing one extra hour daylight in the evening, when home energy demands are greatest, the theory is that less heating will be needed and lights and electrical appliances will be used one hour less than normal.

Opponents contended little energy would be saved and that extreme hardship would be caused in some areas, including children having to wait in the dark for school buses.

On the northwestern edge of time zones, the sun would not rise until after 9 a.m.

Because of late winter sunrises, the bill directed the Federal Communications Commission to permit many daylight-only radio stations to go on the air earlier in the evening.

If the sunrise-to-sunset stations were required to wait until local sunrise in some areas, their main morning audience already would be at work or at school.

Tanker Is Ordered To Give Guam Aid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A California-bound oil tanker has been ordered to change course for Guam to alleviate a fuel shortage on the island. The move yesterday is believed to be the first allocation order issued by Federal Energy Office director William Simon.

The order told Union Oil Co. to divert a tanker with a half million barrels of oil to Guam's only refinery at Apra by Dec. 31.

setting up medical and other emergency teams.

"We're getting to the point where we can work on other phases," Barrows explained. "There's no doubt our communications need a lot more effort, though we've already spent a lot of money on it. The evacuation plans need attention," he added.

Sixty disaster workers and observers worked throughout the morning reacting to an imaginary earthquake of 6.5 magnitude that sundered Highway 101 in several places, broke major dams in central and northern Marin, ruptured gas, water and sewer lines and collapsed a number of buildings.

In the afternoon, County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis and a smaller group of disaster workers manned the temporary command post while schools went through earthquake drills and reported imaginary crises, via volunteer amateur radio networks.

It was the first time that the schools' earthquake drills — required twice a year under state law — had been coordinated with countywide training for the other emergency services. Stress yesterday was on utilizing fire equipment, private and public utility manpower, heavy rescue equipment and evacuation procedures. Less emphasis was put on emergency medical procedures than in the two earlier countywide drills.

segment of the economy profit while others are sacrificing," Warren said.

"Work is under way to find the most equitable method of sharing this burden."

Nixon was studying reports of airline and auto industry layoffs, gas station closings, and disruption in industries which are affected by the nationwide energy shortage.

The economic quadriad that serves as Nixon's chief advisory team includes Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Chairman Herbert L. Stein of the presidential Council of Economic Advisers, Budget Director Roy L. Ash and Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve.

There have been some forecasts —chiefly by critics of administration policies —that unemployment might reach 8 per cent next year because of layoffs resulting from industrial cutbacks due to fuel shortages.

A housing industry leader predicted unemployment would be widespread, accompanied by business failures and housing shortages, because of administration policies.

Yesterday, Nixon met for nearly an hour with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrinin, but the White House declined to give any details other than to say they reviewed U.S.-Soviet relations.

GREAT STORE

MUSIC FROM THE CRISIS

Christmas carolers add a festive air to shopping at the Great Store in San Rafael. The singers (left to right) Wana Dowell, Rochelle Labert and Michelle Truffaut will be performing traditional and folk carols daily from now to Christmas Eve. Eugene Schankel, co-owner of the store, said he hired the carolers as a kind of replacement for the lighted Christmas decorations which the store has used in the past. "We've cut out the lights because of the energy crisis," he said.

Ross Council Won't Douse Smoking Lamp

Proving that where there's smoke there's fire, a Ross computer analyst chided his town councilmen last night for refusing to ban smoking at council meetings.

"You smokers must realize you're addicted to a narcotic," said Sandy G. McKean.

The council had just killed a motion by councilman Roy Farrington Jones to douse the smoking lamp in the tiny council chambers.

As Mayor Frederick S. Allen puffed a cigarette and councilman Alan P. Maginis sucked on a pipe, Jones said:

"Ever since I stopped smoking I get a headache halfway through these meetings. When I get home my clothes reek of smoke."

Jones's wife, Nancy, a reformed two-pack-a-day smoker who also was known to light up an occasional cigar, suggested a compromise: "Call a 10-minute recess and let the addicts go outside and light up."

Urging councilmen to strike a blow for cleaner air and healthier lungs, McKean pleaded: "Now that we know smoking is unhealthy, it's time to do something about it."

But the matter was extinguished when Jones's motion to declare the council chambers off-limits to smoking drew no second.

The Ross Town Council Also:

FEES — Was informed the town already has spent more than $6,800 in legal fees to defend itself against a suit brought by Peter S. Valentine challenging city approval of a flood control project for Corte Madera Creek.

LOTS — Approved readjustments of lot lines for three parcels on Laurel Grove Avenue to remove .7 acres from one lot and apply it to two others. The split was asked by Marcy C. Skewes-Cox and Joan S. Malone.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance banning parking on portions of Olive and Bolinas avenues near Glenwood Avenue at the San Anselmo line.

RENT — Voted to charge $150 per month to the Ross Valley Sanitary District for use of a sliver of land the town owns between the post office and Corte Madera Creek. The district is using the land to store equipment being used in a sewer project. The council also ordered the district to remove a pile of dirt blocking the post office parking lot.

TREES — Introduced an ordinance permitting the superintendent of public works, rather than the town council, to approve requests to trim or remove trees on private property.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Jan. 10 at town hall.

Jury Panel Calls For PG&E Line Leasing, Undergrounding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A grand jury yesterday revived a 50-year-old national park dam controversy and recommended that the city take over electric power distribution from the giant Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

The city attorney's office promptly pooh-poohed the 7,000 word report.

Acquisition by means of revenue bonds through a non-profit corporation of PG&E facilities.

Undergrounding of all power lines within 10 years.

"It looks to me as if they've overlooked a lot of technicalities and legalities," said William Bourne, the city attorney's general counsel for public utilities for the past 11 years.

The report hinges on a controversy over public power that began half a century ago when the Hetch Hetchy Valley was damned in Yosemite National Park to provide San Francisco with power and water.

The dam on the Tuolumne River was a personal defeat for conservationist John Muir, who founded the Sierra Club. The environmentalist-oriented club still insists that the O'Shaughnessy Dam should be torn down and the Little Yosemite Valley be returned to its natural state.

Congressional legislation in 1913 authorized the dam. But it specified that the city couldn't sell its Hetch Hetchy electricity to private utility companies for resale, said the grand jury report. In 1940 the U.S. Supreme Court issued an injunction that told the city to quit disposing of electric power through PG&E.

In 1930 a second phase of the Hetch Hetchy plan was completed with the purchase of privately owned Spring Valley Water Co.

The grand jury questioned the low-cost sale of Hetch Hetchy power to the Modesto and Turlock Irrigation Districts — original partners with San Francisco in the Tuolumne River water and power development.

Mrs. Jean P. Sullivan, chairman of the jury's Public Utilities Committee, said she reviewed the old court decisions and, "My eyes popped out. The law is clear," she said. "The city is supposed to have a public power system. Where is it?"

The grand jury report called for creation of a Hetch Hetchy Power Distribution Corp., which would become a non-profit, non-stock corporation to issue revenue bonds without the ability to levy taxes. It would acquire PG&E properties, including power lines, to be leased to the city.

Bourne said the report overlooked a number of technical details. San Francisco's arrangements for disposal of Hetch Hetchy power are reviewed every three months by the U.S. Interior Department and approved, he said.

END OF CHASE — Larkspur police yesterday prepared to haul away the car of Gerald C. Crane, 22-year old son of television personality Les Crane, who led officers on a 75 miles-per-hour chase through the Bon Air hills. Crane was finally run to earth at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road.

Arrest Finally Ends Wild Chase

A young Mill Valley man led Larkspur police yesterday afternoon on a chase through the twisting streets of the Bon Air hills — reportedly at speeds up to 75 miles per hour — after a policeman attempted to arrest him on outstanding traffic warrants.

Police finally caught up with Gerald Clair Crane, 22, of 16 Lower Alcatraz Place, Mill Valley, at the intersection of Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road.

A Larkspur police spokesman said the chase began at the Marvin Gardens Deli-Restaurant on Magnolia Avenue, where an off-duty officer spotted Crane and his mother, Eve Crane of Seattle. The policeman summoned a uniformed officer to arrest the pair for outstanding traffic warrants. Mrs. Crane had been cited for $290 in violations and her son owed $516, police reported. Both were said to be former Corte Madera residents.

When the uniformed officer arrived, the son fled in his white 1964 Plymouth Fury, according to police. The chase began, joined by several other off-duty policemen. "The uniformed officer was the only unit on the road and so he had no other help," a spokesman said.

Crane was jailed on charges of resisting arrest, reckless driving and failing to yield to red light and siren, as well as not appearing on the original traffic violations. Mrs. Crane posted bond and was released. Her son was held in lieu of $896 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

California Highway Patrolmen arrested Crane in September of 1969 after chasing him along U.S. 101 at 130 m.p.h. speeds. On that occasion he told police he wanted to see how fast his car would go.

In 1971 the youth was sentenced to four months in the Marin County Jail for burglarizing a Greenbrae quarry and possessing 100 pounds of stolen dynamite.

His father is Les Crane, a Bay Area television personality whose program appeared on KGO-TV's Channel 7 several years ago.

Struck Markets Secure Court Order On Pickets

Supermarkets being picketed in the labor dispute between butchers and employers obtained a court order yesterday limiting the number and activities of pickets around store entrances and driveways.

A Sacramento Superior Court judge ruled that no more than one picket per driveway will be allowed. He also prohibited mass picketing, customer harassment, large-scale demonstrations and blocking driveways.

The order, directed against six butcher locals, is enforcable in all Northern California counties except Alameda.

Marin supermarket chains affected by the ruling include Safeway, Lucky, Albertson's and Alpha Beta, where the butchers strike-lockout continues in full force.

The only unresolved issue in the 11-day-old Bay Area labor fight is whether a cost-of-living pay increase formula will be unlimited or have certain maximums each year.

Meanwhile, many Marin markets opened their meat departments yesterday after signing interim agreements with the butchers. Local chains reaching settlements with the union were Cala Foods, Big G and United Markets.

Caning Is Kept

LONDON (AP) — The House of Lords rejected a bill that would have banned caning in British schools. The Lords reasoned that the use of caning was steadily declining, but some educators wanted it retained on the books to serve as a disciplinary threat.

Bugliosi Seeking Younger's Post

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Los Angeles deputy district attorney Vincent Bugliosi announced today that he is a candidate for the Democratic party's nomination for state attorney general.

The 39-year-old Bugliosi, who prosecuted the Manson family in the Tate-La Bianca murder trial, unsuccessfully ran for district attorney of Los Angeles earlier this year.

Knifing Of Grandmother Laid To Ex-Marin Man

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 27-year-old former Marin resident has been jailed here after being indicted for the murder of his 80-year-old widow grandmother in her Russian Hill mansion.

Robert M. Pasqualetti was accused of fatally stabbing Stella Pasqualetti repeatedly in the chest with a 12-inch knife. Police found the weapon — along with a pair of bloodied workman's gloves — in a garbage can in the 15-room mansion.

Mrs. Pasqualetti's body was found Nov. 14 by her son, Dr. Roy Pasqualetti of Kentfield, the accused man's father.

Attorney Alan Brotsky, retained by Pasqualetti's father, said he would ask the San Francisco Superior Court today to order mental examinations for the accused man. Brotsky said his client "thinks that he is being burned and that he is getting radio messages." He said Pasqualetti had left home when he graduated from high school at 18, and has had little contact with his family since.

Police said Pasqualetti had worked as a warehouseman in October in Oakland, where he bought the gloves left at the murder scene. His only police record was a minor narcotics charge in 1971, later dismissed. He also was briefly treated in a psychiatric ward in 1971.

Roth Asserts He Can Bring 'Independence'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — William Matson Roth, of Ross, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year, asserts that he can bring independence to the governor's office.

To back up his claim, he told 500 persons at a fund-raising lunch yesterday that "I have not taken—I will not take—one penny from an individual or a special interest contributor who has a financial stake in the decisions of state government."

Roth, whose grandfather founded the Matson Steamship Co., commented that "I know and like many of my opponents —Republican and Democratic— and to my knowledge, none of them is a rascal."

"But I am telling you that none of them would have greater independence than I."

Roth was not quite so kind to Gov. Ronald Reagan, a fellow regent of the University of California.

He said that Reagan's policies on the board had been one of the key reasons he entered the race.

"You can't sit across the desk from him—as I have at the Regents for the past seven years—and not entertain the thought you would like to replace him."

Roth pledged that as governor he would appoint "public advocates, not special interest representatives to the state's regulatory agencies.

"I would, to put it more succinctly, throw the foxes out of the henhouse."

Skylab 3 Team Beats One Mark

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts passed the first space station pilots' record for time in space today and said they felt like they were just starting their 84-day flight.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue passed the one-third mark of their mission—28 days, 23 minutes—at 9:23 a.m. EST on their 415th revolution of the earth. At 9:51 a.m. they surpassed the Skylab 1 crew's time of 28 days, 49 minutes, 49 seconds.

The second crew currently holds the world spaceflight endurance record of 59 days and 11 hours.

Ground communicator Robert Crippen counted down from 10 to the precise second that the pilots passed the time of Charles (Pete) Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

"You guys have now been in orbit as long as the Skylab 1 crew," Crippen told them. "Congratulations."

"It's hard to believe Pete and his guys were through after this long," Carr replied. "We feel like we're just getting started."

Skylab program director William C. Schneider said yesterday there was nothing presently to prevent the three astronauts from finishing their three-month mission.

Schneider said the astronauts have done excellent research work and the station, launched May 14, was in good shape.

"All in all for a vehicle that's been in orbit for seven months, it's behaving very well and we're very pleased with the mission as it's progressing thus far," he said.

Schneider said the astronauts were "go for 60 days, open ended" to the possible three months. He said there is no problem anyone knows of that could end the mission prematurely. After the astronauts spend 59 days in space, ground physicians will approve weekly extensions of their flight.

"This crew certainly doesn't have anything to be ashamed of," he said. "We're not particularly happy that the filters were left out, but we don't think it's an earth shattering thing."

For the first time in their 28-day trip, the astronauts saw Comet Kohoutek without the aid of their optical instruments. Pogue, obviously excited as he watched the comet streak toward its loop around the sun, said it had grown significantly brighter during the past 24 hours.

While he sipped his one-beer-a-day ration at the Miami Veterans Hospital yesterday, Spanish-American war veteran Alfred Chapman looked forward to his 100th birthday tomorrow. Chapman remembers fighting in Cuba and president-to-be Teddy Roosevelt: "Common-looking man, he was. Common as you and me," Chapman said.

JFK Affair With Sex Symbol Told

NEW YORK (UPI) — Syndicated gossip columnist Earl Wilson reported yesterday that Marilyn Monroe had a romance with President John F. Kennedy. Just before she died of an overdose of sleeping pills in 1962, Wilson reported, she said, "Say goodbye to the President."

Wilson said he withheld the story for years but finally decided "to set the record straight" because of a book on Miss Monroe which dwelled on her friendship with Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, written by Norman Mailer.

Miss Monroe's relationship with President Kennedy is detailed in Wilson's own book on the life of the late actress, to be published early next year. He said he undertook a three-year investigation to establish a "dalliance" between the blonde sex goddess and the president.

Wilson said the affair went on for almost a year before Miss Monroe's death. He said she was sometimes a discreet guest at little dinners arranged by President Kennedy, usually at the Hotel Carlyle in New York.

54 Persons Missing From Sunken Vessel

SUVA, Fiji Islands (UPI) — Officials reported yesterday that 54 persons were missing in the sinking of a cargo ship by a powerful cyclone packing 100 mile an hour winds.

There were 41 known survivors among the 95 passengers on the inter-island vessel Uluilakeba which sank Monday off the southern tip of Fiji enroute from Vatoa Island to Ogea Island.

Among the missing was Dr. Melvin Hill, chairman of the music department at Pacific Union College near Napa, Calif., and his wife, Jean. Mrs. Hill is an assistant professor in the school's art department.

The Hills were headed for Australia for the Christmas holidays, school officials reported.

One survivor, Metui Lasarusa, 43, said the ship "went down so quickly in those big seas many people were trapped in their cabins."

Lasarusa, the ship's boatswain who was rescued from the seas Tuesday, said a shark encircled him while he was swimming alone.

"I was using a sack of unhusked coconuts as a floater," he said. "I had drifted with a very strong current since the ship sank about 1330 hours on Monday. On Tuesday afternoon shortly before I was picked up I saw a shark's fin slice through the water toward me.

"I am a God fearing man and I prayed. The shark seemed to veer away. It circled me once or twice and disappeared. I thanked God and thought of my wife and children who were awaiting my return in Suva."

Lasarusa said he ran up on deck when the ship pitched over to one side. When the ship heeled over a second time he saw passengers jumping into the heavy sea, he said.

"It was so sudden. The wind was something like 100 miles an hour and the seas seemed more than 40 or 50 feet high."

Electricity Use Shows Decrease

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. customers used 6 per cent less electricity during the first week of December than in the comparable week last year, according to the utility.

The reduction was attributed partly to warmer temperatures but also indicated an effort by users to conserve energy, Joseph Y. De Young, vice-president of commercial operations, said yesterday.

"This report shows that our customers are heeding pleas to conserve energy," De Young said. However, he added the 10 per cent reduction requested by the California Public Utilities Commission had not yet been achieved.

Ban On Carols

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — The Ithaca school board has banned Christmas carols that refer to the birth of Jesus, ruling that they make it uncomfortable for children who are not Christians.

Senate Vote On Saxbe's Nomination Set Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the expectation of new assurances from President Nixon on the independence of Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, the Senate Judiciary Committee has approved Sen. William B. Saxbe to be attorney general.

The committee voted 15-1 to approve Saxbe after Republican Leader Hugh Scott agreed to seek "clarification" from the White House on the agreement under which Jaworski's independence and jurisdiction is protected.

Earlier yesterday, committee liberals had demanded that Nixon submit written assurances to the committee before Saxbe was approved.

Scott called their demand "a tempest in a teapot" but said he would try to obtain the assurances before the expected Senate vote to confirm Saxbe on Monday.

"After the swearing-in," Saxbe said, "I'll tell you how I feel."

The only vote against the Ohio Republican came from Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., who felt that a constitutional problem over Saxbe's pay had not been cleared up.

Sens Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Philip Hart, D-Mich., had threatened to delay Saxbe's approval until the written assurances were given, but Hart said later he was satisfied with Scott's offer to seek further clarification.

At issue was language added last month by Acting Attorney General Robert Bork to the special prosecutor's charter. It requires that Nixon obtain the consensus approval of eight congressional leaders before either dismissing Jaworski or limiting his investigation.

Hart and Kennedy called the provision an "erosion" of Jaworski's authority.

FCC Commissioner Lee Submits His Resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Communications Commissioner H. Rex Lee said today he has submitted his resignation to the President, effective Dec. 31, 17 months before his term was to end.

Lee, 63, is the second Democratic commissioner to resign within 10 days. Commissioner Nicholas Johnson's recently quit after serving six months past expiration of his seven-year term.

"I have been in government for 38 years and I decided I wanted to do something else," Lee said. "I decided now is a good time to retire."

The Rigby, Idaho, native said he had no immediate plans, but that he would stay in Washington and "remain active." He said he is in "excellent" health and did not resign early because of any policy disputes.

Lee, an economist, began his government service with the U.S. Resettlement Administration in Moscow, Ida., in 1936, and came to Washington in 1942 with the War Relocation Authority.

He subsequently served as deputy commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, governor of American Samoa under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and was named by Johnson to the FCC in 1968, after a stint as assistant administrator of the Agency for International Development.

Lee said he had been waiting for the White House to announce his resignation, and said it would be accepted soon.

A FIND FOR MUSEUM

Scientists from the San Diego Natural History Museum exhume remains from a 30-foot California gray whale. The reassembled skeleton will be used in a museum exhibit. The whale was found buried this week at Silver Strand beach, apparently a victim years ago in a collision with a ship in San Diego Bay. (UPI Telephoto)

Report On Apartments Is Delayed

An environmental impact report on a controversial proposal for 80 apartment units off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Fairfax last night failed to gain prompt action by the Fairfax Design and Environmental Review Board.

The board, after a lengthy and often rambling public hearing, said more environmental impact information is needed and continued review of the document to 8 p.m. Jan. 10 in the Fairfax Women's Club.

The report by Lampman and Associates of Walnut Creek outlines the moderate-income project proposed by owners Eleanor McArdle Jean and McKeon Construction Co. for 20 one-bedroom apartments and 60 two-bedroom apartments in 15 two-story structures on the 3.44-acre Buon Gusto restaurant site between Olema Road and Broadway Avenue.

The project would require paved surfaces over 88 per cent of the site, require 176 parking spaces and house 200 people, according to the report.

McKeon attorney Albert Bianchi told the board that the site is zoned for up to 100 apartment units, and said only 80 units are proposed in order to minimize impact of development.

Bianchi also rapped "pre-hearing publicity" on the proposal, saying statements made last week by Fairfax Town Councilman Frank J. Egger prejudged the project and "tend to make almost a charade out of this public hearing."

Egger, running for reelection to the council, said he opposed development of the site on the "basis of density alone".

Bianchi urged the board to keep the project out of the "political football season."

The proposal was roundly criticized by several neighbors and Fairfax residents, among a crowd of about 40 who attended the hearing.

Louis Vaccaro, who said he owns property near the Buon Gusto site, claimed that the hearing was legally "clouded," saying neighbors had not been given notice of a rezoning hearing for the parcel last year. Another man, William Anker of 11 Olema Road, described the rezoning as "sneaky-poo".

The town council rezoned the property from restricted commercial district to multiple residential in November, 1972.

Anker also warned that the project may become a "shoddy slum," and said the development would compound severe drainage and sewage problems in the area.

The project drew the support of several residents, one of whom described the board as a "bunch of idiots" since lagging on approval of the impact report will result in wasted time and spiralling development costs.

The board said it needs more information before acting on the report, including the total projected cost of the development, more precise air pollution and traffic information, and other data.

Board members admitted that the report will probably require a series of hearings, and said the project is especially difficult to evaluate since the board has no staff to aid in review of such planning matters.

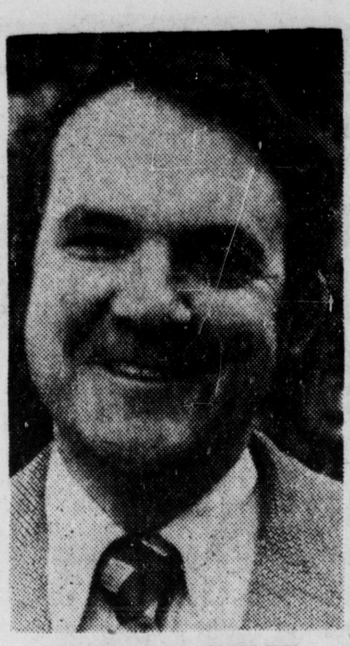
Charles H. Curley, Larkspur planning commissioner, will seek a seat on the city's council in the March 5 election.

He would like to make the council more responsive to city residents.

"Seven years as a Larkspur planning commissioner has given me a working knowledge of issues which concern all Larkspur residents," the 37-year-old Curley said. "Proper city planning and effective local government means that the city council must be responsive to citizens."

Curley is the president of a San Francisco packaging distribution firm. He has been a resident of Larkspur since 1962 and a commission member since 1966.

He is chairman of the board of Marin House, a home for retarded women in Corte Madera, a director of the Marin Audubon Society and a member of the Sierra Club and Marin Conservation League.



CHARLES H. CURLEY
To enter council race

The terms of councilmen Alfred J. Malvino and Neil R. Brixon will expire next spring. Brixon will not seek reelection but Malvino will run for a third term.

Airline Trainee Says Clothing Forced Ouster

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Kathryn Miller, 25, a pretty stewardess-trainee for Hughes Air West Airline, has complained that she was dismissed because her clothes were too avant garde.

Miss Miller, of Saratoga, Santa Clara County, asserts that a male supervisor dropped her from the stewardess class because she wore a maxilength denim jumper skirt and red turtleneck sweater on a flight.

She said the stewardesses were supposed to ride as passengers on the flight to observe other passengers and the experienced stewardesses.

Miss Miller said she was never given any dress regulations and that she had been told stewardesses were supposed to be "trend-setters" in their attire.

A spokesman for the airline said Miss Miller ignored dress regulations and therefore was dropped from the program.

Three Key New York Legislators Charged In Vote Grabbing Plan

NEW YORK (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, who is charged with masterminding an illegal plan to get votes away from Democratic candidates, yesterday said he will not resign from the legislature and indicated he may still run for governor.

"These charges are really nothing," the Long Island Republican told a news conference after his arrest. "We are going to move as soon as possible for a proper disposition of the case."

The two-count indictment against Duryea and five others charged he was the "ultimate authority" behind a bogus "Action Committee of the Liberal Party," which last year aided Liberal candidates in 12 Assembly races considered toss-ups between Democratic and Republican candidates.

The committee allegedly mailed fake campaign literature to voters thought to be likely to favor Democrats, hoping to swing their votes to the weaker Liberal contenders and help ensure a GOP victory.

Also named in the indictment were Assembly Majority Leader John E. Kingston of Westbury, Assemblyman Alfred A. Delli Bovi of New York, and three members of Duryea's staff—Henry A. Mund Jr., I. Lynn Mueller, and James Threatte.

All pleaded innocent at their arraignment before State Supreme Court Justice Jawn Sandifer and were released on their own recognizance.

"I do not intend to resign," Duryea told reporters, promising he would be in the speaker's chair Jan. 9, when the next Assembly session opens, "to bang the gavel." Asked about the governorship, he said, "I am keeping my options open." He said, "I would need more information," when asked about suggestions the charges were an attempt at "political assassination."

Duryea, who heads a lobster-fishing firm, was elected speaker of the lower house of the New York state legislature in 1969.

Duryea has been seen as the leading rival to Gov.-designate Malcolm Wilson for the 1974 GOP nomination. Wilson, currently lieutenant governor, will take office next week when Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller resigns.

"I doubt this will have any effect on my political career because these charges will be dismissed," he said.

Scotti said the scheme involved $12,000 and about 80,000 letters were mailed.

Three Die From Sewer Line Fumes

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Three workmen cleaning a big, muck-filled sewer pipe in the Jersey swamplands were killed yesterday when they were overcome by toxic fumes, police said.

A police spokesman said two scuba divers who were called after rescue workers were driven back by the gases pulled the bodies from the 4-by-6-foot, 750-foot long pipe.

"It was filled with muck and water," said Paradiso.

The captain said the victims, who were not wearing gas masks, were trying to remove sludge from the pipe with a narrow, 850-foot-long steel cable that had a shovel at one end. The other end was attached to a truck.

One of the victims crawled into the pipe to look for the end of the cleaning cable, and the others noted that he failed to return and went in after him.

William Colon, 27, of Jersey City, N.J., the foreman of another crew, crawled in when radio contact was broken off and spotted the bodies. He backed out in time to avoid injury.

It took the divers three 10-minute trips to bring the bodies out. Police said the victims were found at distances of 50, 37, and 30 feet from the opening of the pipe, which is one of a network that carries refuse from downtown Newark to the swamps.

A company spokesman said the clean-up crews had been working under a city contract for the past three months and that this particular job "was coming to an end."

The victims were not wearing gas masks when they entered the pipe, Paradiso said.

The victims, employes of the Robinson Pipe Cleaning Co. of Newark, were tentatively identified as Thomas Williams, 30, Robert Rivers, 36, and Sergio Perez, 25, all of Newark.

PONY POWER

Richard F. Johnston of North Reading, Mass., does his bit to ease the energy crisis by giving Betty Conner (left) and Doris Lafond, both of Wakefield, a pony cart ride to the Lynnfield restaurant where all three work. Johnson keeps about a dozen horses and ponies and uses the cart when weather permits. The ride to work takes about half an hour.

Drivers Tending To Ignore Pooling Rides

Despite gasoline shortages and government pleas for more car pooling, Marin and Sonoma commuters are driving to work alone in increasing numbers.

Vehicle counts comparing morning commuter traffic on Monday with June 18 on the Golden Gate Bridge, showed the average occupancy per vehicle had dropped from 1.35 in June to 1.31 on Monday.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said the figures indicated larger car pools had the greatest cuts. The number of single-occupancy vehicles, he reported to district directors, went from 15,058 to 15,339 on those dates.

While the number of two-occupant vehicles went slightly up from 3,934 to 3,941, three-occupant vehicles dropped from 736 to 664 and four-occupant vehicles from 313 to 215.

Other counts showed five occupant vehicles dropped from 76 to 52 and six occupant vehicles from 74 to 51.

Luehring also reported that while the number of commuters has increased steadily, bridge traffic during November dropped 2.19 per cent compared to the same month last year.

The additional commuters apparently helped to account for the record 8,379 who rode district buses on Monday.

Jail Terms Urged For Fuel Violators

Mandel said he is preparing an executive order which will impose a 60-day jail term and fines as high as $1,000 for violators. The order will make it a crime for anyone to charge excessive prices for heating oil, diesel fuel or gasoline.

Auto Sales Gain Over Last Year's

DETROIT (UPI) — For the first time since mid-September, U.S. auto makers have reported they sold more cars in a 10-day sales period this year than they did during the same period last year.

They credited a steady switch to smaller cars for the reversed trend in declining sales, a 1 per cent increase over the Dec. 1-10 period in 1972.

Mack W. Worden, GM vice president for marketing, said the new car market "continues to reflect buyer indecision resulting from confusion and uncertainty with regard to the energy situation and its related impacts."

Nearly every small car model available showed an increase over last year, as did many of the intermediate models. The automakers sold 182,436 cars in the Dec. 1-10 period—a modest 1 per cent jump over a year ago.

It was the first time since the 1974 models were introduced that General Motors, the industry giant, showed such a gain. GM sales were up 2.8 per cent while American Motors continued its strong pace with a 43 per cent jump.

Ford Motor Co. sales were down 6.1 per cent, but small cars — the Pinto, Maverick, Mustang II and Comet— accounted for one of every two sales. Mustang was up 185 per cent from a year ago, Pinto was up 39 per cent, and Maverick showed a 25 per cent jump.

Chrysler was down 1.1 per cent, primarily in the big car area. Sales of the compact Valiant were up 64 per cent, while Dart sales increased 41 per cent.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend, in a year-end statement yesterday, said his firm's production would be more than 50 per cent small cars by mid-January. The company is indefinitely idling 2,100 workers at two big car assembly plants while converting its Newark, Del., facility to Dart and Valiant production.

College To Delay Year On Project

A $1.6 million College of Marin building project will be delayed for one year, Marin Community College District trustees decided last night.

The board said it wanted more information about the administrative services center, said Earlen Jones, district publicist. She said trustees also want to study alternative sites for the building.

The postponement means construction of the center will not begin until 1976.

Trustees also approved a $221,153 corporation yard for the college. Construction will start next year.

Marin Community College District board also:

ACCOUNTING — Approved $3,181.50 to add new terminals to district computers to accommodate updating of accounting systems to conform with new changes in state requirements.

SENIORS — Reduced class fees from $6 to $3 for persons over 55 years old in the district's Emeritus College program for senior citizens.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired Ole Prahm as supervisor of plant operations and maintenance at the College of Marin at a monthly salary of $1,430.

TELEVISION — Agreed to join other Bay Area colleges which have banded together to provide college courses on KGO-TV. Cost to the college will be approximately $10,000.

STUDY — Decided to spend $5,000 for a consultant to study problems in the new college library's heating, ventilating and air conditioning system.

SOUND — Spent $1,000 for a sound consultant study of acoustical problems at Harlan Center.

MEETING — Will meet to select a new college architect at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Room 101 of the Science Center at College of Marin.

Hells Angels Attack Off Duty Policeman

A San Francisco policeman was attacked and beaten last night by two Hells Angels in Fairfax, police reported today.

Police said patrolman Herman G. Fruchtenicht of Fairfax was taken to Marin General Hospital with cuts and bruises following the 11 p.m. attack on a Fairfax street, but hospital spokesmen said they have no record of his admittance or treatment.

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon were John Nelson Sibbald, 25, of 156 G Street, San Rafael, and Robert David Bayer, 24, of 215 First Street, San Rafael.

Both men were held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Fruchtenicht was driving on Pacheco Avenue near Center Boulevard when another car suddenly cut him off, turned off its front lights and stopped at a traffic sign on Center Boulevard.

Fruchtenicht pulled around the car, got out of his vehicle and approached the other car to see if its occupants needed aid, police said.

Two men police described as members of the Hells Angels jumped from the car, one immediately striking Fruchtenicht in the face with a chain, the other clubbing the back of Fruchtenicht's neck with a walking cane, police said.

The two men wrestled Fruchtenicht to the ground, kicked him in the face and choked him with a leather thong before speeding away, according to police.

Police arrested the two San Rafael men in a San Anselmo bar after spotting a parked car that matched a description of the vehicle used by the attackers.

Benefit Party To Aid Artist

The Help One, Then Another Committee, a Marin group which wants to help struggling Bay Area artists, will hold a benefit party at Davood's restaurant in Mill Valley at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday for artist Scott Behrens of San Rafael.

Proceeds will go to pay for a billboard to be created by Behrens, whose medium is mold, such as is found on food. Donald Koplowitz of the committee said the group hopes to put up the billboard on some Bay Area highway.

The party will feature food, music and an exhibit of Behrens' works. Davood's or Koplowitz, of 845 Fifth Street, San Rafael, can provide more information.

Allen Will Seek Ross Slot Again

Mayor Frederick S. Allen today filed as a candidate for reelection to the Ross Town Council.

Allen, 61, has served on the council since he was appointed in 1960, and has been mayor continuously since 1964. He was reelected to the council in 1962, 1966 and 1970.

He is semiretired and devotes much of his time to town business. He formerly was vice president of the Pacific Coast Title Co.

Allen and his wife, Barbara, live at 131 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard; they have four grown children.

Allen was born in New York City, was graduated from Harvard University and served as a Navy officer in World War II and Korea, retiring as a commander.

Two council seats will be up for election in the March 5 election in Ross — Allen's and that of Vice Mayor Roy Farrington Jones. Candidate filings will close at noon Dec. 27 at the town clerk's office.

Partial Victory For The Nude Sunbather

Nude sunbathing on Bolinas Beach is not illegal, a Marin judge has ruled, because Marin's antinudity law covers only public property and not the private beach.

Municipal Judge David R. Baty issued the ruling in dismissing misdemeanor charges against four Bolinas residents and one Colorado man arrested July 24.

The brief order upheld the validity of the law for publicly owned land but said it does not apply to private property.

That was the point of view argued by Bolinas attorney Paul D. Kayfetz on behalf of Peter Holmes Davidson, 30, of Colorado, and four Bolinas residents — Roland Jacopetti, 37, Elizabeth Kreusler Ehmann, 39, Nancy Joan Denmark, 26, and Theodore Harvey Saladin, 36.

Kayfetz hailed Baty's decision as implying that no private beach in Marin is covered by the coverup ordinance.

Still pending in municipal court is the case of two Oakland residents and a Strawberry man, also accused of skinnydipping in West Marin.

The three — Stephen Francis White, 21, and Susan Mehrings White, 23, of Oakland, and Walter Voight, 33 — were arrested July 21 on Muir Beach.

Unlike Bolinas, Muir Beach was leased to the Muir Beach Community Services District by its owners and the district attorney's office contends this makes it public property and subject to the nudity ordinance.

Carpenters Continue To Halt Work

Teams of striking carpenters roamed throughout the county today closing down a number of construction projects.

Completely shut down were the Courthouse Square office-parking complex and Firemen's Fund Insurance building in San Rafael and the Highway 101 project in Novato.

A threatened confrontation between striking and working carpenters again failed to materialize at the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center addition in San Rafael, where other hospital picket lines were honored by all carpenters. Other tradesmen continue to work despite pickets.

Bike Path, Park Plans Approved In Larkspur

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission last night approved final plans for bicycle path and small park at the Greenbrae Interchange and forwarded them to the State Department of Transportation.

The commission voted to ask the state department how much money they allocate allocated to the park, said Harlan Barry, assistant city manager.

The plans were drawn by Arbegaste and Newton of Berkeley who are also drawing plans for the Heatherwood Park. The commission last night asked the firm to change the arrangement of the picnic facilities in the Heatherwood Park.

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission also:

OFFICERS — Elected Gilbert Dubuc as chairman and Arnold M. Mayer, vice chairman.

TREES —Approved a list of 40 trees for street tree planting.

TREE HOUSE — Continued to 7:30 p.m., Jan. 10, at the city hall consideration of a tree house, review of the plan for Piper Park and a public hearing on revisions to the parks and recreation master plan.

New Year's Show At Prison Is Off

The annual New Year's Day entertainment for San Quentin inmates is being canceled this year, according to Information Officer William D. Nyberg.

"The staff hasn't had the time available to set it up and coordinate it," he said. The cancellation is not for security reasons, Nyberg said.

"There are contributing factors. The musician's union, which has always donated its time to the program in the past, wants us to pay them $500 this year," Nyberg said.

Smaller programs may be put on throughout the year in the future, he said, rather than a single larger show.

Tiburon Water Tank Plan Flayed

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission decided last night to write to the Marin Municipal Water District objecting to the proposed site of a new water tank on the Paradise Drive side of the Tiburon Peninsula.

Commissioner Phyllis Ellman said the site just outside the city limits near the tip of the peninsula is on the edge of an oak-bay forest above Paradise Drive. To build the tank would require taking out dozens of trees, she said.

Free Parking In Sausalito

Free two-hour parking for downtown shoppers in Sausalito during the holiday season was granted last night by the city council.

Free parking will be available in lots 1 and 3 during daylight hours on weekdays from today through Dec. 31. City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie stressed that the parking holiday does not include evenings or weekends.

Prior to the public meeting, councilmen met in closed session with the city attorney to discuss a city condemnation suit against several owners of Southern Pacific Railroad property along the waterfront. No action resulted, McKenzie said.

Board Asks Long-Range School View

Bolinas-Stinson School District trustees have ordered a thorough study of school buildings, finance and curriculum.

"We will be looking at what exists and what needs to be done with an eye on long-range planning," said Supt. Bernard Barrish.

Trustees will head three committees, which also will include teachers and board members, and are to report their findings within three or four months, the board decided Tuesday.

The superintendent reported that the Grateful Dead rock group has cancelled an agreement to rent the old Stinson School for $1,500 as a practice hall. Barrish blamed newspaper publicity for the group's cancellation.

Trustees agreed to allow the Bolinas-Stinson Child Care Center to use the old Stinson School buildings for six months. The center, applying for federal funds, will pay utility and maintenance costs. The agreement will be reviewed after two months, Barrish said.

Board members set the district's first- mid-year kindergarten registration for children 5 years old on or before May 1. Parents may register youngsters at Bolinas School anytime during school hours up to Feb. 1.

Part of the distinctive power system of the University of Illinois' hybrid electric urban car — the constant power generator-rectified combination — was pointed out yesterday by Roger W. Burtness, faculty and project adviser. Son Bill (right) is chief engineer. The car has a Vega body with a Honda engine. The generator-rectifier is combined with four nickel cadmium buffer batteries for acceleration. More than 100 students have worked on the three-year project. The vehicle is expected to be on the road by spring.

Rohnert Park Adopts Ordinance To Check Recreational Vehicles

Despite arguments by owners of recreational vehicles that their constitutional rights were being abused, the Rohnert Park Planning Commission last night recommended adopting an ordinance which would control such vehicles.

Under the recommended amendment to the city zoning ordinance, residents would not be allowed to park inoperative vehicles such as camper shells and unattached trailers in their front yards.

The vehicles still could be parked in side or back yards under the proposed amendment.

One member of the audience of 30 to 40 persons spoke in favor of the amendment, according to Sandra Faus, commission secretary.

Commissioners noted, however, that the large number of opponents had turned out because notices of the hearing had been mailed only to recreational vehicle owners.

The proposed amendment next will go to the city council.

In other action last night, the commission considered applications for two new restaurants.

A use permit was approved for a bar-restaurant to be built of wood and slumpstone and to have a 150-person seating capacity for a lot west of Commerce Boulevard near the Rohnert Park Expressway.

Another request for a McDonald's restaurant on Commerce Boulevard at Hunter Drive was held over by the commission, according to Mrs. Faus, because the commission wants an environmental impact study for the property, now zoned agricultural.

It has been proposed that the parcel be rezoned for commercial and multiple family use.

TWISTER TOLL — A tornado hit Gainesville, Ga., yesterday, taking the roofs off a number of homes and other buildings and injuring a reported 20 persons. Other twisters and thunderstorms with high winds slammed across Tennessee, northern Georgia and South Carolina. Two people were killed at Ninety Six, S.C. (UPI Telephoto)

Three Dead In Southern Storms

NINETY SIX, S.C. (UPI) — Three persons were killed and at least 47 injured yesterday as tornadoes ripped across three southern states, causing millions of dollars in damage.

Two women were killed when a twister cut a swath a mile long and nearly 100 feet wide through this rural area. It struck the Ninety Six Manufacturing Co., destroying a cloth separating building where they worked. A 15-month old boy, Brandon J. Farr, died in an overturned mobile home in Newberry County, S. c.

Twenty-six persons were injured in a tornado which struck Gainesville, Ga., shortly after noon. At least 44 houses were destroyed along with two trailer parks, two downtown businesses and a church.

Another twister ripped the roof off an elementary school in Conasauga, Tenn., yesterday morning, injuring three children. Several other children were trapped briefly in the rubble but were uninjured.

The worst damage was reported in Greenwood County, S.C., where Ninety Six Fire Chief Bubba Summers estimated damage in the millions of dollars. At least 18 persons were injured.

The tornado ripped through the Edgewood School community, a new housing development near Ninety Six, damaging nearly every house in the development and unroofing many of the structures.

The South Carolina National Guard was called to duty to prevent looting.

The workers killed at the Ninety Six Manufacturing Co., were identified as Charity Griffin and Ozala Thomas, both of Ninety Six. The plant was destroyed by the twister.

The basketball team at Mid Carolina High School in nearby Prosperity narrowly escaped injury when the gym roof was blown off.

In Gainesville, Ga., County Civil Defense Director H. D. Ward said it was an "unusual" tornado in that it "was narrow in width but it hit in so many places." He estimated damage at more than $2 million.

"You wouldn't believe what was done to those houses and trailers," Ward said. "A lot of times you couldn't tell whether a lot had a house on it or it was just a cleared out place."

State troopers were dispatched to the area to prevent looting.

In Conasauga, Tenn., two miles from the Georgia-Tennessee line, the five-room Conasauga Elementary School was flattened. The three children who were injured were not believed seriously hurt, however.

A tornado also struck Dayton, Tenn., demolishing two mobile homes and heavily damaging five others. Damage was estimated at $60,000.

Planning Consultant Enters Race

By FRANK FARRARA

(Second of eight articles on candidates for a seat on the Novato Planning Commission)

Albert Solnit, a 45-year-old planning consultant who has written a book entitled "The Job of a Planning Commissioner," is seeking that job on the Novato Planning Commission.

(Solnit is one of eight applicants to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Leroy J. Syrop last month).

"I've always been dishing out planning advice, and since I've stopped being a government official, I have been giving seminars on the job of a planning commission, Solnit said. "Now I figure I should pay my dues."

Solnit, who has worked overseas helping to set up commissions, said "the thing we (the United States) have going is people who volunteer to serve in local government."

Generally, "the most exportable thing we have is teaching people to govern themselves at home without depending upon big government," he said.

He said he has always been convinced of the merits of residents serving in local government voluntarily "and now I'd like to do it . . . see what it's like in the trenches."

Solnit, a consultant to Sonoma County on its general plan program and former chief of advance planning for Marin County, said he expects to "learn a lot" from experience on the planning commission.

He teaches at the University of California at Berkeley and Sonoma State College and has written a book on the fiscal impact of different types of development.

Solnit, a resident of Novato for 7 years, his wife, Theresa, and four children, live at 7 Carmel Drive.

Hub General Plan Leader Enters Race

Pieter Toal, chairman of San Anselmo's citizen's committee on the general plan, yesterday announced he will seek election to the city council March 5.

Toal, 52, is the first candidate to announce a bid for a council seat. The terms of Mayor Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart and councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V. Capurro expire.

Stewart and Perry have announced they will not seek reelection.

Toal, an engineer with a San Francisco consulting firm to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, said the major issue facing the city is putting the emerging general plan to work.

"I'm running because over the past two years I have chaired the citizens committee on the general plan, and I just want to make sure the plan is implemented by the city council," he said.

Toal said side issues in the race include future use of Isabel Cook School, which is being phased out over a three year period, and a horse control ordinance recently tabled by the city council.

PIETER TOAL
Makes council bid

He said the school should become city office space or a town center, and said the city has no need for a horse ordinance.

He pledged to make public all campaign contributions, contributors and expenses.

Toal, a native of The Netherlands, graduated from Delft Technological University with a master's degree in civil engineering.

During World War II, he was placed in a forced labor camp in Germany and after liberation served as an interpreter for the U.S. military government. He has lived in San Anselmo since 1964.

Toal was appointed to the San Anselmo School District board in 1965 to fill out the bulk of a four-year term, but failed to gain election to the board in 1969 and again in 1970.

Toal ran unsuccessfully for a council seat in 1972, basing his campaign almost exclusively on the issue of allowing second units on single family residential lots under certain circumstances.

Bahama Gaming Casino Is Closed

The Monte Carlo Casino here, a property of Bahamas Amusements, Ltd., announced its closing in a terse release Wednesday, giving no reason.

The closing follows by two weeks an announcement that the three casinos eventually would be taken over by the Bahamian government.

In 1972, Freeport's two casinos earned over $20 million and paid more than $4 million in gaming taxes to the Bahamian government.

The country's other casino is in Nassau.

Aerospace Back Pay Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Cost of Living Council ruling could mean between $75 and $85 million in back pay for up to 250,000 workers in the aerospace and related industries.

The CLC ruled Wednesday that 108,000 workers at five aerospace companies were entitled to pay withheld by decision of the now-defunct Pay Board. The money would be apportioned during the course of a year, instead of being paid in one lump sum.

The companies are Boeing Co., Lockheed Aircraft Corp., LTV Aerospace Corp., McDonnell Douglas Corp., and Rockwell International. The decision will cost them nearly $30 million.

10 Per Cent Pay Increase Is Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The University of California's staff personnel board has been asked by the California State Employers' Association to recommend an average 10.8 per cent pay raise for non-academic employes next year.

The chairman of the CSEA's University Staff Occupational Council, L. Easter McHenry, said in the request yesterday that raises of 6 to 7 per cent per year have been necessary since 1969 to keep up with inflation and taxes.

WATER FLOWS IN CHICAGO

Jerry Ellick, a resident of a high rise condominium on the Chicago lakefront, watches water pour through window wall of his ground level unit. High winds yesterday knocked over a retaining wall, causing Lake Michigan water to flow into the building. Many other apartments and garages along the lakeshore were flooded by the pounding waters.

Bike Safety Program To Be Launched

The Larkspur School District board last night approved starting a bicycle safety program in all elementary schools.

The board voted to ask the police and any other interested group or individuals to help in the bicycle safety education program, said Supt. Milton S. Cohen.

The action came after the board received a copy of a State Assembly resolution stating that accidents on bicycles of elementary school children increased 70 per cent in the first quarter of 1972 over 1971, and asking the schools to start the classes.

The Larkspur School District board also:

MONEY — Received notice from the state Department of Education that the district will get $12,000 in Title 1 money for its special reading and mathematics classes.

MILK — Received notice that the state will subsidize the cost of milk by three cents per half pint carton, cutting the price to students from 10 to seven cents.

ENERGY — Heard a report that the district is conserving electricity by cutting the security night lights by half; saving fuel by cutting the boilers back by four hours a day; saving water by cutting down on the amounts used by the toilets; saving paper by using both sides and getting bins to hold paper for recycling.

DISASTER — Approved revised disaster plans for fire earthquake and atomic disasters. There are many minor changes such as if the children are outside during an earthquake they should stay there instead of entering the buildings as the present plans called for.

REPORTS — Heard a report that 96 per cent of parents held conferences with teachers in the past month.It approved having teachers make a report on the student as well as giving a grade in grades 4, 5 and 6 of the Henry C. Hall School.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m., Jan. 17 in the district office, postponing the Jan. 10 meeting by one week.

Savings Bond Offer On Energy Solution

An anonymous donor has pledged a $25 savings bond for the best energy saving idea offered by a San Anselmo School district child, district trustee John Hulpke told colleagues last night.

The board decided to sponsor a district energy conservation idea contest, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Elliott said the contest will be held after the Christmas vacation.

The San Anselmo School District Board also:

COMMITTEE — Commended the district master plan survey committee, a group that is soliciting resident opinion on future school district sites and facilities.

READING — Said reading tests given to first, second and third grade youngsters last May show that pupils are doing well in reading skills.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to evaluate Elliott's performance, but took no action on the matter. The board will consider the superintendent's employment again next month.

LEAVE — At her request, rescinded a leave of absence for teacher Frances Findley.

BUDGET — Approved shifting $64,851 from district reserves to various district accounts to pay for maintenance work, school supplies and equipment.

INVENTORY — Hired Tait Appraisal Co. of South San Francisco to inventory district assets.

EXPENSE — Approved a $9,000 expense to purchase a portable classroom from the Mill Valley School District.

SHARING — Said the district will share a music and instrument instructor with Sir Francis Drake High School.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Jan. 10 in Red Hill School.

Clean Air Act Meeting Set

A public meeting to discuss the Clean Air Act and the one year postponement of some provisions announced last week by the Environmental Protection Agency, has been set for noon on Feb. 14 at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael.

The meeting is sponsored by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau. It has sent notices to other chambers of commerce, unions, real estate brokers, businessmen and interested parties.

The meeting originally was scheduled for Jan. 10.

Hub Trustees Select Two New Principals

The San Anselmo School District board last night appointed Rulon Cook principal of Red Hill School and Robert Balzon principal of Isabel Cook and Yolansdale schools.

Both appointments were made for the remainder of the school year, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliot, saying permanent appointments were not made due to uncertainty over school closings and staffing needs.

Cook, 45, of 826 McKellop Court, Petaluma, is currently vice principal of Red Hill and Hidden Valley schools. The new post pays $21,136 annually.

He graduated from Utah State University with master's honors in education.

Balzon, 28, of 61 Windsor Avenue, San Rafael, is currently a teaching vice principal at Isabel Cook School. The new post pays $18,915 annually.

He graduated from San Francisco State University with master's honors in education.

Ancient Dining Custom Revived

That is until farmer's daughter Caroline Hunt arrived with Jezebel, the pride of her dairy herd, and milked the cow in the middle of the dining room.

"It was tradition in medieval times to bring the cow into the dining hall to prepare a syllabub," he said.

PREPARED THIS TIME

Many residents of Bay City, Mich., were caught unprepared when storms raged through the area last spring, causing extensive flooding. This mobile home owner apparently learned her lesson as she now keeps a boat tied to her front porch. Northwest winds caused minor flooding yesterday as the winter season's first storm brought snow to the area.

Dollar Mansion Plan Given By Supervisor

A Marin County supervisor yesterday proposed a broad-based plan for public acquisition of the historic Dollar mansion and grounds in San Rafael.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said he would like to turn the picturesque old mansion into a museum run by the Marin County Historical Society and use the grounds for other public activities.

He said preliminary discussions with city and county officials and representatives of the historical society and Marin Heritage Society indicated interest in a joint venture to purchase the estate.

Roumiguiere said funds to buy the mansion and surrounding 10 acres could be raised from federal grants, public donations and city and county funds.

"A joint venture effort will develop, I believe, if the board of supervisors and city council take the lead by developing a platform on which we can meet," he said in a letter to his board colleagues.

The historical society, which currently runs its museum at the Boyd House in San Rafael, is looking for another location, he said.

Cramped quarters and a city plan to remodel the old home have prompted the need to move.

Roumiguiere at one time proposed the museum be located at Civic Center but abandoned the idea because the county buildings are closed on Sunday and have a parking shortage during the week.

Hope Crowns Beauty Queen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bob Hope last night crowned Lexie Brockway, 19, a Washington State University coed, as the second "Miss World USA" of the year.

Miss Brockway was runnerup in the original contest in July to Marjorie Wallace, 19, of Indianapolis. Miss Wallace went on to win the "Miss World" title, leaving her national crown vacant.

The new "Miss World USA" is a straight-A journalism student, delivers the 6 p.m. news on the campus radio station and says she wants to go into television news work.

Muni Driver Reports He Relayed Plea

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A man who gave chase to the alleged murderer of a San Francisco woman charged last night that a Municipal Railway bus driver ignored pleas to call for help.

William Bryan, 28, of Sonoma, said he witnessed the shooting of Marietta DiGirolamo, 31, and then got out of his car to chase her killer. Mrs. DiGirolamo was shot three times.

Bryan said when he lost the suspect, he asked an unidentified driver of a No. 71 bus to call police on his two-way radio.

"There are a lot of pay phones in the area," Bryan quoted the driver as responding. "Use one."

Bryan said the driver then shut the bus doors and drove off.

Muni officials said the driver, eight-year veteran Joe E. Ringold, "who has a good record," denied having told Bryan to use a pay phone. They said bus records show that Ringold did call Muni Central Control to ask for help and that Ringold's message was relayed to police.

Two Men Arrested As Suspects In Burglary

Two men were arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglarizing a Mill Valley home.

Stuart Moore Gray, 21, of San Francisco, and Jeffrey Joseph Greenbach, 20, of Palo Alto, were held in county jail in lieu of $1,500 bail each to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said a patroling officer saw a pickup truck with license plate numerals obscured with tape in a driveway at 324 Summit Avenue at 3:34 p.m.

According to police, driver of the truck, Greenbach, honked the horn when approached by the officer. Gray was taken into custody when he was caught running upstairs in front of a home in the area.

Officers said Gray carried a screwdriver in his back pocket and a television set and guitar were found in the bed of the truck.

DEGREES IN SPRING

Three Combine Families, School

WHILE HER three boys are in school, Janet Clark will earn the bachelor of arts degree in art. Here she does silk screening on the San Rafael campus, only 10 minutes from home in Larkspur. Her husband manages the family on the weekends she studies at the library.

(Bob Hax photo)

By BARBARA HOSMER

Janet Clark started college 17 years ago. Amy Barron finished high school 20 years ago, and Dorothy Clifford was a University of California freshman in 1948.

Ask them how they feel about college today and all three get excited.

They are among some 107 older women who are one-fourth of the undergraduate students at Dominican College in San Rafael, and each will receive a hard-won bachelor of arts degree in May. Seniors now, they all manage families of growing children at home.

Each has found that returning to college is a major plus in her life.

"I was determined to jump in and do it," remarked Janet Clark of Larkspur. "I started out with 10 units."

Dorothy Clifford of San Rafael has eight children and confines her time on campus to the hours her children are in school.

"I started out with three units in 1969 to see if I could do it and keep the family going, too . . . Now I usually carry eight or nine units," she said between classes.

Amy Barron of Vallejo finds it "opens you up as a person; you make new friends and get a different perspective on life. You do things you never considered doing because you thought 'that's not me' but it is."

ALL THREE women said that a careful management of their time is the key to getting a college degree while taking care of their families.

Janet Clark has three boys, Richard, 15; Peter, 12, and Chris, 8. An art major, she also teaches art workshops through the University of California Extension in winter and summer.

She finds it hard to write papers at home with the family around and fixes herself no set study hours at home. Instead, she spends time between classes studying at the college library, does some reading at night, and often spends the weekend at the library. On these occasions, her husband takes over with the boys at home or takes them on outings.

Because art requires the longer hours of studio classes and Mrs. Clark has a class from 1 to 3:30 p.m., she worked it out to start earlier so she could pick up her youngest son at 3 p.m. when his school finishes.

"I worked it out with the individual teachers," she explained. "But when I took ceramics, I needed to be there with the teacher."

Janet Clark said a big factor in choosing Dominican College was that it is only 10 minutes from home. "In an emergency they can find you here." That has given her the security that if the children should need her, she is close by.

SHE FINISHED Anoakia School in Arcadia and had taken classes here and there — Pasadena City College in 1957, Fullerton College, University of Southern California and the University of California Extension. She was married, then came to Marin 10 years ago, and planned that when her youngest child went to school all day that she would have time to finish college.

"I always thought a degree would be useful. I had been team teaching, working with artist Ann O'Hanlon in U.C. Extension, and everyone else on the team had a degree. But I am not getting a teaching credential, so I won't be teaching full time," she explained. Instead, her goal after graduation is to work in an art-related field and to continue her painting.

She finds in going to college now that her whole focus is different from when she began Pasadena City College in 1957.

Dominican she finds is a comfortable place for a returning student.

"I have lots of friends at College of Marin and I think there is a bigger generation gap there with the younger students than I find here.

"You get more out of coming back if you have a goal in mind," she said. "You have more focus and seem to participate more."

Going to college full time and not taking on anything else, she believes, helps the older student to get more out of classes.

DOROTHY CLIFFORD, with eight children and the youngest only 5, finds often she has to put off studying and then "cram at exam time."

"I realized I couldn't always do school work when I wanted. But it has worked out well at home." Her husband and family always encouraged her and she has worked hard to balance her home life and school.

"I had always been active in volunteer work," she said, so had managed time away from home anyway. The close location of campus to home has enabled her to continue college.

Mrs. Clifford, a psychology major, is aiming for a master's degree and to do counseling. Both she and Amy Barron believe that it will be easier as their children grow older.

Mrs. Clifford's eldest three are in college themselves, and she finds she has a common ground with them as a student herself. They had given time to help with the younger children so their mother could attend college, but now "all the help has left for college," she said, laughing. She does have a Mexican student living at home this year, however.

Mrs. Clifford, one of Dominican's early "returnees," helps to give orientation to incoming older students. And she is older student representative on the College Council, the chief policy-recommending body.

She has found that her attending college has fostered an academic atmosphere at home that influences her younger children.

"Home and college are my main life now," she said. But she and husband have time to entertain friends on weekends and she has made many friends on campus.

"I love the pace of the campus and don't know if I would do so well at another," Dorothy Clifford mused. She was familiar with campus because she was graduated from Dominican Uqper School in 1947, and finds many of her former teachers are professors at the college now. "Of course, I'm older than many of my professors," she commented.

MRS. CLIFFORD felt that she needed to do something with the 20 to 30 years of her life after her children leave home and "I wanted to be specifically trained. I'm doing this with the idea that they're going to be gone."

"I'm a great believer in continuing to take courses. It's true for most older students here — we want to take them all.

"There's a tremendous difference from when I was in school before. Then I took French to fill a requirement — now I would take it to learn the language."

Amy Barron commutes from Vallejo, does domestic work two days a week, caters parties, works in the dean of students' office on campus and will receive a degree in social science in May.

"I always wanted to go to college. My mother worked at a house up on Summit and when I would go to pick her up, I'd go by Dominican and say to myself, 'that's where I will go,'" she explained. She plans to get a master's degree and do psychiatric social work with families.

"The first step is the hardest. You think you don't have time," she commented.

Divorced and the mother of three children, Mrs. Barron has been out of Vallejo High School for 20 years. She started at Solano Junior College in 1969, taking 12 units and working full

How To Make Home Safe For Holidays

SACRAMENTO — The California Department of Consumer Affairs suggests precautions and materials to make holiday home decorating and tree trimming safe and attractive.

Use only flame-proof decorations on the tree. Homemade decorations should be constructed of flame-proof materials. Tinsel should be of plastic or non-lead material because lead tinsel is hazardous if ingested by pets or children.

Wear gloves while handling spun glass "angel hair" to minimize skin irritations or use nonflammable cotton in its place. Neither of these materials should be sprayed with artifical snow.

If there are children in the house avoid sharp, breakable ornaments and those resembling candy or food.

Never place lighted candles on or near a tree, and keep them away from decorations and wrapping paper.

After gifts are opened remove wrappings from tree and fireplace areas. Don't burn wrappings or evergreens in a fireplace. They ignite suddenly, burn rapidly and can cause a flash fire.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Will Equal Rights Amendment Be Applied To Prostitutes?

DEAR HELEN:

Please name the states where the Equal Rights Amendment hasn't passed the state legislature yet.

Next question: When ERA becomes law, will it offer equal rights to prostitutes too? That is, when they arrest people for this illegal act, will they arrest the Johns as well as the Janes?

Seems to me men are just as guilty as women — you can't have one without the other — but even the pimps usually go free while the girls get rounded up regularly. — FOR ERA

DEAR FOR ERA:

States whose legislatures have not yet ratified the Equal Rights Amendment (as this column goes to print) are: Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Utah and Virginia.

Thirty states have already ratified the amendment, and eight more are needed to make the necessary three-fourths vote by 1979.

Prostitution? It's legal in a few Nevada counties.

Several cities in the No-No states are getting tough with the Johns. These cities have set "man-traps" with policewomen decoys; and "customers'" names are printed in local newspapers under "arrests." Since men don't care to have it advertised that they must buy their love, and they're not terribly fond of fines or imprisonment — or wifely awareness — street business has dropped off considerably there. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If a husband and wife have a problem with sexual incompatibility, and they can't afford the new Masters and Johnson-type clinics which can cost up to $2,000 or more, (or psychiatrists) the only help left is their doctor. And that's a crying shame, because often doctors have more hang-ups about sex than their patients.

My husband thought he was becoming impotent. His doctor made a joke of it. "So what do you want to be —a dirty old man?" he asked. My husband is 52! So we read several good books and things worked out for us.

A woman friend consulted her doctor about her 17-year-old daughter who was deeply involved with her boyfriend. The doctor wouldn't prescribe the pill because he would "have no part in immoral conduct."

Our family doctor avoids any mention of sex when he's examining me. There are questions I'd like to ask, but he turns me off.

Medical schools teach almost nothing about human sexuality, except how to recognize disease or operate on the sex organs.

Isn't it time this vital part of our lives got more than a passing nod from medical doctors?

DEAR LOIS:

If they can't afford expensive therapy or counseling, then they should do what you and your husband did: read several good books, and practice what they teach. (You were lucky here. Many aren't, unfortunately.)

Yes, it's long past time for medical schools to include "sex education" in their courses. According to several recent articles on the subject, they're beginning to recognize the need, but it may be a long while before general practitioners can adequately treat all the sexual disfunctions. These problems still require specialists. — H.

Student Planning Visit To Russia

By KAREN PETERSON

A Petaluma student participating in a "Person to Person" tour of the Soviet Union will spend her Christmas holidays traveling, sightseeing and living with a Russian family.

Joan Diamond, a sophomore at Santa Rosa Junior College, will leave Dec. 23 for Moscow on a two-week tour sponsored by the American Soviet Friendship Society.

During her stay in the Soviet Union, Miss Diamond, 19, will live with the family of an English-speaking Soviet student and will be free to travel and sightsee in the country.

She will stay in Moscow for one week and then travel to Leningrad and other northeastern cities. The tour, said Miss Diamond, will include visits to Red Square, including Lenin's Mausoleum, and St. Basil's Cathedral.

"There will be special tours to elementary schools, which I am very excited about," she said.

Darlene Calvi of Bodega will also participate in the Soviet tour. Miss Calvi is an agriculture major at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Gary Anderson, an instructor of cultural geography at the college who arranged the tour for the two students, said the program is partially subsidized by the Soviet government. The members of the tour, he said, will have the opportunity to see things not generally shown to other tourists.

"I would like to bring a little bit of Russia back to share with people who know little or nothing about that vast country," she said. The trip will cost $1,000 including air fare, accommodations and meals, and Miss Diamond added that her "Petaluma-styled clothes" may not be adequate because the average Moscow temperature is 12 degrees in January.

Miss Diamond, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Diamond, is majoring in elementary education, and she plans to transfer to California State University, San Francisco, next year. She is a graduate of Petaluma High School and was a member of the original Police Athletic League Drill Team. She has been an outdoor education camp counselor for the sixth grade class of McDowell School in Petaluma and teaches Sunday school and counsels a youth camp for the Free Will Baptist Church.

Fifty young people from the United States will participate in the Soviet tour.

Annual Hub Block Party Will Be Wednesday Night

Residents of Florence Avenue in San Anselmo will have their annual Christmas block party Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

As has been the tradition since 1956 signs wishing "Merry Christmas To All" have been hung at each end of the block.

Chairman is Bell Jelineck. Organizers of the party are Peter Horne, Jerry Cruthers, Paula Raudio and George Rambke. Irene Christian will lead the singing of Christmas carols around a pot belly stove.

Each child will bring an ornament he has made and place it on the tree, which will be in the cul-de-sac, and talk to Santa Claus (Ernest Jehly.)

Coffee, milk and homemade cookies will be served in a decorated garage, and each family will introduce itself as a microphone is passed around.

Not All Asian Women Find Life Liberated

By JOAN HANAUER
U.P. International

(Second of two articles)

Women by tradition have controlled the family budget in countries such as Vietnam, India, Laos, Cambodia and Hong Kong, where women invest the family funds in intricately carved gold and silver jewelry and wear their bank accounts like baubles.

Men are served first in Asian restaurants because, it is said, Asian women believe man is a weaker, more fragile being whose needs must be taken care of first.

Not all Asian women, however, find life so liberated.

In India the vast majority of women are illiterate, subject to arranged marriages which they cannot refuse but which their would-be male partners can. They consider their husbands as overlords. Women in manual jobs in India receive lower wages than men and often perform the most strenuous work.

In Indonesia, women take a back seat to the man. About 90 per cent of Indonesian women marry under Moslem law, permitting a man four wives and allowing him to divorce them on such grounds as neglect of family duties. But a divorced wife can go to court to veto any marriage candidate of her divorced spouse.

In Japan the family system is rigid and housewifely duties specifically defined — definitely unliberated. Keiji Kamata, 28, a bachelor who works for a film distributor, commented, "I don't think it's possible for women to be economically independent in Japanese society today. Women's Lib is just attacking in one direction: women's rights, women's position. The whole society, the whole social system must change for women's position to improve. Right now, Japan is a man's country."

LATIN AMERICA remains the stronghold of "machismo" — the swashbuckling Don Juan image. Women's Liberation movements are few and far between. There is one in Argentina that serves mainly as a discussion group, another in Venezuela that protested against a beauty contestant, and a "women's rights" group in Peru trying to change discriminatory laws. No more than a fourth of the adult women hold jobs outside the home in Latin American countries.

"We're not about to burn our bras," a young Chilean woman said. "They're too expensive."

Maria Elena Oddone, the spokeswoman of an Argentine Women's Liberation group, didn't want to reveal her group's membership "because we are so few it's a psychologically negative factor.

"It will take five, six or seven years for us to reach the level of consciousness and activism that the U.S. women's liberation movement has achieved," she said.

In Peru 40 per cent of university enrollment is female, but there are still laws that forbid women to work without their husbands' consent.

In a number of Latin American countries there are women political figures, but usually they are figureheads acting for a male family member.

PUERTO RICO, perhaps because of its close relationship with the United States, does have a vocal Women's Liberation movement, women cabinet members, and San Juan for 20 years had a woman mayor.

Directed south of the United States border in Mexico the government has found it necessary to launch a campaign against "machismo" to try to slow the country's 3.4 per cent yearly population growth rate. The idea is to convince men not to measure their masculinity by the number of children, and specifically the number of sons, they can produce.

Things are getting better slowly in Latin America, with more women in better jobs, but for now it's Chauvinism, Si! Liberation, No!

ON BEING BLACK

Parallels In Sexism, Racism?

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate

SALT LAKE CITY — "White women have been 'niggered' in this society, too. Institutionalized sexism and institutionalized racism are parallel phenomena."

The speaker was a white female, encouraging blacks and women to unite against a common oppressor — the white male.

Though there may be a few logistical parallels between the women's liberation movement and the black liberation movement — strategies and rhetoric for bringing about desired changes — the nonparallels are considerably more glaring.

White women are not accused of being members of a completely separate species, as black people have been. They have not been bombarded by theories and theses published down through history which attempt to prove them to be something less than human.

WITHOUT EXCEPTION, these ethnologies are absolutely incredible. Still, they were widely read and seriously considered. It is the task of the "race thinker" to reinforce and/or substantiate what he already (rightly or wrongly) believes.

Skull size, facial features, brain size (along with the number and depth of fissures) and IQ have been offered (scientifically and academically) as explanations for racial differences and a rationale for subhuman treatment for blacks.

One scholar applied the theory of hybrid reproduction to blacks and whites. His theory stated that, since blacks and whites were of separate species, their offspring (like tangerines and mules) would be sterile, unable to reproduce themselves. Consequently, black-white hybrids would eventually die out. His theory, obviously, was lacking in proof.

Would you believe another lunatic (employing the scientific method) developed a theory using body lice (yeah, body lice) as indices to the separate-species theory? To my knowledge, white women are privileged to host the same strains of body lice as white males. According to this looney, not so with blacks and whites.

Criminal tendencies and a proclivity for poverty have never scientifically and academically been assigned to white women, and they have never been accused of being a step closer to apes (on the evolutionary scale) than their male counterparts.

ANOTHER MAJOR nonparallel between sexism and racism is the fact that some, if not many, white women have been subjected to a measure of luxurious and plush "niggering." Their pedestals, whether they were up there by choice or force, are located in livable homes, supplied with such necessities as food and clothing. A night out on the town or a vacation in Europe with the "master" (the white male) is tolerable for many a Pedestal Patty.

It's amusing that, in our great American frenzy to keep everyone and everything neatly categorized, white women now have been classified as a major minority. They are now in line to receive "special" (minority) consideration for jobs, scholarships and the like. It is ironical that suddenly, to fill many "token" job openings, the most desirable person is a black female, for she fills two demands. She is the double minority. Unfortunately, this status often adversely affects the black woman under other personal circumstances.

The differences between sexism and racism outweigh the similarities simply because white women have been a human minority. Blacks have been a subhuman minority. The struggle is not quite the same.

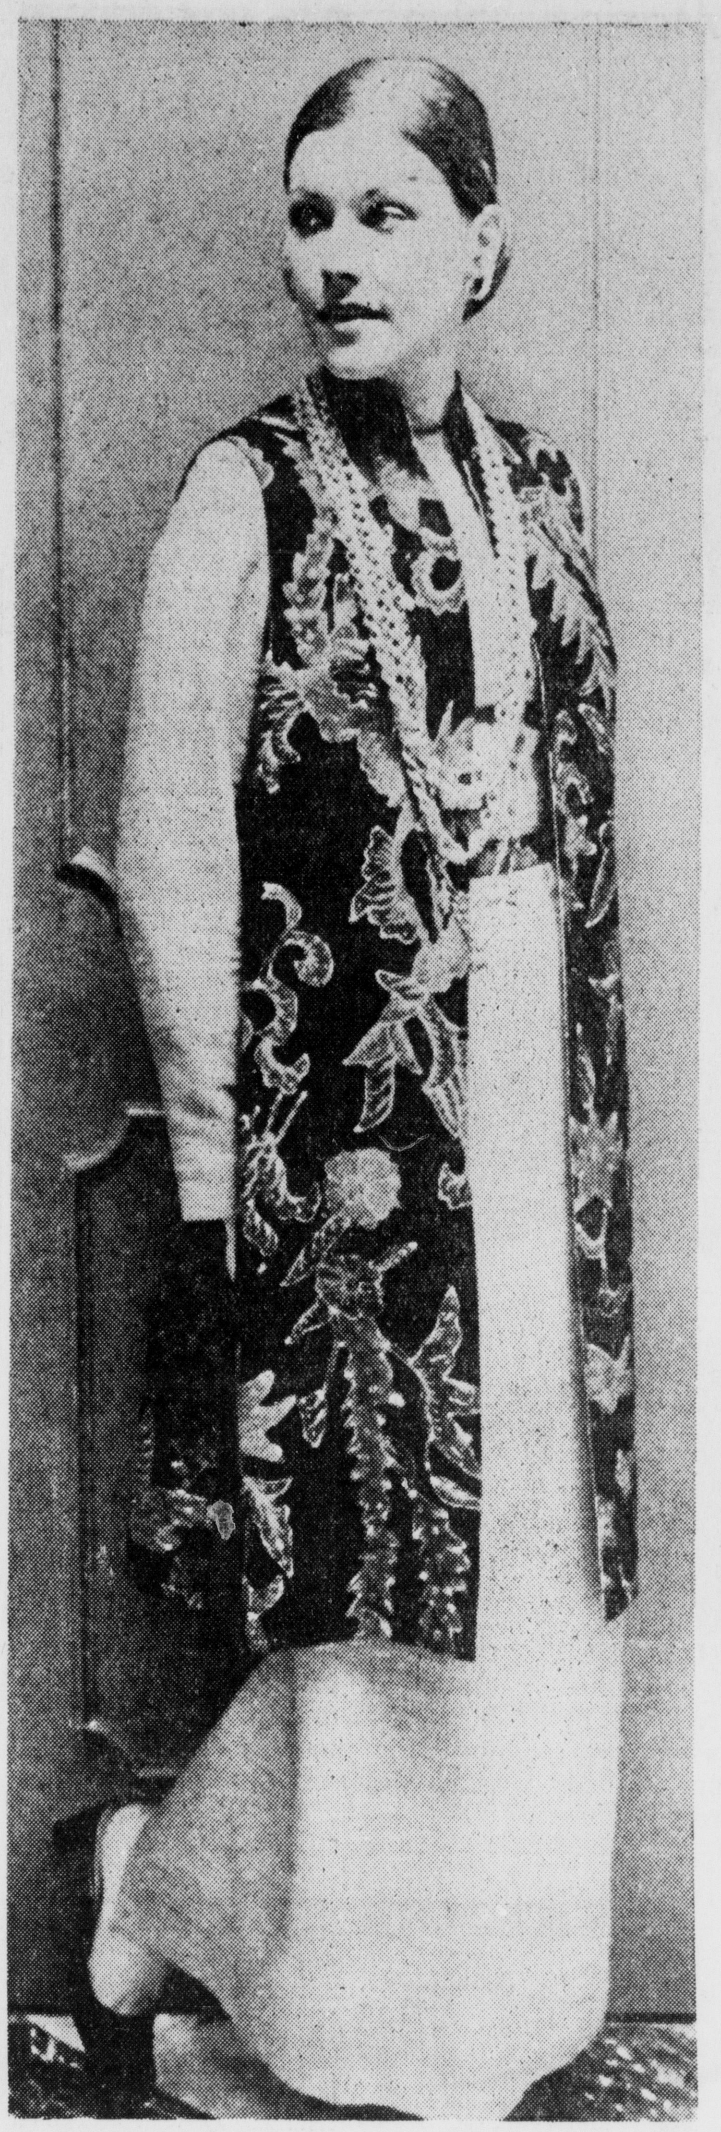
VERA MAXWELL'S TOPS

A Return To Sensible Fashions



HARDY, TIMELESS style is designer Vera Maxwell's trademark. She puts a premimium on looking casually chic, as in this uncomplicated evening ensemble.

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Vera Maxwell, a fashion classicist, finds the times once more in tune with her sense of style.

"It's a great relief," she admits "to see girls emerging from that terrible kick of no-dressing, and to see women reaching once more for fine natural fabrics, superb cut, and easy, but sure, elegance."

She weathered the mini-maxi-midi fashion convolutions because a determined coterie of Maxwell fans kept buying and believing in her kind of hardy, timeless fashion. These were the chic uncluttered, comfortable styles that became for most Maxwell loyalists the building blocks of long-range wardrobes that were expected to carry on valiantly for years.

THOUSANDS OF women agreed with Princess Grace of Monaco and Mrs. Henry Luce, that Vera Maxwell produced the "staples" in their closets, the "dependables," that the designer sometimes refers to as "calendar clothes" because "they look great anytime, anyplace, anywhere."

A Vera Maxwell retrospective, covering the years 1935 to 1970, was sponsored three years ago by the Friends of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. It came at ebb tide for the designer, but it provided the impetus for her current resurgence.

"I am copying myself this winter," she said as she showed her current collection, "but then, who has more right?" To illustrate, she brought out the gently flared skirt and wrapped blouse she first introduced in 1950, and the same classic greatcoat, with a swing, that has been in her line for years. It is so loved and in demand that she can't retire it. This time around it appears in a fuzzy purple mohair.

She is still using the same hand-woven tweeds from Magee of Ireland that she has used since 1935, still buying the same great Scottish woolens, and featuring the same nubby wild silk that she has since 1951. ("I've even had the same workers in my establishment for the past 35 years," she quips.)

THIS YEAR wool jersey is her favorite fabric, but it is getting more scarce and difficult to buy. She found printed wool challis in Switzerland for dresses, and located a limited amount of hand-painted Burmese cotton to make a few dozen evening caftans.

She sees neutrals — beiges, browns and grays — as her best colors for this winter. But she says black is having a strong comeback, and she likes parma violet and nasturtium orange for interesting contrast.

Mrs. Maxwell says the "fabric of the year" is "ultra suede," made by Skinner. It feels like sheer doeskin, she claims, yet is washable, spot-resistant, and durable.

This designer shows a number of pants costumes: pants with dresses worn over them and pants with matching slender knee-length cardigan coats. "They're great for the less than good figure," she said. "And women move freely in them."

HER SHIRT dresses are lined and well-cut, and her little chemise dress with patch pockets and bow neck is the essence of simplicity.

TWENTY YEARS out of high school, Amy Barron will receive a bachelor of arts degree in social studies and a teaching credential next May. She sandwiches classes and study at the library between catering, domestic work and care of her family in Vallejo. "Do it," is her advice to older women considering college.

DOROTHY CLIFFORD studies on the Dominican College campus while her eight children are in school themselves. A senior psychology major she hopes to do counseling and plans to continue taking classes. Time — "It's a matter of priorities," she says. Starting at the University of California in the class of '48, she'll graduate from Dominican in the class of '74.

Three Who Combine Families, School

It took three years, but she came to Dominican a year ago September as a junior and has taken 15 units every semester. She does catering at night and on weekends, domestic work before night classes two days a week, spends 10 hours a week observing in elementary school to get her teaching credential, plus class hours and her studying.

"And I've made it a point never to neglect my children." They are Vicki, 17, Ted, 15, and Ken, 9. Vicki, a high school senior, has taken over much of the cooking and housework, but she also works part time. On weekends Mrs. Barron cooks a big family dinner for the children.

"THEY THINK it's pretty good," she said of her being in college. Vicki was doing fair in school, her mother said, and when "I made the dean's list, she said, 'Mother, if you can do that, I'll have to do better.' " She said all the children have started competing with her in lessons.

By working, Mrs. Barron felt she had already had experience in budgeting her time. Going to graduate school should be easier, she thinks, as the children grow. Also, her mother, father and sister have been a big help with the children.

"I've gone to school through years when they've needed me. Without my family's support, there are some things I couldn't have done."

She studies after the children have gone to bed, helping them with their own lessons in the early evening.

"I really talk up the continuing education thing with my friends. A lot of us felt no hope of going on, but you can go on and do it. And colleges are reaching out to people like me. There are night classes and more classes we want. My advice to people is 'Do it,' if they are thinking about college," emphasized Amy Barron.

In fact, that was the advice of all three women students.

Politics, Car Racing Dominate Her Interests

Next after her family, Mary Anne's chief interests are her job as top woman staff member in the administration of Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar and his related work for women, and spare-time activities in the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA).

She and her husband, Tom, an advertising consultant, form a husband-wife team in racing. She holds a SCCA national competition license, one of the relatively few women who do.

"I am not as aggressive a driver as I should be but I like to compete for the sheer enjoyment of racing," she said.

Her job title as chairperson of the Mayor's Task Force on Women only hints at the work she does. "The task force has three priorities," she explained. "Economic security for women, including careers, is first. Public safety is second. To be able to walk home in the dark or drive home after a night meeting is important. Women need to unite to make their cities safe for themselves. At our last meeting, we found that 90 per cent of all the women there had come into contact with incidents of rape, pursesnatching or burglaries. Either it happened to them or they knew someone it had happened to."

Third on the task force's priority list is an area described by Mary Anne as "home and family. All of the changing patterns that create an impact on the family and efforts to assure that the family is preserved."

Mary Anne and Tom first met beside a United Press International teletype machine in the Daily Student office at Indiana University. She was the campus editor and he was the cartoonist. They have a four-year-old daughter, Meredith, described by her mother as "very construction-oriented. She can recognize every car on the street. She recognizes more tools than I did at the age of 21."

For the Butters, racing is a family sport. Mary Anne has taken two courses at Purdue University-Indianapolis in auto mechanics to acquaint herself with automotive innards.

So far Mary Anne has never won a sports car race.

"I have finished in the middle several times, sixth, seventh or eighth," she said. "Some people find it hard to believe but I really enjoy racing in the middle of the pack." But she still hopes someday to win a sports car race, and has come in third a couple times.

Prior to joining the Indianapolis mayor's staff, Mary Anne worked as a reporter for the Indianapolis Star

Lights Are Based On Storybooks

To all Santa's helpers wanting a storybook tree, the newest in midget tree light sets is "storylites."

These are special tree decorations for children. The "lights" are characters from Little Red Riding Hood, Hansel and Gretel, the Wizard of Oz.

In each set there are assorted "players" from each story. The Red Riding Hood set, for example, includes Grandma, wolf and a woodsman. The Oz set includes Tin Man, Lion, and the Straw Man.

Attendants To Groom Have Variety Of Tasks

The male contingent of the wedding party — best man and ushers — are responsible for a variety of tasks which help the wedding day go smoothly.

Staying close by the bridegroom's side is the best man's job. He holds onto the wedding ring and the clergyman's fee, until the right moments to surrender each arrive, plus he helps the bridegroom prepare for the wedding, accompanies him to the church and waits with him in the vestry.

Beside checking honeymoon reservations and transportation and overseeing various matters at the reception, the best man is also in charge of the ushers, who, among other things, escort guests to seats at the church and reception, keeping a list of guests handy. They also roll out the white carpet if one is going to be used.

'DOCTOR I HAVE A PROBLEM'

Shultz. The musical will be given five holiday season performances at the Marines' Memorial Theater in San Francisco at 10 a.m. Dec. 27, 28, 29 and 30 and at 1 p.m. Dec. 28. 'Yo-Yo' Firing Is Postponed

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (UPI) — The launching of a "yo-yo" Explorer satellite, designed to dip in and out of the earth's atmosphere from its orbit, was scrubbed last night about a half-hour from liftoff because of winds at high altitude.

A NASA spokesman said the launch was rescheduled for 10:13 p.m. PST tomorrow.

The 1,450-pound Atmosphere Explorer C satellite, aboard a Delta rocket, was to have been launched last night

Several Injured In Fuel Explosion

MANILA (UPI) — A predawn explosion ripped through a fuel tank farm in a swank Manila suburb today, touching off huge fires in two oil storage tanks and injuring more than 20 persons. The fire still was blazing at nightfall.

Reports from police and hospitals said one person was missing and 22 injured, including eight firemen and a policeman.

State Board Vetoes School Age Proposal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Board of Education yesterday went on record against lowering California's compulsory school attendance age to 14.

The National Commission on Secondary School Reform earlier this week recommended such a reduction in the age of required attendance, contending it would combat classroom boredom.

But Dr. Wilson Riles, state school superintendent, told the board, "The answer to problems of boredom by high school students is not to give up on their education, abandoning them to the streets."

"If the compulsory attendance age were lowered to 14, the result in California could mean more than 1.5 million additional teen-agers out of school," Riles said.

"That would not only be an educational tragedy, but also an economic disaster for the state's already strained job market," he added.

Currently, California students must attend school until they are 18 or receive a high school diploma. The board's resolution urged that this requirement be retained.

Riles also wanred the board to "go-slow" on the idea of switching to four-day school weeks to ease the energy shortage.

If four-day school weeks were adopted throughout the state, Riles said it would leave many working parents with the problem of what to do with their youngsters on the fifth day.

"And we also should be sure that a four-day week really would save energy," Riles said. "What about the youngster who stays at home on the fifth day and turns on the television all day. Is that saving energy?"

Legislation permitting districts to adopt four-day weeks has been proposed by Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento.

Pupils still would be required to attend classes for the same number of hours per week.

Spacecraft Looks Again At Jupiter

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pioneer 10 spacecraft lost and then rediscovered the planet Jupiter's mysterious magnetic field four times yesterday as it headed deeper into space, scientists were told.

"At Jupiter we are dealing with a huge and far out beast," project Scientist John Wolfe told the American Geophysical Union convention here. "The outer edges of the field are very soft and it's like hitting a pile of straw."

The mysteries of the planet's magnetic field, which expands and contracts like a rubber band over millions of miles, is important because of its implications for the magnetic field of earth.

The size and shape of Jupiter's field, whether it looks like a doughnut or a pancake, became controversial 10 days ago when Pioneer made its closest approach to Jupiter.

Pioneer rediscovered the elusive field yesterday 6.5 million miles from Jupiter, Wolfe said.

FAMILY

"Fiddler on the Roof" — Charming musical of the life of a Jewish dairyman in a small village in Czarist Russia who has five unmarried daughters. The girls efforts to break the tradition of arranged marriages stirs deep emotions, joyous humor and a rare insight into the lives of Jewish people.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"American Graffiti" — Filmed in Marin County, story is just one night's activities in 1962 in the lives of four boys. Some suggestive sex scenes and scruffy language.

"Harold and Maude" — A comedy about a rich, confused, suicidal young man who is shown the more positive side of life by an 80 year-old woman. He finally decides to marry her.

"Lady Ice" — Sophisticated crime caper about an unorthodox insurance investigator and a woman "fence" for stolen jewels. Their romance calls for serious decisions by both of them. Cursing, violence and nudity.

"Man of La Mancha" — A musical within a play. A playwright is jailed by the Spanish Inquisition. A kangaroo court of his peers inspires him to stage a fantasy play with other prisioners as the cast. Lengthy but engrossing, some sex scenes.

"Paper Moon" — Sophisticated drama recreating the 1930s. A salesman-con-artist agrees to deliver a 9 year-old orphan girl to an aunt. The child is tough, smokes and swears and outswindles her mentor. Sophisticated, violence and sex.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only

"Charley Varrick" — Small-time bank robber inadvertently steals nearly a million dollars of Mafia money. His efforts to escape their wrath makes for a suspenseful drama. Violence, salty dialogue and suggestive sex sequences.

"Executive Action" — A curiously antiseptic film based on the festering controversy of the assassination of John F. Kennedy, neglects to offer any coherent, convincing proof of theory. (Catholic Film Newletter).

LIFE AFLOAT — Scott Diamond (left) rows away from the old dredger Golden Gate berthed next to the abandoned drydocks in the middle of Richardson Bay. Unable to find a hospitable shore in Marin, he must ferry in this fashion everything needed to sustain life aboard. Before leaving (center), he receives from shipmate Sharol Shoemake the water bottle that must be filled ashore. Later (right), he fixes a bite to eat amid the clutter that results from having to devote all energy to making the vessel seaworthy. (Photos by Jim Kean)

FACES LEGAL ACTION

Life On Leaky Houseboat Trifle Tough, Says Owner

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Scott Diamond says he's no criminal, even if Marin County authorities treat him like one.

His only offenses, he maintained yesterday, are his economic condition — poor — and his lifestyle — living aboard the ponderous dredger Golden Gate.

"The board of supervisors looks at things from a middle-class point of view," he said, "Like everyone wants to, or should, live in a heated house on a hill."

Diamond, 23, was to face a jury trial yesterday on a charge that he failed to get a permit for his floating home.

The Golden Gate, which Diamond and three friends call home, was declared a nuisance by supervisors in October after Diamond beached it on mudflats at Strawberry Point to repair the 350-ton vessel's leaking bottom.

Some residents of Strawberry Point declared the dredger an eyesore and its residents "hippies" looking for a free place to live. Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said houseboats have turned Richardson Bay into "a doggone garbage dump . . . a cancer in the heart of Marin."

Supervisors gave Diamond until Dec. 11 to get his boat off Strawberry Point or they would contract to have it destroyed. On Monday, a day before the deadline, the Golden Gate was towed — at Diamond's expense — off the beach to the drydocks in Richardson Bay, themselves a target of public and private anger as a blot on the bay.

Yesterday, skies like slate broke into rain after threatening all morning but the natural gloom and the legal gloom hanging over the Golden Gate failed to dampen the activity on board.

Life on a 49-year-old dredger in Richardson Bay is tough but Diamond is resolute that life there will go on, at least until he finds an alternative place to go.

"They are trying to single us out, to make an example of us, but we are not going to give up to them," he vowed.

And while court battles proceed there is work to be done. Diamond and friend Mike Shoemake, 20, were busy collecting discarded tires to use as cushions between the 78-foot-long dredger and the drydocks.

Beside the Golden Gate was the houseboat Delight, whose owners also have received abatement notices from the county.

Christmas is coming and even at the drydocks there is a tree — positioned in a corner of the combination galley and living room on the top story of the two-story Golden Gate — with brightly wrapped presents beneath it.

Light is supplied by oil-burning lamps (there is no electricity) and a potbelly stove makes a dent in the chill of winter days and nights on the bay.

Hot water is a luxury that comes only when heated on a propane cookstove and drinking water must be carried in bottles from the shore.

There are two bedrooms choked with plants nurtured by Laura Ward, 26, another resident, and a makeshift greenhouse on the deck.

Sewage goes directly into the bay, just as it does from the hundreds of houseboats on the Sausalito waterfront and beyond.

Diamond is a boat carpenter with plans to make the cavernous bottom story of the dredger into a workshop. Shoemake owns a truck and earns money scrapping. Miss Ward and Sharol Shoemake, 24, clean houses for a living, but on this day Mrs. Shoemake was home recovering from dental work.

"Supervisor Wornum and his wife came by Monday to see that we got off," she said. "When his wife saw the dredger she just started laughing like it was the ugliest thing in the world. But those apartments on Strawberry are ugly to me.

"A lady from another newspaper told us the rich people think we like to live with no hot water or other comforts. But we've got to get the bottom fixed first, then we can work on the rest."

Families on the Golden Gate plan to refurbish the dredger and brighten it with a coat of paint — yellow — install a wind-powered generator for electricity and chemical or compost toilets. There is a water heater and stove that will work after some repairs.

The bottom was not completely patched during the Golden Gate's six-month sojourn on Strawberry point. A bilge pump must labor 30 minutes a day.

"I don't want to stay here too long," said Diamond. "What I want to do is get it out of the water and fixed."

Once the dredger can be trusted on the sea, Diamond says, it will be towed up the Sacramento or San Joaquin rivers, where there are no ocean insects or worms to eat at the bottom.

But the nuisance abatement action and criminal action by the county demands that the Golden Gate leave Marin County waters. "We are not interested in putting the man in jail," said marine inspector Richard L. Larson. "All we want is compliance. If we don't get it, then we'll have to proceed with the abatement action, removal and demolition."

Cost estimate to destroy the Golden Gate has been reduced from $11,500 to $5,000, according to Larson. With that kind of money, Diamond says, he could fix the dredger to meet county codes.

If he is forced to leave it will be after spending most of his life on the waterfront. At 8, he lived with his parents in the Spreckel's boat house near Gate 5, where the Golden Gate was berthed until it moved into hot water at Strawberry Point.

His lifestyle, he says, has been practiced by waterfront people for a century.

"The policy is to leave everyone alone until sewer hookups are installed," Diamond said, referring to a two-year county plan to force cleanup of houseboat marinas. "But it hasn't come to that and to single me out is, what's the word . . . persecution?"

Marin Dining And Wining

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Peacock Gap Is Now Offering A New Experience In Dining

Golf and country clubs have been a party of the American way of life for nearly a hundred years.

Scotland has had its version of them twice that long. They were, of course, the outgrowth of a quaint practice of whacking around a little ball with as few whacks as possible first popularized by the Scots in the 15h Century.

Early clubs were quite exclusive — probably had to be, so dignified players who took too many whacks could work out safely guarded from the critical and sometimes contemptuous scrutiny of the general public.

But the public retaliated by opening municipal golf courses. Eventually so many people became good players, a number of clubs began to relax their restrictions. Others were organized to allow nonmembers to play and thus capture extra revenue in green fees. Some, like Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club in San Rafael, went further and built big dining and banquet areas and lounges, large enough to accommodate several times their membership.

Facilities like this cost money and have to be put in use to justify their existence. They require serving good food and good people to prepare it. Peacock Gap has always done a bustling business in banquets and I am told that last month topped all previous records.

But what can be done in large scale production, can also be done with small orders if there are enough of them — and there are blank spaces between banquets. So Peacock Gap, which for some time has been catering to individuals only for lunches, is now doing so with dinners. Food facilities are handled in the manner of a high class restaurant and this public operation is now known as the Terrace Room.

The American dining public always has and probably always will favor going out to eat on weekends. It's a hard habit to break. Some restaurants actually lose money during the middle of the week, but feel they have to remain "available."

So until proven feasible, the Terrace Room isn't even considering serving dinners on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. It's practical. You may have noticed that a few other restaurants have cut down on mid-week service or eliminated it. Nothing is so discouraging as a half-empty dining room.

WITH A VIEW — Mrs. Clark Young, dining room manager, ponders a reservations question in the newly decorated dining room at the Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club. The club's new owners have given the dining area a name — the Terrace Room.

But there's a good chef — Mark Wyman — and a good menu for Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, for lunches throughout the week and breakfasts on Saturdays and Sundays.

Along with steaks, tournedos, veal Oscar, lamb chops, stroganoff, coq au vin, frog legs, prime rib, brochettes and about seven seafood selections for dinner, Mark is also turning out three Japanese entree specialties — sukiyaki, beef teriyaki and yukitori, not to mention tempura and sashimi among the appetizers.

Redecorating has taken place here recently under the new owners. The interior has a lighter and cheerier look.

Reservations are now in order for New Year's Eve. Dinners, served from 7 p.m., offer a choice of prime rib, New York steak or lobster thermidor. The $40 per couple also includes party favors, music and dancing.

YOU MIGHT HAVE EXPECTED this to happen.

Once people found out about the new La Chaumiere in San Anselmo it was bound to draw a big flurry of customers. And it appears likely the flurry will become a regular on weekends.

As a result, owners Georges and Dedee Lebugle have to ask that advance reservations for dinner be made on Friday and Saturday nights. There just aren't enough tables to accommodate everyone.

You probaby can still get by without making them on Wednesday and Thursday nights, but a reservation for this type of place is always a good idea.

APPARENTLY A SURE THING — the new Tortola restaurant at Second and G streets, San Rafael (where West End Villa and Medallion used to be located) will open Tuesday.

Both lunches and dinners will be served. Day of closing is Monday. Tortola will not be open on Christmas.

From what I could see with all the work going on, the place will look sharp. Mario Gaidano is responsible for the decor.

ONE PLACE that does plan to open for Christmas dinner (if there are enough customers to justify it) is the Four-Sixty-Four Magnolia in downtown Larkspur. Every year it's a day of closing for most eating places. You should call and make reservations a week in advance — that means by next Tuesday.

Entrees will include a choice of braised ham with Madeira sauce, roast goose stuffed with apples, prunes, fruit and nuts and prime rib. Along with them will be oysters wrapped in bacon, cream of leek soup, green beans with mushrooms and water chestnuts, braised turnips, roast new potatoes, spiced pears with pomegranate, watercress and mushroom salad, monte blanc with walnuts and coffee. Service will start about 4 p.m.

Make a party of it and save cooking at home.

LE CAMEMBERT at 200 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley has decided to put on a special 10 p.m. dinner menu for New Year's Eve — complete with those French overtones for which this restaurant has become so popular.

Price is $14 per person and this includes party favors, music and dancing. You" have to make reservations well in advance, even though Le Camembert is by no means a small place. When you phone you can also get complete information on the menu.

COMES THAT TIME of year next week when La Petite Auberge in San Rafael opens its doors at noon for the annual party of the SPPEC — otherwise known as the Society for the Preservation and Protection of Executive Secretaries.

I don't know that executive secretaries feel they need protection (unless maybe it's from their bosses) but apparently their bosses believe they do. Possibly it's because business would go downhill without them. Anyway, this is their day and do they make the most of it — for about three hours.

END YOUR MEAL at Lark Creek Inn, Larkspur (lunch or dinner) with "country coffee." It's a new creation by assistant manager Don Walker.

Meetings Scheduled On Launching Water Project

The Sonoma County Water Agency has set a series of meetings and hearings aimed at finally getting started with the aqueduct project to bring water from the Russian River, the Petaluma Water Commission learned last night.

Other agencies, including Petaluma and the North Marin Water District, which will contract for some of the water will meet with the Sonoma agency.

The first meeting will be at 10 a.m. Monday at the water agency office in Santa Rosa and the project status, financing and contracts with users will be reviewed.

On Jan. 7 at 7 p.m. in the board of supervisors' chambers in Santa Rosa, the agency will hold a public hearing on the environmental impact report for the aqueduct project.

On Jan. 9 agency officials hope to formulate final contracts with all the users.

North Marin Water District residents in 1970 approved a bond issue for an intertie to the aqueduct system. A similar project for the Marin Municipal Water District was turned down by voters last month.

Santa To Visit Sausalito Tots

Santa Claus will hear children's Christmas requests beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday in front of Vina Del Mar Park in Sausalito, according to the Sausalito Youth Center.

Signs Encouraging On Bald Eagle Population

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Will the day come when bald eagles — the national bird — can be found only in zoos?

Although there is no clear answer to the fate of this endangered species, the experts are coming up with some encouraging evidence that the noble birds may escape extinction in their wild habitat.

Once plentiful on the East and West coasts, the whiteheaded, black-bodied eagles with wingspans of up to eight feet have fallen prey in recent years to pesticide — poisoned foods, human encroachment on nesting sites, poisoned bait, electrocution on power lines, and hunters. Protection by federal and state laws has proved ineffectual.

The Interior Department's first eagle census, completed last spring, indicates that at least 1,000 pairs nest in the United States south of the Canadian border, some 250 more pairs than previously estimated. However, officails of the Audubon Society — a leader in the crusade to save the bald eagle — claim this represents a more extensive beak count rather than a real increase in eagle population.

"We're dealing with birds with a longevity of 20 to 30 years, so it's too early to make any correlation between the ban on the use of DDT and any increase in eagle reproduction," said Richard Paul, an Audubon research biologist. "Such information just doesn't exist yet."

Eagles ingest DDT and other pesticides with their food, 90 per cent of which is fresh water fish, to the extent that residues in the birds sometimes is a million times that found in the environment. High level residues causes eagles' eggs to be infertile or kills the developing embryo. Eggs also develop unusually thin shells that are broken easily during incubation.

In Maine, where DDT residues tend to disappear slowly in the cold soil, authorities counted 29 eagles' nests in use but found only eight eaglets. By contrast in warmer California, 19 nests contained 24 chicks, an average of 1.26 per nest.

"We feel this level of productivity is satisfactory to maintain the population as it now exists," said Robert Malette, biologist for the California Department of Fish and Game, who also stressed it will be a few years before experts can declare the eagle's decline halted.

Fortunately, the level of DDT in fresh water fish has declined sharply, and young eagles are expected to be much freer of residue than older birds. But tremendous damage already has been done, according to all research sources.

National Audubon Research director Alexander Sprunt IV believes the eagle population in some areas — notably parts of Florida, Maine, Chesapeake Bay and the Great Lakes — has declined as much as 50 to 90 per cent in the past 20 years.

The Interior Department's survey of the largest eagle populations showed 300 to 400 pairs in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan, 350 pairs in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and Florida, and 100 pairs in Oregon and Washington. In the Lake Erie region, there are only seven known breeding pairs and they produced only one eaglet this year.

Malette said the California eagle population of about 50 pairs has held steady for two years and biologists are "optimistic" about the species holding its own unless human activity causes wholesale relocation of nesting sites.

"If these activities continue, they may cause a significant decline in the population by preventing birds from sustaining themselves," he said. "In some cases disturbances at the nest will cause chicks to starve to death when adult birds won't come in to feed them. Where nests are on public land, we work closely with public land agencies to make them as disturbance free as possible."

For nests on private lands, he said, the department has asked owners, such as loggers, to modify their land use practices near nests. In certain cases, the department's protection efforts may include acquiring the property immediately around the nest area. In addition, warnings are issued to the public that persons shooting eagles are subject to a fine of $1,000 or one year in jail, or both.

Zoos are not the answer to the preservation of the species because eagles do not breed well in captivity. Only one instance of successful breeding — more than 50 years ago in the Buffalo, N.Y., zoo — was recorded until last February when an eaglet was hatched at the Crandon Park Zoo in Miami, Fla. Another was hatched in May at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C.

Reasonable Search Ruling By Highest Court

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
30 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1973 EDITORIAL PAGE

It is a slow process, but bit by bit the U.S. Supreme Court seems to be restoring some reasonableness to law enforcement.

The latest step was the high court's 6-3 decision Tuesday that it is legal for law enforcement officers to search any person who has been legally arrested, and that evidence found in such a search is admissable in court.

Offhand, these would appear such patently obvious assumptions that they could be taken for granted. But they have not been so for some years. A long series of decisions by lower courts have resulted in thousands of criminals being turned loose either after trial or without facing trial because evidence was uncovered in a search conducted without a warrant.

IT SHOULD BE obvious that there is great difference between searching the person of someone who has been arrested with probable cause and invading the premises or searching the person of someone else who has not been cited for any crime. But court decisions have not only blurred but largely eliminated the distinction.

Almost any police officer can cite cases where he has been forced to release a guilty person because the evidence he found was inadmissible under these search-and-seizure decisions.

A particularly ridiculous case that comes to mind occurred a few years ago in Marin County. A man arrested on another charge was being booked into the county jail. In accordance with jail rules, his belt was removed — a precaution against violence and suicide attempts. The jailor noticed that the belt buckle was actually a thick case snapped shut. Opening it, he found several illegal drug capsules. The man accordingly was charged with drug possession. But when the case was taken to court, the judge threw it out on the ground that such a search was illegal.

The judge threw out the case because he feared reversal, in view of the long series of search-and-seizure decisions — and the lack of a definitive ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court.

TUESDAY'S decision, written by Justice William H. Rehnquist, puts the matter clearly: "It is the fact of lawful arrest which establishes the authority to search."

The dissenting opinion, by Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Thurgood Marshall, actually made the case for the majority decision.

The dissenters objected to "departure from our long tradition of case-by-case adjudication of the reasonableness of searches." It was that case-by-case approach which made it impossible for police to know where they stood, and clogged the courts with needless appeals.

Further, objected the dissenters: "It is the role of the judiciary, not of police officers, to delimit the scope of the exceptions to the warrant requirement."

That is exactly what the judiciary — six men on its highest bench — did in Tuesday's decision.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON: 'Thinking Small'

WASHINGTON — Common sense says that in attacking the energy shortage in the years ahead, we should move into the future instead of digging deeper into the past. But there is strong resistance — understandably from the industries that have a colossal investment in doing things the way they used to be done, but also from well-intentioned specialists who are freighted with pessimism.

Because the whole problem cannot be defeated by shifting to new energy sources tomorrow, some argue that there is no point in gradually substituting them for the old, destructive, polluting and rapidly diminishing fossil fuels. It is one of those cases where the American insistence on thinking big turns into an obstacle to getting the job done.

AT HAND is a letter from Ralph O. Kehle, a geology professor at the University of Texas, whose further expertise is suggested by his chairmanship of the Geothermal Survey of North America and his associate chairmanship of the University Committee for Energy Research.

Dr. Kehle says he shares my enthusiasm for accelerated development of clean, nondestructive sources — but:

Geothermal energy plants take 12 to 15 years to put on line, and are not so clean as people think. If a Texas oil field were as dirty and unsightly as the geothermal field south of Mexicali, Mexico, the Texas Railroad Commission would shut it down immediately and heavily fine the operators, he said.

As for solar energy, Kehle maintains that a solar-electrical device creates only half enough current to pay for its own cost before it wears out. Some other Texas specialists tell him it takes more energy to produce a solar cell than the cell produces in its lifetime. "Clearly a losing battle," he argues.

His conclusion is that solar, geothermal and nuclear fusion systems together will not produce a major share of our energy until the second half of the next century — and it is unlikely that any of them will supply a measurable percentage of our needs before the turn of this century.

"Consequently, whether we like it or not, we will have to rely on conventional energy sources for the next 25 to 75 years," Kehle declares. By "conventional," of course, he means oil, gas and coal.

BUT THE NATIONAL Science Foundation's estimate of geothermal heat is that its cost is competitive, it is environmentally clean — and that by 1985 it will be producing 132 million kilowatts of electricity in this country. Not surprisingly, that prediction is downgraded by the National Petroleum Council, which says the figure then will not exceed one per cent of U.S. power. As always, it is wise to consider the source.

The best example I know of experts who are going ahead, rather than playing the same old record about "It Can't Be Done," is in Maryland, just outside Washington, where two scientists who came to America after the Hungarian revolution of 1956 have left the Communications Satellite Corp. to strike out in solar energy on their own.

They are Joseph Lindmayer and Peter Varadi, whose Solarex firm makes no pretense of solving all the country's energy problems overnight. But they have applied their space background to producing a solar-electric cell more efficient than any other yet devised, and readied it for remote applications such as ocean buoys, oil platforms, fire towers and irrigation pumps.

They say most current estimates about solar energy's future are wrongly based on its cost in the space program, where money was virtually unlimited and standards of near-perfection were imposed. The silicon cell they have refined has a theoretically infinite life, thus outdating Kehle's statements about the ratio of cost to energy produced.

Varadi insists that pessimistic forecasts about solar energy today are parallel to such talk about nuclear energy in 1944. These scientists predict that with a serious government commitment to its development, solar energy will account for a "measurable percentage" of building heating in only five to 10 years, and solar cells will make such a dent in electricity output in no more than 15 years.

THE DECISION to proceed in these new fields must be based on today's data, not yesterday's — and on the elementary economic fact that the more new units the country builds, the less each costs. It also must recognize a worthwhile goal in cleanly filling a tiny percentage of the total energy demand today, then a steadily growing proportion in each year ahead.

We have come to a situation where the country needs some farsighted men who are not afraid to think small.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

'Operation Candor' Not Candid Enough; President Nixon Remains Secretive

WASHINGTON — The only candid report which can be made on the state of the presidency is this:

1 — The fact that the nation now has in Gerald Ford a respected and acceptable vice president is not feeding the flames for Richard Nixon's resignation or impeachment. Ford is an asset to the president and improves the prospect that he will remain in office.

2 — But Mr. Nixon is in deepening trouble and only he can extricate himself from it."Operation Candor" has not been candid enough and the president has not begun to restore his credibility significantly. This is not just the reaction of Mr. Nixon's opponents. It is evident that there is a gathering consensus of those who wish him well that time is running out and that the president has not yet embraced the way to restore trust and confidence in his presidency.

MOST AMERICANS earnestly want to consider Mr. Nixon innocent unless proved guilty, but something new has been added to the state of mind I find in many quarters friendly to the president. The feeling now is that the president must produce evidence to clear himself and that he cannot simply wait for some court, judicial or political, to report that there is no conclusive evidence to the contrary.

Too many valid doubts have been raised, not by hostile arguments alone but by events, and it is clear that Mr. Nixon has not yet done enough to erase them in the public mind —and public opinion will determine the president's fate.

I am not saying that the worst is inevitable. I am saying that nearly everything which the president has done and said since the Watergate offenses began to surface has been so tardy and reluctant that now only heroic frankness can arrest the adverse tide.

THE INSTANT REACTION to the swearing in of Gerald Ford was that, since the country now has a suitable vice president, Republican senators and congressmen who are up for election next year would press for Mr. Nixon's resignation.

There is some talk to that effect, but it is lessening, not increasing. One reason is that Ford is taking exactly the opposite line and he carries weight with his Republican colleagues. He is making it clear that Mr. Nixon has no intention of resigning and that under any circumstances he can see President Nixon will be an asset in the congressional elections.

Ford contends that GOP candidates will be wise to stand with the president, and that in any event the Republican congressmen should be willing to stand up and be counted if impeachment proceedings come to a vote in the House. Ford's view is that impeachment would be defeated by a majority vote at its first test.

THE CENTRAL REASON why the president is in trouble may well be that the proclaimed more open administration is not coming to pass. Things seem to be run as secretively as ever, with Mr. Nixon continuing to isolate himself.

The president rarely allows his aides or his other top officials to deal with him face to face.

Former Colorado Gov. John Love, who resigned the governorship to accept appointment as White House energy chief, says he was never able to talk with Mr. Nixon alone.

The president's constitutional lawyer reveals that White House aides permitted him to state in court that Mr. Nixon would "comply in full" with the subpoena for tapes, though they knew before he gave this assurance to the court that two of the tapes were missing but didn't tell him.

Earlier Nixon fired Interior Secy. Walter Hickel rather than confer with him face to face, and Governor Love experienced the same thing.

It is this kind of insulation which, I believe, led to most of the Watergate crimes, without anyone saying "Stop, this is wrong."

Court's Reapportionment Good — Except In Spots

By RUS WALTON

Better later than never, I guess.

The State Supreme Court, in the closing days of November, finally issued the boundaries for the state's new legislative districts.

That reapportionment job is supposed to be done every 10 years, right after the completion of the federal census. It should have been completed and announced back in 1971.

But some of the legislators let their greed lead to gross gerrymandering. They put personal ambitions, partisan power plays, and incumbency ahead of the voters' best interests.

That's when the courts stepped in.

BASICALLY, THE COURT'S design is pretty good. In the main it puts the interests of the citizens first, as it should. Reapportionment is for the people, not the politicians.

The court did mess things up on several scores.

For one thing, there will be districts here and there throughout the state without direct representation in the State Senate from January 1975 to January 1977: parts of Los Angeles and Orange counties, Sen. Fred Marler's Second District in northern California, and parts of the Great Central Valley.

Come 1975, those senatorial districts will be kaput and the folks in them will be represented until 1977 by senators they do not know and never voted for.

That's bad.

Some folks who voted for a state senator in 1970 will not vote on that race again until 1976. But, some of the folks who voted for a state senator in 1972, will vote again in 1974, and again in 1976.

IT ALL COMES to pass because the court decreed the constitutional guarantee of four-year terms for state senators should have precedence.

The court said nothing about the constitutional guarantee that citizens have a right to vote for the state senator who will represent them at least once every four years.

What the court did was to put the interests of the politicians ahead of the interests of the people.

It did it again when it kicked the one-year residency requirement in the head. That's the section of the Constitution that says a candidate must live in the district for at least one year before election day.

The court waived that requirement. It gave candidates until Jan. 28, 1974, to move into their "new" districts. That may be convenient for incumbents who must relocate, but show me — where does it say that the Supreme Court has the right to waive the Constitution on anything? Only the people can do that.

BUT, EVEN WITH THESE baddies, the court's plan is better than the one that greedy legislators tried to ram down our throats.

The way to solve this problem, and to prevent this confusion in the future, is to get the hen house far away from the legislative foxes.

Put reapportionment in the hands of a citizens' committee, an independent commission backed by a professional staff, complete computer data, and a list of strict dictums — including voter equity and preservation of community interests.

Such a reform measure should be placed on the ballot well before 1980.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14, 1963

Three "amateurs" were arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the kidnaping of Frank Sintra Jr. The FBI said most of $240,000 random paid for the 19-year-old youth's return had been recovered.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev announced plans to reduce the USSR's military forces.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14, 1953

A 53-day strike of United Auto Workers against North America Aviation Co. was settled as the union accepted the same offer made before the walkout.

A Bay Area shortage of milk because of a strike against companies manufacturing cardboard milk cartons was not expected to affect Marin.

Giacomini's Aide Won't Run For Council

There has recently been some conjecture in the press as to my running for San Anselmo City Council.

It is true that I have considered running, and to that end I have talked to various citizens of San Anselmo, whose opinion I value, regarding my candidacy. Their comments were thoughtful and to a great extent positive.

I have thought about this decision at great length, and have come to the conclusion that if I made the decision to run for council and were elected, it would create a conflict of interest with my present position as county administrative aide, if not legally, certainly politically, and would thus dilute any effectiveness I might have in either position.

My decision, therefore, became one of either staying in my present job or leaving my county job and running for city council.

I have decided to stay in my present job. I believe that I can make a contribution to the City of San Anselmo as a private citizen, while working in my job as a county administrative aide, a position I believe in and respect . . .

I would like to thank everyone who encouraged me to run for the council, and I look forward to doing whatever I can as a private citizen for San Anselmo.

Marin Infant Center Story Appreciated

I would like to extend our thanks to Joan Lisetor and your newspaper for the fine article which appeared in the Dec. 6 issue describing the Marin Infant Center, a program of the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center. The coverage you provided has brought much interest from the community and as a result a number of families with infants under two will be served in this program.

We thank you for your continued support of our program and the coverage you have provided since its inception. We hope to look to you in the future for continued advocacy for children and their families.

President Has No 'God-Given Task'

In answer to a letter printed on Dec. 10, in which reference was made to President Nixon's "God-given task":

It seems to me that Mr. Noxon received his mandate from the electorate of the United States of America, and therefore is responsible to the people of this country for his administration of that office.

Undoubtedly, there are still many people who want Mr. Nixon to continue in office, but there are many others, perhaps even a majority, who feel that his capacity to govern is seriously enough in question to warrant impeachment proceedings against him.

I don't consider myself an atheist, and I believe in "brotherly love and understanding," too, but I don't believe that any president of the United States governs by "divine right." That was a prerogative of royalty, and should have gone out when King John of England signed the Magna Charta in 1215.

While this country's government may operate under God, the elected officials who run it are still answerable to the people they govern, in my opinion.

Commuters Soaked By Bus Re-routing

Tuesday morning the rains came and the wind blew and Novato commuters by the dozen . . . got half soaked before they could get aboard a bus. Standing on street corners on Novato Boulevard, where there is no shelter at all, no warmth, no rest rooms, no telephones, and no ticket office, they, clad in raincoats, hoods, boots, and umbrellas did their best to try and keep dry until they could get on a bus to get to work in San Francisco. Because that is where they have to catch the Route 54 buses now that they have rerouted away from the stops on Grant Avenue and the Greyhound Bus Depot where they have picked up since the start.

Some people not brave enough to stand in the downpour came to the depot on Redwood Highway and Grant Avenue to catch one of the buses from Santa Rosa. They waited and waited as bus after bus either did not stop at all or stopped and announced standing room only. They all finally got on something, whether it was going where they wanted to go or not. At least it was going to San Francisco.

In the meantime Golden Gate Transit, ignoring the many protests since mid-November of the rerouting, sat back and ignored the whole thing. Plans go forward to waste millions on ferry boats, which will do the commuters of Novato and all North Marin no good at all . . . instead of expanding the bus service to the point it should be.

In the beginning Golden Gate Transit said, "We are going to pick up the people where it will be most convenient for them." Bahh!

Marin Transit District is trying to get Golden Gate Transit to route the buses back where they were, so far to no avail.

KENNETH WEHRING

Maybe Marin Public Transit Could Be Sold As Money-Saver

Let's have a try at exploring Marin Transit Mgr. Ray Foreaker's several plans to tax Marin folks to pay for buses to be used in intra-county service. He indicated that any method or methods selected by the transit district directors should be submitted to a vote of the people.

He suggested a half-cent additional sales tax, also registration fees ranging from $10 for one vehicle to $150 for five garaged at the same address.

Then there has been some thought by the directors that at the June election the present tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation be increased to 25 cents.

Wornum preferred a sales tax of 20 cents a gallon on gasoline. Arrigoni pushed for a county income tax and wanted the staff to explore the legality.

THE HALF-CENT SALES tax would raise $2.2 million a year and the county registration fee would bring another $1.9 million, while 25 cents on $100 valuation would raise $1.75 million.

To me it seems that the registration fee is a dangerous move. Next there could be a registration tax on a sewing machine, a clothes washer or dryer, or what have you.

It also seems to me that we are going to be forced to change our county's historical use of private individual transit to a public one. Unlike the East Bay we never had street cars before the advent of the horseless carriage. They have just naturally grown into the public transit they now enjoy. Not so here.

I BELIEVE that if the supervisors will put the expensive data processing department to work on this we will find the cost of good public transit for the intra-county service will be no more and possibly less than the use of the auto — even the smaller models.

Then there is the shadow of restrictive gas allocation to reckon with. Darn it! I guess we have been living a little too high on the hog and the party's over.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Could Richardson Bay Ducks Be Termed "Attractive Nuisances'?

I have received several calls since an article I wrote about some Belvedere residents' dismay over duck hunting in Richardson Bay.

One man wanted to know whom he could contact to begin action to get duck shooting in the bay outlawed. He has a sailboat and he doesn't want buckshot fraying his spinnaker.

Another fellow, a hunter, good-naturedly pointed out that there are two sides to the story and I only told one. What about the revenues from hunting licenses that go to feeding ducks he asked.

He informed me that the issue takes a different form, depending on what side of the trigger you happen to be standing. Those boats scare all the ducks away, he complained. Why don't we outlaw them?

MY OWN SOLUTION is simple: ban ducks from the bay. Lodge nuisance abatement actions against them and send them packing back to Saskatchewan or wherever they came from. If they won't go before spring, drag them into court for failure to obtain occupancy permits. It's time to quackdown, er, crackdown on freeloaders in this county.

I can see the headlines now: "Duck Bill Passes Supervisors — Mallards Picket Civic Center."

Another solution would be to allow hunting, but only if it is done underwater. I can see the headlines: "Submarine Fires Nike Missile — Duck Pierced."

SPEAKING OF RICHARDSON Bay, it was a pleasant surprise to see that residents of the embattled dredger Golden Gate, lashed to the infamous drydocks, still installed a Christmas tree in their living quarters even if life for them during Christmas '73 means legal hassles with the county over their occupation of Marin waters.

Speaking of Christmas, I overheard this little quip uttered by a harried Marin housewife trapped in the frustrations of the season: "If I'm told one more time that I'm trying to be a martyr, I'm going to kill myself."

First Family Has Mailed Out 50,000 Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just like millions of other Americans, President and Mrs. Nixon send cards at Christmas—50,000 of them to be exact.

The White House mailed the cards, which feature a reproduction of a White House engraving as it looked in 1848, yesterday. They went to foreign heads of state, foreign and U.S. diplomats, government dignitaries, friends and close supporters of the Nixon.

Drawn by August Kollner, the cards contain a view of the north portico as seen from Lafayette Square. They are on a background of Christmas red with gold undertones.

The greeting on the inside, printed in black and engraved in black script on white vellum, reads: "With all best wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year—the President and Mrs. Nixon."

Girls Are Taking Longer To Grow

LONDON (UPI) — Nowadays, teenyboppers are taking longer to grow up, said gynecologist Dr. Thomas Dann.

In 1959, the average English girl reached womanhood at the age of 13, and now it is 13.2 years, he said.

Writing in the Nursing Times, he said he believes the age at which girls grow into women goes in 150-year cycles, and it is now on an upswing.

State Receives Bay Land Title

SACRAMENTO (AP) — More than 900 acres on San Francisco Bay have been transferred to state ownership, says Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor announced yesterday he signed transactions with Mobil Oil Estates for 132 acres of frontage along a five-mile stretch of Redwood Peninsula. In addition, Mobil Oil donated 800 acres of Bair Island.

In a statement, Reagan said the shoreline area is ideal for hiking, fishing, boating and other recreation. Bair Island is inhabited by various forms of endangered wildlife.

"These transactions have eliminated costly litigation, and guarantee that a significant portion of the Bay area is to be reserved for the people of California," Reagan said.

No Lights On Capitol's Tree

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time in decades, the Christmas tree in the state Capitol has no lights.

Instead of colorful light bulbs, the huge tree is adorned with 100 paper angels.

Gov. Ronald Reagan asked cub scouts to make the angels for the tree, which was placed in the Capitol's east wing for the first time because the century old west wing has been deemed unsafe if an earthquake should strike.

Businesses Planning To Hire More Women

CHICAGO (UPI) — A report based on information from 196 companies throughout the nation said yesterday that employers show plans for a significant increase in jobs for women college graduates in business and industry.

The survey was taken before development of the energy crisis, but the conductor, Frank S. Endicott, reported a sampling of 115 business firms and 66 colleges and universities attending a conference at Northwestern University indicated that the crisis made little change in employment plans.

Endicott, director-emeritus of placement at Northwestern, said the survey showed that the chances of jobs for women will increase to about one-fourth of the opportunities for men college graduates.

Of the 196 firms, 140 indicated plans to hire 54 per cent more women in 1974 than in 1973, to the point where employment will be about 24 per cent of men graduates hired, compared with 11 per cent five years ago and 7 per cent 10 years ago.

The report showed the highest demand will be for engineers and accountants. It said the demand for persons with bachelor's degrees will be up 13 per cent from 1973, and for those with master's degrees, up 10 per cent.

Jury Is Chosen In Z'berg Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A seven-woman, five-man jury has been chosen in the long-delayed drunken driving case veteran Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento.

Z'berg was present in court yesterday while his three attorneys participated in jury selection.

The lawmaker's attorneys plan to present arguments in court to challenge the validity of a prior conviction of drunken driving against Z'berg.

A second conviction in the latest case would result in a mandatory five-day jail sentence against the eight-term assemblyman.

Boston Bicentennial

Beaver II is a replica of one of the three British ships that were tied up at Griffin's Wharf that fateful night 200 years ago. On December 16, 1773, the meeting chaired by Samuel Adams broke up into angry shouts: "To Griffin Wharf!" "Boston Harbor a tea pot tonight!" Soon after, 382 chests of tea valued at 18,000 pounds were on their way into the water. The Colonists were protesting the monopoly on the colonial tea trade that Parliament gave a British company. Festivities celebrating the historic anniversary begin today in Boston and will climax Sunday, when members of the Massachusetts National Guard reenact the tea party aboard Beaver II.

DO YOU KNOW — What company was granted the colonial tea monopoly?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The comet was discovered by astronomer Lubos Kohoutek.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most Readers React Favorably To Column About Growing Old

Many readers complimented us on our column about gorwing old gracefully. In it, we offered such suggestions as seeking the company of younger people, not complaining about aches and pain, maintaining cleanliness, and taking a leisurely walk every day. One woman hoped that her 78-year-old husband would take it to heart. "Doctor, my husband does not believe in bathing. Sometimes he bathes only once a year. He embarrasses me, but if I tell him he is dirty, he gets mad."

When this man was born, frequent bathing was just coming into its own. Few people had bathing facilities. Furthermore, there was some question about the value of a bath. Some people believed that bathing removed all of the protective oils from the surface and paved the way for infections. Dirt was of secondary importance. We know now that cleanliness prevents infection and is definitely more esthetic.

BUT WE ALSO got letters from people with chips on their shoulders who misinterpreted what we said. At the end of the article, I mentioned: "Strive for preserving your ability to be self-sufficient. By the same token, accept the idea of entering an institution if it becomes necessary. Do nothing to hasten death, but remember that it is unavoidable." These are some of life's hard realities, and it is impossible to grow older without giving them some thought.

Mrs. H. G. from the Bronx went into a state of shock on reading this. "You have literally relegated all senior citizens to another world, where we smell bad, talk about our illnesses, where young people can't be annoyed with us, and where our only future is in the grave.

IN OUR CLUB, everyone comes dressed beautifully, the dance floor is always crowded, and everyone is having a hell of a good time. We are ready for life and living. So far as being with younger people — they bore us with talk about small children, bottles, diapers, and schools, etc. They show very little interest in world affairs, books, and shows."

I love this woman's attitude, even though she missed the point we tried to make. She closed her letter with "Encourage older people to get out, join clubs, and enjoy community activities." and we couldn't agree more heartily.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

NAIL SEPARATION

Mrs. L. writes: About a month ago the nail on my thumb started pulling away. Please tell me the cause and remedy.

REPLY

Nails are affected by the general condition of the body as well as by local diseases (ringworm, psoriasis) and injury. To pinpoint the cause, your nail must be examined. Our leaflet on nail disorders can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

DROPSY

S. C. writes: What is meant by retaining water in the system?

REPLY

This is a dropsical condition in which the fluid of the body is retained by the tissues in much the same way as a sponge holds water. In many instances, there is an excessive amount of salt in the tissues that attracts water. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on generalized edema.

AMENORRHEA

Miss J. Moss writes "Can constant failure to menstruate lead to insanity?

REPLY

No, considering that at least half the people in the world between the ages of 15 and 50 are not capable of this function. Menstruation is a glandular process and represents a periodic sloughing off of the inner lining of the uterus. When it does not occur, the timing mechanism is turned off and any emotional side effects are caused by anxiety or frustration. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on menstrual irregularities.

FALLOUT AND SNOW

H. C. writes: 1. What effect will radiation fallout have on children playing in the snow? 2. Should they be told not to eat it?

REPLY

1. At present there is not enough fallout to take extra precautions.

2. Eating snow, especially if it is dirty, should be discouraged.

PRESSURE MARKS

M. K. writes: It takes four hours for the pressure marks on my face to go away after I get up in the morning. Would you know why?

REPLY

These marks are more prominent when the face is puffy. As a rule, they vanish within 30 minutes. Examination is suggested because a circulatory disturbance may be delaying the flow of tissue fluids back into the general circulation.

DEATH KNELL FOR THE LINCOLN HOTEL?

Resignation Of Mailliard Seen

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, an unofficial candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District, predicted last night that the Republican incumbent will resign within weeks to force a special election.

William S. Mailliard has held the seat since 1952, but has conceded reelection would be very difficult because Supreme Court redistricting removed major segments of voters who traditionally ballot for Republicans.

A special election, however, would be held in the old district, vastly improving the chance of another Republican to be elected and have the advantage of running for reelection as an incumbent. Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, is considering making a run for the seat in the event of a special election.

Citing speculation that Mailliard will be nominated by the President for an ambassadorship, Burton also predicted the congressman would not resign until the appointment was confirmed by the Senate. "I know I wouldn't," Burton said.

Speaking before the Marin County Democratic Central Committee in the Marin Civic Center, Burton said he will make his candidacy official early next year.

The state chairman of his party, Burton said he had decided to make the switch to Congress because he was "concerned about the country — something has to be done. Congress is where I can help solve problems," he declared.

Without offering details, he pointed to his nine-year "record of accomplishment" in the state Assembly.

Anticipating objections to having a second Burton in Congress (his brother, Phillip, also represents San Francisco), the assemblyman quipped, "I offered my brother $75 to change his name, but he didn't want to do it."He added that because of his brother's ties with congressional leaders, he already knows his way around Washington.

Burton also commented variously that the energy crisis resulted because of "absolutely no planning" by government and that negotiating legislation with the Reagan administration is "like playing poker with a drunk — you just don't know what they'll do."

Returning to the prospect of a special election, Burton said "any sensible governor would call it concurrently with the (June) primary." He acknowledged the special election would give an advantage to Republicans, but said the economy will be so bad by then that Democrats will have the upper hand anyway.

(Election law requires the governor to call a special election within 14 days of when a vacancy occurs, but because it already is less than 180 days before the June primary he also can consolidate the special election with the primary.

(If he called a special election sooner, both it and a runoff, if needed, would have to be held within 91 days of his call for the election.)

(Voters in a special election ballot for anyone running, not just for those in their political party. If no one wins a majority, a runoff is held between the top vote getters in each party.

(If the special election were consolidated with the June primary, candidates would run in both the old and new district. The winner of the special election thus would be an incumbent on the November ballot.)

The 28 persons in the audience in the supervisors chambers included other announced or unofficial candidates for next year's elections, including Alan F. Reeves of San Francisco. He said there is "a clear-cut philosophical difference between" himself and Burton, but declined to answer audience questions on the differences, saying it was "not fair" to take up the audience's time with the answers.

T. V. McGuire, a San Rafael businessman, said from the audience that he is considering running for the Democratic nomination in the congressional district, which includes northern San Francisco, all of Marin and a sliver of Southern Sonoma. He said it is "time we get nonprofessional politicians," and termed himself "a citizen who is teed off and griped."

Fire Is Blamed On Cigarette

A blaze which firemen said probably was started by a cigarette left on a couch did about $4,000 damage to a Homestead Valley home this morning.

Tamalpais Fire Protection District firemen said the residents of the house, Gerry Olds and his wife, were both present when the fire began. Olds tried to put out the flames himself, firemen said, but then called the fire department at about 7 a.m.

It took about five minutes to douse the fire, which damaged the living room and left smoke damage throughout the house.

West Wing Of Capitol Off Limits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state legislature yesterday declared the historic west wing of the Capitol off limits to the public effective Jan. 1 for fear that century-old golden dome would collapse in an earthquake.

Both the Senate and Assembly, however, will continue to meet in their ornate chambers in the west wing.

Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, chairman of the Joint Rules Committee, said "personal guests" of legislators will be allowed in the rear of each chamber after they sign "a waiver of liability."

Burton also said the viewing galleries above the chambers will be closed.

Legislative employes and news media members will be permitted access to the chambers when the legislature is in session.

Burton also said live closed-circuit television transmission of the sessions of each house would be provided for the public in two hearing rooms in the east wing of the Capitol.

Burton said all service units, such as the bill room, telephone message center and state police, ere being relocated in the newer east wing.

By Jan. 1, Burton said, all public entrances to the west wing will be closed. Workers Wednesday began sealing the entrances between the two wings with sheetrock.

Burton's announcement came the same day a 40-year era of the press sharing quarters with the legislature in the Capitol ended when the last news service, United Press International, moved out.

UPI was the last of the print media to abandon the historic Capitol. Like most other news organizations, UPI moved into private offices in the Park Executive Building one block from the home of the legislature.

One resident of the west wing has refused to leave and she has a $10 billion reason to remain.

About $10 billion worth of bonds and securities owned by the state, most of them negotiable as cash, are stored in the vault of State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest.

Reagan administration officials have been unable to find another vault with the same security and capacity of her current one, and Mrs. Priest says she won't move until they do.

Also remaining in the Capitol are Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, Sen. George Moscone and Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, along with two television newsmen. They all plan to leave before Dec. 31.

Conservationists Attack Ski Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation intended to open public lands for construction of more privately owned ski resorts drew fire yesterday from spokesmen for environmentalist organizations.

The environmentalists, testifying before the House Public Lands Subcommittee, termed the legislation "a landgrab" and charged it would lead to the "destruction" of scenic mountainsides in the West.

A spokesman for the Sierra Club also suggested the bill, introduced by Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., was intended to pave the way for a huge ski and summer resort that Disney Enterprises wants to build on government land in California.

The legislation was supported by the Forest Service, spokesmen for ski operators and an official of a Denver, Colo., bank which has financed the construction of two big ski resorts.

The bill would do away with an 80-acre limitation on the amount of public land that may be leased to a commercial enterprise. It also would allow leases for up to 50 years instead of the 30 years now permitted under the law.

"This bill represents an unprecedented landgrab by commercial developers, aimed at national forest lands that belong to all of the people," said George Alderson, a spokesman for Friends of the Earth. Alderson also said it would mean "people could be required to pay a private developer for the privilege of setting foot on some of the most scenic lands in the national forest system."

Lloyd Tupling, speaking for the Sierra Club, said the bill could "lead to the destruction" of large areas in the national forest and possibly prevent public access to wilderness areas.

Tupling also charged the bill was intended to end a court fight between the Sierra Club and the government over Forest Service plans to grant a permit to Disney Enterprises for its Mineral King resort in the Sierra Nevada mountains of California.

The Sierra Club spokesman said the huge resort would be built in a scenic area citizen groups had long been trying to get added to the Sequoia National Park.

Johnson, who suffered injuries in a fall, was unable to attend. But in a statement read by an aide, the California congressman said the bill was "needed particularly for most skiing areas where 80 acres is an insufficient amount of land to develop and operate an adequate ski facility."

Associate Forest Service Chief Rexford A. Resler told the committee headed by Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., that the bill would "enhance the partnership between the Forest Service and the private sector in providing needed recreational facilities in the national forests."

"One person can look at a ski slope as a scar," Wallace said. "Someone else looks at it as recreation. Nature itself has scarred mountainsides. It's in the eyes of the beholder."

Wallace contended that ski operators were "very sensitive" to environmental values and wanted to preserve the scenery at their resorts.

Thomas W. Swanson, vice president of the United Bank of Denver, urged that the bill be passed to make it easier for resort developers to borrow money.

Swanson said his bank had provided financing to Vail Associates and the Aspen Skiing Corp., but that both had "well-established" resort operations before the loans were made.

"Under the existing Forest Service permit system, I have doubts whether our bank, without this previous experience, would undertake to finance a new and untried ski area operation," Swanson said.

The bank official said the 80-acre limitation on size and the 30-year maximum life of a permit places "serious constraints" from a lender's viewpoint.

Fire Directors Elect Alvernaz

Henry V. Alvernaz of 1048 Eighth Street, Novato, is the new chairman of the Novato Fire Protection District board, succeeding Peter J. Ferrarese, who lost his bid for reelection last month.

Joseph F. Silveira was elected vice chairman Wednesday and Richard W. Price secretary.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Poll Gauges Major Issues In Inverness

ANNE WEST

Controls on growth, the tourist industry and the family dog are needed in the view of most residents and property owners in the Inverness area who participated in a local opinion survey.

But respondents were split on a number of issues including adequacy of water supplies and sewage disposal, the need for local government or opposition to any higher local taxes.

Computer tabulations of 666 replies to about 1,200 questionnaires distributed by the Inverness Area Planning Group were recently completed by the Marin County data processing department. The area covers private lands on the west shore of Tomales Bay between Point Reyes National Seashore and Tomales Bay State Park.

Questions covered issues ranging from the need for bicycle paths (561 in support) to a proposal to encourage communal living (458 against).

A growth projection that would add 300 more dwelling units by 1990 (or less than 20 a year) found 480 opposed to a higher growth rate, with 354 replying on a separate question that even fewer additions should be allowed. Only 55 would approve a higher growth rate.

Limiting future population by limiting the amount of water available was supported by 551.

The knotty problem of deciding just who would be allowed to build was reflected as 390 agreed that "people who own lots should have the right to build on them" while 235 either disagreed or were undecided. Regulating home starts through a local plan was supported by 419, although 481 felt a special zoning study should precede a local plan.

Encouragement of the tourist industry was opposed by 537, with 533 favoring a local review board to control future tourist or business enterprises. Additional campgrounds for recreation vehicles were opposed by 541, with 425 saying daytime tourist industries are "most appropriate for the area."

A no-growth policy on auto travel also found favor, with 454 saying the number of cars entering the national seashore should be limited, 483 opposing improvements to access roads to West Marin and 409 feeling that access to West Marin park areas should be primarily by public transit.

Dogs should be locked up at night, said 570 respondents, and 463 said dogs should be chained or confined when unattended by their owners. Tighter county controls were favored by 368 respondents who outweighed 173 canine enthusiasts and 75 undecided persons.

In an area served by several different water companies and a number of private wells, three-way splits were recorded on questions relating to adequacy of present supplies or plans for the future.

Similar divisions on these and other topics with figures in parentheses showing those in agreement, disagreement or undecided on the statements made:

Water: satisfied with present water system (316-243-47); North Marin Water District should serve entire area (225-201-182); local residents should purchase watersheds and water systems (337-123-158).

Sewage: would prefer unified sewage system to present use of septic tanks (194-288-150); would favor biennial inspection of all septic tanks (284-214-127); county should encourage alternate methods of waste disposal (418-39-183).

Local government: favor local government to control water, fire, police and plannings (289-156-163).

Taxes: will oppose plans for the area that threaten to raise taxes (241-243-142). On a separate question asking how much money respondents would pay annually for purchase of open space, 308 said they would approve amounts between $30 and $50. 168 would authorize from $5 to $20, and 73 would refuse any amount.

Questionnaire results will be discussed at the next meeting of the Inverness Area Planning Group, to be held at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 4 in the Inverness School.

Prosecutor In Manson Case Seeks Office

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Deputy District Attorney Vincent T. Bugliosi, who prosecuted the Charles Manson "family" for the Sharon Tate murders, announced yesterday he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state attorney general.

Bugliosi resigned his prosecutor's post to run for district attorney this year against his boss. He lost.

Meanwhile, Irving Kanarek, Bugliosi's foe in the Tate trial as defense lawyer for Manson, filed suit against Los Angeles County yesterday for $49,150. Kanarek maintains he was appointed by the court to defend Manson, and so the county owes him his fee. The county says Kanarek was hired privately and so the bill should go to Manson, who is serving life in prison on nine convictions for first degree murder.

SUNDAY NIGHT FARE

'Menagerie' Offers Rare TV Watching

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — The most casual television watcher knows by now that Katharine Hepburn is doing her thing on the tube Sunday night in "The Glass Menagerie." So read here instead about Joanna Miles.

Her portrayal of fragile innocence gives an enchanting glow to the somewhat truncated version of the noted Tennessee Williams memory play that monopolizes the ABC television network from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. (PST) on channel 7.

Miss Hepburn centers the piece with predictable authority as a termagent Southern matriarch who hopes to win back lost gentility by manipulating the lives of her grown children.

It is not slighting her superb artistry, however, to suggest that Miss Miles exquisitely provides most of the dramatic balance that might otherwise be lacking.

The most autobiographically intimate of all Williams' works, "The Glass Menagerie" involves just four people, a natural for television's facility for reflective intimacy.

KATHARINE HEPBURN
Heads play's cast

In this David Susskind production, screened in advance for critics, the original text has been kept, although time limitations have required cuts.

Sam Waterston, who keeps growing in emotional range, enacts — as far as he is permitted — young manhood's rebellion against the rat-trap of life in a shoe warehouse.

To preserve the dramatic flow, the sponsor — IBM — has waived the usual number of interruptions for only one midway pitch.

All in all, "The Glass Menagerie" rates a rare, rewarding and unforgettable living room experience for those planning to watch it.

The Nixons Send Porcelain Figure

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Peggy Sue Wallace, soon to be married daughter of Gov. George C. Wallace, has received an engraved porcelain figurine as her wedding gift from President and Mrs. Nixon.

Although among the about 600 persons invited, the first family was not expected to attend the church wedding tomorrow of Miss Wallace and Mark Kennedy of Greenville, Ala.

Miss Wallace, 23, said the gift, identified as "Boehm's Bird of Peace," depicted a duck sitting on a lilly pond.

Warren Speaks Against Secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If anything is to be learned from Watergate, says former Chief Justice Earl Warren, it is that "we should strike at secrecy in government wherever it exists."

Speaking at a lunch yesterday where prizes were given to reporters in the name of the late columnist Drew Pearson, Warren conceded the need for some degree of confidentiality in government decision-making.

"But to recognize that fact, one need not subscribe to the bizarre contentions of the administration for boundless secrecy under the ensign of executive privilege and national security," he said. "If we are to learn from the debacle we are in, we should first strike at secrecy in government wherever it exists, because it is the incubator for corruption."

Faller Falls Upon Worker, Both Die

NEW YORK (UPI) — A construction worker fell 30 floors yesterday, landed on a co-worker and killed him. The man who fell died three hours later.

Police said they believed Robert Hanuer, 28, of Stony Brook, N.Y., may have fallen out of a harness. The other victim was Michael Pagano, 22, New York.

New Immigration Chief Plans Population Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After two weeks in office the new head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service last night deliberately set out to stir up a public controversy over how big a population the nation should have.

Leonard F. Chapman Jr., retired Marine Corps Commandant, said the nation is going to have to face that question as supplies of energy and other resources recurringly fail to meet the demands of population growth.

Chapman, an appointee of President Nixon, sworn in Nov. 29, told reporters he does not personally lean either way on the population question but pledged he will take a position soon after he studies the question.

He said the question has two sides:

The nation has an "open door" tradition, with the understanding all Americans, except Indians, are immigrants or descendants of immigrants.

At the other end of the spectrum, Chapman said, there is pressure to "haul up the gangplank" — pressure against immigration might as the supply of space and resources become scarcer.

PIRATE CLASSIC

San Marin, Drake Win

By TOM THOMPSON

San Marin High School beat Terra Linda last night, 51-46, in the Drake Pirate Classic to score the basketball tournament's second major upset in opening round play.

And host Drake, heavily favored and defending tourney champion, just barely escaped the clutches of another upset by beating Napa, 57-54, in the evening's second game.

The victories last night, coupled with San Rafael and Novato wins Wednesday, make the championship bracket an all-Marin affair for the first time in the nine-year history of the event, according to tournament director Carl (Red) Brown.

Semi-final action was to begin this afternoon with Ells (2-3) of Richmond playing Petaluma (4-1) at 4 p.m. and Terra Linda (2-3) taking on Napa (1-5) at 5:30 for shots at the consolation title. Championship play starts at 7 p.m. with Novato (4-0) going against San Rafael (2-3) and continues at 8:30 with San Marin (3-3) against Drake (5-1).

San Marin led all the way in its surprising win over Terra Linda, and seemingly had the game on ice at the end of the third quarter with a 42-28 lead. The Mustangs stretched that edge even further before Terra Linda rallied back into the game.

The Trojans chipped away at the deficit and trailed by four with one minute left to play. However, a lane violation and a traveling call hurt Terra Linda's chances and the Mustangs took control again.

"I thought we played a real good ball game except in the fourth quarter," said San Marin coach Andy Frauenhofer. "I made substitution mistakes when I thought the game was under control."

Guard Dave Harris, a 5-foot-7 senior, led the Mustangs with 19 points, scoring 15 in the third quarter when his team seemed to be breaking the game open.

Senior guard Rick Herbert sank two free-throws with 28 seconds left in the game to give Drake its hard-fought victory over Napa. The Pirates led by one or three points most of the fourth quarter before Napa's Ed Bianchi tied it up at 54-54 with 1:04 showing on the clock. The Indians had a chance to tie it again after Herbert's free-throws, but were called for traveling and Drake's Eddie Joe Chavez put the game away for good from the line with the final point of the evening.

Herbert had what winning coach Pete Hayward called "his best game this year", with 16 points, while Carson finished with 12. Neither Chavez nor Trimble, the Pirates' leading scorers so far this year, tallied in double figures.

Astros' Star Will Likely Miss Camp

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno will almost certainly miss spring training with the Houston Astros and may not even free himself from his legal entanglement here until well into the 1974 baseball season, criminal lawyers were predicting here today.

Police called the shooting "accidental" in their report and Wednesday police said that the parafin test made of the outfielder's hands hours after the shooting were "negative," implying he did not fire a weapon recently. The test on the dead girl was "positive," police said.

Even if Cedeno is exonerated, it will be months before the trial process is completed if Dominican justice runs its normal course, the lawyers said.

He cannot be released on bail pending trial unless the charge is reduced because "voluntary manslaughter" is not a bailable offense, the lawyers said.

Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel, who is conducting the preliminary hearing, must decide whether the charge is to prevail or whether it should be reduced to "involuntary manslaughter." In that case, Cedeno could go free on bail pending trial but could not leave the country without special permission, the legal experts said.

They said Diaz could take up to 16 days to decide which charge Cedeno should face.

Meanwhile, the young athlete must remain in La Fe precinct jail where he has been since Tuesday. He surrendered himself voluntarily eight hours after the pre-dawn shooting.

The preliminary hearing, which began Wednesday with Diaz questioning Cedeno for two hours, did not resume Wednesday because Diaz unaccountably did not go to court.

The hearing is closed but sources close to the District Attorney said four witnesses have been called in addition to Cedeno, and that when the hearing was recessed, Keko motel room service waiter Pedro Banks was being questioned by the magistrate and that he was to resume the stand at the next session.

The version accepted by police was that the girl was examining the .38-caliber pistol and that Cedeno tried to get it from her when it went off.

Cedeno had skipped playing Dominican Winter League ball this season to allow a leg injury to mend. Three weeks before the shooting he said in a police complaint that he had been robbed of $5,000 worth of jewelry and a watch while he slept in another motel.

WILLIAMS SIGNS WITH YANKS

Finley Tapes Controversy Looms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now it's baseball that may have a great tapes controversy.

The question at hand is did Oakland owner Charlie Finley verbally release Dick Williams from the final two years of his contract on national TV on Oct. 21?

That could become the legal issue if Finley decides to take the New York Yankees to court after they broke a two-month stalemate yesterday by signing Williams to a three-year contract as their manager.

Williams claims Finley released him on national TV shortly after the Oakland A's beat the New York Mets in the seventh game of the World Series. Finley disagrees.

The hassle might be decided by a court's interpretation of the video tapes of the short TV conversation. NBC-TV, which broadcast the World Series, has the video tapes of the exact conversation.

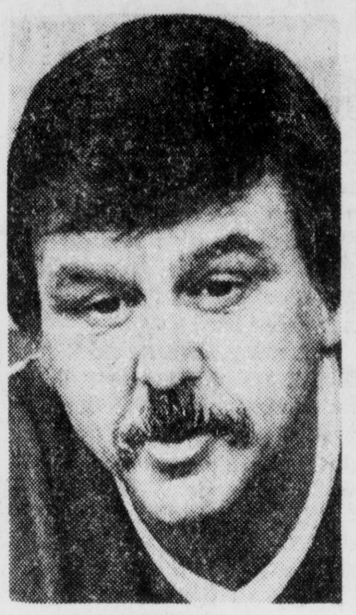
According to an NBC spokesman who checked the tapes, the conversation went like this:

Finley: "even though you're not going to be with us next year, I want to thank you for the great job you've done for the three years you've been with us."

Williams: "thank you Charlie very much and I'm going to miss not being with you but I've made a decision and I'm going to stay with it."

Did that conversation constitute a release by Finley? That could be up to the courts to settle.

Finley has threatened to sue if the Yanks signed Williams without giving him compensation. And he's rjected the offers the Yanks have made so far.



DICK WILLIAMS
Tapes controversy

But at his LaPorte, Ind. home yesterday after he was notified of the Yankees' action, Finley refused to say what his next move will be. He said the Yanks, "decided to make a fast move" but added he'd "prefer to stay mum this time."

Of course, the whole issue still could be settled by negotiations without a court fight.

Joe Cronin, the American League president who refused to comment on the Yanks' action, has scheduled a meeting Wednesday in Boston to try one more time to resolve the issue. Cronin also has a meeting on Tuesday on the Detroit-New York situation.

The Tigers became involved when they signed Ralph Houk, who resigned on the final day of the season as Yankee manager, as their manager in October. Once Finley refused to release Williams, the Yanks brought up the issue of Houk since he had two years left on his Yankee contract.

The Tigers point out they signed Houk even before Williams resigned and they insist they're not involved.

Both Williams and Gabe Paul, the Yankee president, refused to discuss the legal questions involved in the controversy.

"I feel in my mind I'm a free agent," Williams said, "I checked it out with my lawyer to make sure I was free to negotiate."

Redwood Cagers Defeat Liberty

The Yuba City Tournament continues through tomorrow night, but the championship game will be tonight as far as Redwood High School basketball coach Dick Hart is concerned.

His Giants, who rolled to a 71-46 victory over Liberty of Brentwood last night, face East Bay power Livermore in tonight's 7 o'clock semi-final game. Livermore walloped Vacaville, 71-36.

In other tournament action, Marin Catholic fell to unbeaten Analy of Sebastopol in the Rose City Tournament in Santa Rosa, 68-56. The Wildcats were to face St. Patrick's of Vallejo at 5 p.m. today.

"We rebounded better than we have all season — against a smaller team, of course," said Hart. Randy Miller, a 6-foot-4 junior forward, hauled down 18 rebounds.

Neil Hennessy led the scoring effort with 24 points, making nine of 18 shots from the floor, and Darrell Elder chipped in 13 markers on six of 12 shots.

Redwood (3-3) held previously unbeaten Liberty (4-1) to 10 field goals and broke the game open with a 28-8 third-quarter outburst. "We'll have to play a good game tonight," said Hart. "Livermore is bigger than we are."

Marin Catholic (2-3) "just didn't come to play," said coach Dave Gonsalves. "It was a lethargic performance. Tom Cronin (15 points, 12 rebounds) was our only bright spot."

Cronin and Mike Mahoney combined for 13 points in the third period as the 'Cats rallied, but Analy pulled away in the last quarter. Terry Ahern scored 15 and Mahoney 13 for the game.

Talking Tennis High In The Sky

The setting was high in the clouds over San Francisco and the main attraction in the room was Billie Jean King, perhaps the best woman athlete in the world, the gal who has done more for women's sports than anybody.

It was in the Bankers Club on the 52nd floor of the Bank of America Center in San Francisco, where the pedestrians doing their Christmas shopping were reduced to ants going from nest to nest as you looked down from the windows high above.

BILLIE JEAN KING

The purpose of the get together between Ms. King and the press was to announce the start of the 1974 Virginia Slims Women's Tennis Circuit in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium Jan. 14-19.

The purses for the women's tennis tournaments are $50,000, so as they say, they've come a long way, baby. Billie Jean has done a lot in bringing this about with her fights for equal pay with men of the tennis world. She's not a hard, sock it to 'em, leader of the women's liberation movement. She just wants to see women get their fair share of loot on the tennis courts.

When publicist Jerry Diamond of Tiburon introduced her at yesterday's luncheon he quipped: "You all know this chick next to me." Billie Jean smiled and said, "Chick, broad, it doesn't matter." She keeps the women's lib thing in perspective, and for that I am glad.

When the question of a rematch with 55-year-old Bobby Riggs came up, Billie said she's not considering it, despite a $100,000 guarantee Bobby promised he would dig up. "I don't think it would help me to go out and beat him again," she said. "That $100,000 doesn't mean that much to me."

Billie said Rosemary Casals is trying to work up a match against Riggs, the biggest sports hustler since Minnesota Fats started giving his

Billie Jean Is Top-Rated Netter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billie Jean King, Wimbledon Champion for the fifth time and conqueror of Bobby Riggs, today was ranked first among American women tennis players by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

For Billie Jean, of Hilton Head, S.C., it was the fourth straight time on top of the list, although her year was marred by injury and illness, notably at Forest Hills, where she collapsed from the heat and retired against Houston's Julie Heldman in the quarter finals.

Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale moved from third in 1972 to second, with Rosemary Casals of San Francisco third, Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex. fourth and Miss Heldman fifth. San Rafael's Sharon Walsh is ranked 20th.

SHRINERS PREP GRID CANCELED

When Redwood High School's Mike Connor was playing in the Shrine North-South All-Star Football Game last August in Los Angeles, little did he know that he would be the last Marinite to do so.

The Al Malaikah Shrine Temple of Los Angeles, sponsor of the game for 22 years, said last night it would hold only a Southern California game this year, pitting the best high school players from the L.A. area against the best from outlying regions.

A Shrine spokesman cited the energy crisis, budget cuts and perhaps declining attendance as the reason for the change. Nearly 50,000 paid for tickets last year, he said, but only 29,000 showed up on a warm Sunday afternoon.

BASKETBALL

Bad Start For USF Continues

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The season which began so hopefully for the University of San Francisco is rapidly turning to ashes.

The Dons, ranked as high as third in the nation in pre-season basketball polls, suffered their third loss in four games last night, bowing to host Providence College, 76-57.

Earlier, USF suffered one-point losses to Stanford and Long Beach State and skidded out of the United Press International rankings.

Phil Smith scored 18 points for the Dons, but Providence's Marvin Barnes was the dominant force in the game with 20 points, 22 rebounds and six blocked shots for the eighth-ranked Friars.

The 49ers, rated 12th and apparently ready to move up, won at tough Canisius 94-82 with Roscoe Pondexter hitting 20 and Leonard Gray 18. Those two muscular veterans and Roscoe's 6-foot-8 freshman brother Clifton give the 49ers a front-line that would be unbeatable in a street brawl and is nearly as tough on a court.

Fresno State watched a 20-point lead vanish but held on for a 57-55 win over Colorado State, its fifth without a setback. Charles Bailey was the whole show as he hit 29 for the winners.

San Jose State, now 4-1, claimed a 92-66 win at South Dakota. Pete Miller and Eric Saulny scored 14 each for the Spartans, who hit 52 per cent of their shots.

One team that appears to be outgunned in the PCAA, San Diego State, saw its record slump to 1-3 with a 95-78 loss at Oral Roberts. John Anderson led the losers with 18.

Elsewhere, Mike Savage scored 24 to lead Redlands over Southern California College 67-60, 17th-ranked Arizona had trouble putting away Idaho 101-80, Northridge lost to Weber State 73-67 and San Francisco State fell at Youngstown 81-64.

Sugar Bowl Has Come Long Way

By CHARLIE COANE

Instead of plunking down eight to 10 dollars every time you gear up to ski, how would you like to spend 25 cents per ride on the chairlift? Well, don't get your hopes up but that's the way it was 35 years ago when California's first chairlift was built on Mt. Disney at Sugar Bowl, on Donner Summit off Interstate 80.

That chairlift, a far cry from today's modern double, triple and four-seater chairlifts, had only single chairs and moved less than 100 skiers in an hour up the mountain. But 25 cents isn't too bad. So much for that.

And, Sugar Bowl has come a long way also, since those early days in the late 1930s. The resort is now California/Nevada's fourth largest, and vice president Don Schwartz had developed an interesting philosophy. Sugar Bowl doesn't necessarily seek more skiers to come to the resort. Instead, Mr. Schwartz is more concerned with improving the area for the many devoted Sugar Bowl enthusiasts.

But with the plans on the books for the next four years, Sugar Bowl is bound to attract some new talent. One thing is the fact that the lift ticket price is only $8 — in spite of the fact that nearby Alpine and Squaw have jumped this season to $9 and $10 respectively. A significant improvement on the mountain is the completely rebuilt "historic" double chairlift on Mt. Disney. The original single was replaced in 1952 and now comes the new Disney chair, which is one of six chairs on three mountacs. This new chair is 4,000 feet long, moves 1,000 skiers per hour and has a vertical of 1,000 feet. The capacity is an increase from last season. Mt. Disney was named after Walt Disney, who was the first Sugar Bowl stockholder.

Another plan to be put into effect soon is free bus service (busses with ski racks, of course) from the Interstate 80 exit at Soda Springs to Sugar Bowl on weekends and holidays from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Sugar Bowl has also done extensive summer grooming to improve many of the runs, and plans to keep things in shape with what they claim is the Far West's largest assortment of sophisticated snow grooming equipment with 22 units.

Another big project which hopefully will see reality next season is a new double chairlift for beginners and intermediates. This would replace the 800-foot rope tow and a 1,000 foot T-bar. The lift will be located below the nose of Mt. Disney, within walking distance of the hotel. The T-bar would then be moved to Christmas Tree Ridge and open up new ski terrain for advanced and intermediate skiers.

"We're thinking of opening a super new run for experts only," said Schwartz. "It would shoot down Mt. Lincoln and be a challenge for only top skiers. It would start at the sundeck, wind through the trees, plunge down the wall of The Three Sisters, open into the snow bowl above the Steilhung and then come out at the lower terminal of Lincoln Chair No. 2."

One of the things that makes Sugar Bowl unique is that access to the resort — which claims to be the unofficial "snow capital" of the U.S. with over 500 inches of snow annually — is gained only by riding the Magic Carpet gondola or a double chairlift in and out of the area.

Fatal Accident For Ski Officer

MAMMOTH MOUNTAIN, Calif. (AP) — A ski patrolman assigned to avalanche control was killed in an accidental explosion, the Mono County Sheriff's office reported.

Marvin R. Critton, 35, apparently was preparing an explosive charge when the blast occurred yesterday morning, a sheriff's deputy said. Critton was alone and no one else was injured.

The blast took place on the slope at the Mammoth Mountain Ski resort where Critton was a patrolman, officers said.

Saying she wants to get more changes for women's tennis "at the grass roots level," such as pension plans, Billie said, "I don't think we've done enough. We've just started."

Men and women are staying in tennis at older ages now, said King, and it's not just because of the money. "They are getting appreciation from the public. It's a growing thing. The thing to do now is to play tennis."

She admitted she didn't spend enough time on tennis last year and her game suffered for it. She termed 1973 a bad year, although she went over the $100,000 mark in earnings for the third straight year.

Last January she was forced out of the Virginia Slims tourney in San Francisco after the first round. The 30-year-old King suffered an inflamation of the joint in her right wrist. She was out of action for more than a month because of it. She came back to win her fifth Wimbledon title.

Although she's going to be playing a lot of tennis, Billie Jean is going to find time to go into the magazine publishing business. The magazine, called Women's Sports, will hit the newsstands in April and sell for 75 cents. Not wanting to lose all the male readers, there will also be a sprinkling of stories about men.

Because of her off year in 1973, Billie Jean fell to third in the international rankings. But she is still ranked No. 1 in the United States rankings which were announced today.

Tempers Flare In 49er Camp

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tempers flared and fights have broken out this week while the 5-8 San Francisco 49ers prepare for tomorrow's tussle with the 9- 4 Pittsburgh Steelers.

Though nothing is at stake for the 49ers in the game, the practice sessions this week have been hard fought.

A day earlier, defensive lineman Stan Hindman tangled briefly with offensive lineman Jean Barrett.

"Those were two of the worst fights I've ever seen," said Head Coach Dick Nolan in assessing the brief scraps.

John Brodie, who is scheduled to start at quarterback in his final game with the 49ers, came up with a sore arm yesterday.

"It's nothing," said Brodie. "I just threw too much on Wednesday."

2 Thrillers, 3 Routs In Recreation Cage

Two games were decided by one point each and the other three were decided by a combined 89 points in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league play last night at San Rafael High.

MacArthur's sneaked by the Centaurs, 52-51, and Mike's Bar and Grill shaded the Centics in double overtime, 53-52, in the close games. In the lopsided ones, Jim Shaw scored 30 points as the Skins beat the Bulldogs, 68-25; Ralph Dannenberg tallied 26 as George and Charles Carpentry crushed the Hardhats, 57-25; and Brookline Electric topped the All-Catholic All-Stars, 57-43.

Format Reduced In Tars' Tourney

In keeping with the spirit of the times, basketball coach John Panagakis has announced 1973 guidelines calling for a 50 per cent reduction in the number of teams in the College of Marin Invitational.

This newest shortage is expected to conserve the energy of the players, who will play only two games instead of the three they played last year, when the Invitational was an eight-team tournament.

This year, it will be a four-team, round-robin affair, with pre-determined opponents and no championship game. Tonight, Marin will face Moffett Field at 9 p.m. following a game between Santa Rosa and Reedly at 7 p.m. Tomorrow, Marin will play Reedley at 9 p.m. and Santa Rosa will battle Moffett Field at 7.

"It just got too expensive," said Panagakis when asked why the old format was scrapped. Even with a superior team, Marin rarely fills its gymnasium, and the mid-afternoon games with outside teams were even more sparesely attended.

Reedley, which won the tourney two years ago, holds victories over state powers West Hills and Ventura. Moffett Field, composed of Naval personnel from that air station near Sunnyvale, was a 74-52 victim of Marin in the 1973 opener. Santa Rosa is a Camino Norte Conference rival of the Tars.

Marin enters the game with a 7-0 record following an impressive 66-45 thumping of previously undefeated Laney of Oakland Tuesday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE STATS

Mets Have Poorest Flag-Winning Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New York Mets had the lowest won-loss percentage of any pennant winner in major league history and were last among the 12 National League teams in slugging percentage, official league statistics of last baseball season showed today.

The Mets' 82-79 mark for .509 compared with a previous low of .564 by the 1959 Los Angeles Dodgers who were 88-68.

In slugging percentage, where the Atlanta Braves led with .427, the Mets were the only NL club below .350, posting .338.

Individual slugging honors went to Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh with .646, and Darrell Evans of Atlanta was second at .556.

Hank Aaron was 38 short of the minimum 502 plate appearances required to qualify for the slugging championship. His percentage was .643.

Aaron had 40 home runs, Evans 41 and Dave Johnson 43 to give Atlanta the distinction of being the first major league club to have three 40-plus home run hitters in one season.

Evans drew the most bases on balls, 124; and Bobby Bonds of San Francisco had the most strikeouts, 148. Stargell's 129 strikeouts gave him nine consecutive seasons with 100-plus strikeouts, which tied a major league record held by Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox.

Montreal second baseman Ron Hunt led the league for the sixth consecutive year in the hit-by-pitcher category. The 24 times he was hit raised his 11-season total to 227, adding to the major league lifetime record he already held.

Seals Seek Better Goalie Play

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals hope for a little more defense in the nets tonight at 8 o'clock when they host mighty Montreal.

Montreal seems disappointed with a lofty 16-7-3 record, which puts them in second spot in the National Hockey League East behind Boston, which is dazzling the league with an 18-4-3 record.

"We're not scoring as much but we're playing well defensively," visiting coach Scotty Bowman said. "We've been running into good goal tending."

They could run into some of the other kind of goaltending tonight.

With regulars Gilles Meloche and Marv Edwards sidelined by injuries, the Seals have had to go with newcomers Ted Tucker and Bob Champoux. The result has been 21 goals against the Seals during the last three games.

Yet the Seals have traditionally played the Habs tougher than most and both Champoux and Tucker both have played in the Montreal system.

"It's easier to get ready for Montreal than any other club," says the 31-year-old Champoux. "The adrenalin starts to flow faster. When I was a kid it was a dream to play with them and I did play against them in an exhibition game once. Was I ever high!"

The 24-year-old Tucker says, "I would like to start since Montreal once owned me as an amateur. I don't think I'd be nervous. I've been to three of their camps."

Coach Fred Glover has not decided which rookie will start tonight.

Rancho Matmen's Victory String Ended By Analy

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park had its 19-match wrestling winning streak broken yesterday with a 39-27 Sonoma County League loss to host Analy High School of Sebastopol.

In other Southern Sonoma high school mat action yesterday, Casa Grande of Petaluma fell to visiting Sonoma County League for Healdsburg, 69-4.

Mike Martin got the only win for the Gauchos with an 18-6 decision over Mark Duran. Casa Grande is now 1-1 overall and 0-1 in SCL play.

Cal Poly Football Coach Anderson Out

His 1973 record was 4-6-1. He had served five seasons.

Thoms To Renew Old Acquaintance

They will be on opposing sides when the Raiders and Broncos meet Sunday for the championship of the Western Division of the American Football Conference.

"You've got to get to Floyd before he gets going," said Thoms who played at Syracuse with Little in 1966. "You've got to nail him quick before he puts on a move or he'll leave you."

Little needs 63 yards for his second 1,000 yard season in the NFL.

Thoms says the Raiders will win Sunday because everyone knows the money is on the line. "You lose any Sunday the rest of the way, you pack up and go home. I don't think we will."

Quarry Vs. Shavers Tonight

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Jerry Quarry, gunning for another heavyweight title shot, and Ernie Shavers, a power puncher who recently acquired a taste for boxing's big time, meet tonight in a scheduled 12-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Quarry was rated a 2½-1 favorite. Many boxing observers felt the bout wouldn't go the distance, and the fighters agreed.

Garden Boxing expected a crowd of about 15,000 for the fight, scheduled to start about 7:15 p.m., PST, and be shown on home-pay television in parts of New York State, Pennsylvania and New Jersey and on closed-circuit in nine cities including Cleveland, Shavers' base.

Sonoma Cagers Drop 4th In Row

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. — Sonoma State College had its basketball losing streak extended to four games here last night, as the Cossacks dropped a 105-76 non-league contest to Middle Tennessee State University.

The Cossacks, who face Murray State University in Murray, Ky. tomorrow night to conclude their six-day road trip, fell to 2-4 for the season.

"We played real hard, but we were a little tired," commented Sonoma assistant coach Dave Castleberry. "They're a real good team and beat us soundly."

After traveling all day yesterday from Missouri to Tennessee, the Cossacks were understandably tired; their fatigue was reflected in their 37 per cent shooting from the field.

Sonoma was in the game until just before the end of the first half when Fred Allen put in five straight 20-foot jumpers to give Middle Tennessee a 13-point bulge. Allen finished with 24 points.

Sonoma scoring leader Bill Belander again led the way with 25 points and seven rebounds.

Sonoma State	33	43—76
Middle Tennessee	46	59—105

Sonoma State — Belander 10-5-25, Johnson 6-5-17, LeBrun 1-0-2, Tiedeman 6-6-18, Bristol 2-0-4, Gibson 2-0-4, Long 1-0-2, Sumpter 1-0-2, Taylor 1-0-2. Totals: 30-16-76.

Warriors, Portland Tonight

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors, whose two game bulge in the Pacific Division is their biggest in seven years, try to widen that margin tonight when they face the Portland Trail Blazers.

It was Dec. 18, 1967, when the Warriors held a bigger margin in the division. The Los Angeles Lakers have led most of the time since then, but are having problems this season without Wilt Chamberlain and with Jerry West hurting.

Rick Barry will return to the Warriors lineup after missing Tuesday's win over Houston with a sprained ankle. Cazzie Russell picked up the slack in that one with a career high 49 points after Barry had hit for 50 in the game before.

The Warriors seemingly have played their best this season with one or two starters sidelined by injuries.

The Warriors return home tomorrow night to face the Capital Bullets and then host high-flying Boston next Tuesday.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

It Just Takes Some Teaching

The training and teaching of your dog and your wife. That's what this column is all about.

Last Wednesday when the bunch of us went to the Sacramento hunting area, we naturally took my dog, Bruno. You should see him. He's supposed to be a purebred Springer, but he has big feet and short heavy legs just like a Basset hound.

Three years ago, Howard Leach of Sacramento, one of my deer hunting partners, sent him to me, I think, as a joke. He has turned out to be just great. He doesn't fight with other dogs, lives in the house like a king, retrieves ducks admirably, hunts pheasants, and will track a crippled buck until it's found; and he doesn't have an iota of meanness in him.

ALL OF THESE features were born in him, but he still had to be taught. First Mary, my wife, took him to the Post Office where she works. There, Bruno met all of Woodacre. From the handouts he received every day, he learned that people were friendly, so he developed his enormous appetite and liking for people.

We took him when he was about eight months old on all the hunts. He learned quickly, and has been a help in everything we do. He handles a duck or a pheasant with such tenderness, that no mark is ever left on the bird. Now you can't beat that!

Now, let's take the wives. I always hear from people about the fact that I go to the mountains for a whole month each year. Other hunters wonder "How do you do it?" It's simple — take your wife. This method of approach takes all the heat off you and it actually can be helpful. But like dog training, it takes time and patience.

I remember when Mary started out — it was in deer season. I got her a Marlin .32 Special, lever action, then we held some target practice sessions. She eventually became a pretty good shot. Then it was after the bucks. At first it was a fiasco! I think I showed her every buck in Marin County before she finally got off a shot. We tried everything.

I REMEMBER taking her to Nicasio before she had that first buck. We went for a hunt, and up on one of the ridges we saw a good buck feeding. We made a long sneak on it, then from behind a big rock, I told her to take it. I figured this time, I would back her up with my gun. I counted one . . . two . . . three, and shot. She didn't get her shot off, but I did. I had already used my "A" tag that year, I looked at her and she thought I was going to have her tag the downed buck. Two big tears showed in her eyes. I tagged the buck! Did you ever hate a woman just for a minute?

At Webber Lake later that year, a big buck stood up behind a log and I had no rifle. I could see her front sight going around in circles. She couldn't get the shot off — finally that buck snorted and took off. Oh, we had our problems at first.

I remember one time — I believe it was on the 17th buck — that I told her that if a buck wasn't shot at it would always turn and look back at the crest of the ridge. That was the time to shoot. We tried this, but the bucks never looked back. Finally, I said to shoot at the next buck no matter what. She got the buck! I couldn't believe it. It was a running shot. From then on it was bucks, bucks, bucks!

I GUESS SHE'S bagged 30 or so since that eventful day. Then it was pheasants and ducks, sage grouse, trout, steelhead and salmon, abalones, clams and cockles. She became an enthused outdoorswoman and she can now hold up with the best of the men. She can also cook, and understands and fills in with the campfire jargon. She's fully aware of the beauty of the outdoors, so when she can't go, there is no displeasure on her part that I can go. I get a kick out of it all.

Last year up at Lassen, Enos Foster, our Woodacre neighbor, came by our camp one early morning. It was snowing. Mary was up making the fire and making some coffee. We were in the tent where we can sleep, eat and cook. Me, I was in bed! Coffee in bed — that was the ticket. Enos looked the situation over and said, "Al, you've got a racket!" Bruno was curled up under the warm wood stove; it was a homey scene. All it took to put the whole thing together was time and patience.

KEITH FRASER of Loch Lomond reported the sturgeon fishing as SUPER last weekend. Grant Howe, Larry Mah and Gene Tom tried drifting the Red Rock using shiners. They were in by lunchtime with nine bass. After lunch they took one pound of live shrimp and returned shortly with two sturgeon, 62 pounds and 122 pounds. That would be hard to beat but someone did. Three boats with three fishermen each came in Saturday with limits of sturgeon — nine. Top that!

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Complex Playoff Picture Going Into Last Weekend

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

On the final weekend of the National Football League's regular season, the situation for playoff berths is as simple as A, B, C and D.

Atlanta, Buffalo and Cleveland must win to remain in the running for wild card berths. Denver must win to gain their division title. If any of the four lose or tie they are out of the playoffs.

Five teams, however, would be willing to settle for a tie. If Cincinnati and Pittsburgh either win or tie they clinch playoff berths, one as the American Football Conference Central champion, the other as the wild card entry. If both win, the Bengals are the division champs and the Steelers the wild card. If both tie, the Steelers are division winners and the Bengals are wild card.

Oakland will clinch the AFC West title with a victory or tie against Denver. Washington and Dallas, both with 9-4 records in the National Football Conference East, can nail down playoff spots with victories or ties.

Only three teams—Minnesota (NFC Central), Los Angeles (NFC West) and Miami (AFC East)—have clinched division championships.

It's all so simple.

Terry Bradshaw will be back in the starting quarterback slot for Pittsburgh after returning to the lineup last week and hitting 11 of 20 passes for 117 yards in the Steelers' 33-7 romp over Houston. Bradshaw had been out since Oct. 28 with a shoulder separation.

Two Miami backs, Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka will be attempting to break the 1,000-yard rushing mark against Detroit in a game that means nothing as far as the playoffs go. Morris, with 954 yards, will be trying for his second straight 1,000-yard season while Csonka will be looking for his third straight.

But in the individual department Sunday, the focus will be on O.J. Simpson's attack against Jim Brown's season rushing record of 1,863 set in 1963. Simpson, who gained 219 yards last week in Buffalo's 37-13 triumph over New England, needs only 61 yards this week as the Bills hope to stay in contention against the New York Jets, who may be playing without Joe Namath.

Casa Grande Five Entertains Tomales

Tomales High School (1-6) and Casa Grande (3-3) of Petaluma will meet on the basketball floor for the first time tonight at 9 o'clock at Casa Grande.

The only other games involving southern Sonoma teams find St. Vincent (4-3) of Petaluma at Cloverdale, 8 p.m. tonight, and Petaluma in the Drake Pirate Classic in San Anselmo today and tomorrow.

More Disaster Planning Needed

By JEFF GREER

Marin's third disaster training drill "went too easily," disaster officials agreed yesterday.

But, they said, it showed that more planning is needed in terms of setting up a better disaster center, handling mass evacuations, getting information to the public and, above all, communications.

Asked "where does everyone come in a real emergency," County Administrator John F. Barrows said, "I'd consider the command post to be in the county communications department" in the ground floor of the Marin County Civic Center. But Barrows and Frank E. Kirby, emergency services coordinator, admitted that the county has no adequate room for all the disaster section chiefs to gather.

More maps, desk space, telephones and other equipment must be provided, officials agreed. Otherwise workers in charge of various disaster sections such as medical services, firefighting, or law enforcement may find themselves unknowingly countermanding each others' directives or overlooking facets of any real emergency.

"There's never going to be a disaster that you can adequately plan for, but there are a lot of good things happening," said Arnold M. Baptiste. As chairman of the board of supervisors, he is titular head of the county's disaster services.

"We're only two years into disaster planning in Marin; we have a lot more to go," added Barrows.

Barrows said that disaster planners up to yesterday had considered problems of getting out public instructions and warnings, and handling the press "somewhat secondary" to

Mail Flow Continues Despite A Blackout

It was a dark night and day in the San Rafael Post Office yesterday — but postal workers lived up to the old motto and got the mail through on time, despite a 14-hour blackout and the Christmas rush.

High winds toppled a utility pole and transformer behind the building on Bellam Boulevard into Highway 17 at 12:40 a.m. yesterday, Postmaster Hugh Cassidy reported today. All electrical power to the building was lost. About 125 workers were on duty, sorting mail for distribution for all the other cities' post offices in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties.

Crews toiled in the rain, loading mail onto trucks, then taking it to Hangar Two at Hamilton Air Force Base, where the sorting continued. Mail to be delivered in San Rafael was sorted in the Post Office garage, which didn't lose its lights, Cassidy said.

Workers strung long extension cords into the main post office so the counters could be lighted. The building has windows only on the street side, "and let me tell you it was dark," Cassidy reported. Emergency lighting systems in the building are good for only an hour or two during normal brief power failures, he explained.

Incoming mail was taken to Corte Madera, Novato and other post offices where it was processed.

Power was restored to the San Rafael building at 2:20 p.m. by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. crews. Cassidy proudly reported that by 5 p.m., all mail operations were back on schedule.

Christmas Time Is Crisis Time

One of the pieces, sung to the tune of the Twelve Days of Christmas, is as follows:

On the twelfth day of Crisis,
my true love gave to me
Twelve cops policing,
Eleven truckers trucking,
Ten stations closing,
Nine stocks a-falling,
Eight short recessions,
Seven pounds of beefsteak,
Six books of food stamps,

Novato Bids For Growth Controls

FRANK FARRARA

Novato officials sounded a call last night for city control of a proposed growth limitation system in the Novato area.

The stand for city power came at a joint meeting of the city council and planning commission on a proposed growth control ordinance.

It was a prelude to a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday with the Marin County Board of Supervisors to discuss a joint powers agreement to establish a growth control board for the Novato area.

The Novato area, under the Novato General Plan, extends from Big Rock Ridge to the Sonoma County line and from Stafford Lake to the Petaluma River.

The Novato Area General Plan calls for limiting growth in the area to 500 dwelling units a year, and last night's meeting was the start of what is expected to be a long process to put that policy into effect.

Marin County has proposed a residential development review board which would evaluate and select developments to be permitted under the quota.

A similar system has been established in Petaluma and is being challenged in court by developers. The Novato planning staff proposed establishing an area planning commission instead.

Councilman George C. Quesada suggested the area planning commission be composed entirely of residents of Novato. "We can lay 90 per cent of our problems at the county's door, going back 25 years or more," he said.

He said three supervisors, Arnold M. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., have indicated they "want

Nixon, Aides Predict No Recession Coming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and his economic advisers do not believe there is going to be a recession as a result of the energy crisis, a White House spokesman said today.

Nixon met for an hour with four top men involved in economic policy and the deputy White House press secretary, Gerald L. Warren, said afterward:

"We do not believe there is going to be a recession."

Warren said Nixon wanted to make it clear "we are going to do everything in our power to see that the impact on the economy caused by the energy shortage is one we can control."

He said contingency plans were being worked on now "to see that unemployment does not rise unduly."

The President has instructed his energy chief, William E. Simon, and others involved in the fuel crisis program to formulate plans to assure increased supply and demand with the provision that "no

WHERE ARE THE BIRDS? IN FLORIDA?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bird's nest was found in an 18-foot Frazier fir Christmas tree after it was erected in the White House Blue Room, aides to First Lady Pat Nixon said today.

They said Mrs. Nixon was greatly elated to hear of the nest. In Sweden, the aides recalled, such a discovery is regarded as a "sign of good luck"

The tree has been decorated — with the nest still in it.

Nixon Gets Daylight Time Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress passed today and sent to President Nixon legislation to put the country on year-round Daylight Saving Time early in January.

The bill, one of several energy-saving measures asked by Nixon, would take effect Jan. 6 if the President signs it before Sunday. If the signing is dalayed until next week, Americans would turn their clocks ahead one hour on Jan. 13.

Year-round DST would remain in effect through the last Sunday in April, 1975, when the old Uniform Time Act would again become effective. Thus, most states would remain on DST through October, 1975.

The bill would allow only these exceptions:

Nixon could exempt a full

Truck Blown Up During Protest On Fuel, Speeds

One Shutdown Leader Nabbed On Gun Charges

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A tractor-trailer was blown up at a truck stop today scattering wreckage for 50 yards, Arkansas State Police reported. It was the most violent incident reported since independent truckers mounted their two-day protest against rising fuel costs and lower speed limits.

No one was injured in the pre-dawn blast, police said.

More than 30 incidents of gunfire early today and late yesterday in at least seven states marked the so-called "park-in." One of the leaders of the demonstration was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed deadly weapon. The incident involving the blown-up rig occurred at Widener, Ark. It was parked at Andy's Truck Stop on an access road between Interstate 40 and U.S. 70 when the explosion occurred.

The blast tore the cab away from the trailer and shattered the glass in a second truck parked nearby, according to truck stop operator Andy Jones Jr.

At least four shooting incidents were reported in Pennsylvania where bullets, apparently fired from passing cars, struck trucks in Cambria, Lancaster, Indiana and Bedford counties.

Other truckers said their air-hoses had been slashed by bands of truckers to prevent them from driving.

In Ohio, a focal point for much of the trucker activity, at least 25 trucks whose drivers declined to comply with the independents' call for a nation-wide "park in" were fired on early today and late yesterday.

Another 450 to 500 rigs were corralled into a truckstop on Interstate 70 near Dayton and not allowed to leave.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said the men were being kept at the stop under duress.

Bandit Stages A $4,000 Corte Madera Bank Haul

A shotgun-toting bandit yesterday held up the Sierra National Bank at the Corte Madera Shopping Center, escaping with $3,000 to $4,000, according to town police.

Detective Paras Polo said the heist occurred about 2 p.m. when a man approached a teller and requested change for some money. He then produced a sawed-off double barrel shotgun, Polo said, and a paper bag which he ordered the teller to fill. Most of the loot was in $20 bills, the policeman reported.

The man was described as white 30 to 40 years old, five feet, eight inches tall, fair skinned, with "sandy reddish" hair and a medium build. Witnesses reported he wore a gray rain coat and blue pants, Polo said.

He said the man escaped on foot although the center was sealed off by police, the California Highway Patrol and sheriff's officers.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Peron Rules Out Wage Hikes

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Juan Peron, who used wage hikes to win worker support two decades ago, has told his labor backers to forget about big salary increases for now until Argentina's economy gets back on its feet.

Peron

"I believe this is the time for work with order and tranquility, giving our program enough time to bear fruit," Peron said yesterday in a 50-minute speech to leaders of the General Labor Confederation, the nation's major labor organization.

The shirtsleeved president looked fit during his speech, mixing slang expressions and tossing in a quote from an old tango song to draw roars of approval from labor leaders.

New Violence

BELFAST (UPI) — Extremists attacked two police stations last night in stepped-up assaults against Northern Ireland security forces. Authorities said they expected no let-up in the new wave of violence.

Gunmen riddled a police station at Dungiven, 20 miles southeast of Londonderry, three days after it was bombed. The raiders fired 30 bullets into the rear of the station as police were repairing the damage from the bomb blast. There was no reported police casualties.

A bomb-laden laundry truck exploded outside a rural police station at Newtown Hamilton, 40 miles southwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt, police said, because the truck looked suspicious and the area was evacuated.

Cuts Indo Fuel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to cut off Pentagon fuel shipments to Indochina, but the action yesterday was not likely to cause an immediate problem for U.S. Southeast Asia allies.

After a 60-33 rollcall vote on an amendment to a $73.2 billion defense appropriation bill, sponsor Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., said he left a loophole in the measure that would probably let oil shipments continue.

Cotton explained that his amendment applied only to funds in the appropriations bill itself, not to money given the Pentagon under other legislation.

Judge Quickly Involved In Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judge Albert Engel of Grand Rapids, Mich., became involved in his first criminal case as a U.S. Circuit Court judge this morning.

Engel, a District Court judge who was confirmed for the appellate court post by the Senate yesterday, was in his room at the Dupont Plaza Hotel in Washinton writing thank-you notes to the congressmen who showed him around the city. He glanced out the window at about 5:30 a.m. and saw two men breaking into a clothing store across the street, police said.

He called police, who said they arrived at the downtown location within 20 seconds and arrested the men. Engel went downstairs and identified the suspects, finished his letters and went to sleep.

Budget Endorsed

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Supreme Soviet, or parliament, today endorsed the government's 1974 budget and economic planning proposals, the Tass news agency said.

The favorable vote had been expected. Tass said it was "unanimous."

The legislature, which meets twice a year and has never rejected a government proposal, spent three days "debating" the proposals.

Combat Order

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Theiu today ordered his troops into "combat readiness" for a new Communist offensive in South Vietnam during celebrations of next month's Tet Lunar New Year.

On the battlefront, military sources said South Vietnamese warplanes bombarded a North Vietnamese convoy moving troops and supplies into the embattled Central Highlands.

Flood Victims

TUNIS, Tunisia (UPI) — Forty-five college students drowned yesterday when floodwaters swept away a military truck rescuing them from their school in Gafsa, southwest Tunisia, government officials said today.

They said an unknown number of other persons disappeared in floods caused by 48 hours of rainstorms mostly in the south and center of the country.

Hundreds of houses and mud and wattle huts were swept away and cattle drowned over large areas in the flood.

Kissinger In Cairo To Map Ground Rules For Geneva Talks

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met with three big power ambassadors and resumed his talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt today to map out next week's Middle East peace conference. Israel, already threatening to boycott the talks in its dispute with Syria, was reported balking at terms laid down by Sadat.

Kissinger arrived in Cairo yesterday after talks with Algerian officials on his Middle East tour and held a first round of talks with Sadat today that U.S. officials described as "most constructive."

He met later today with British Ambassador Sir Philip Adams and French Ambassador Brund De Leusse and held a separate session with Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov. He then held another round of talks with Sadat before his scheduled flight to Saudi Arabia on the third leg of his tour.

Britain and France are not directly involved in the conference scheduled Tuesday in Geneva but Sadat has expressed interest in the two countries eventually being at the conference table.

Premier Golda Meir, who said yesterday that Israel may not attend the conference unless Syria releases a list of captured Israeli war prisoners beforehand, called her cabinet into special session in Jerusalem today. Press reports said the session would include discussion of Israeli demands to keep Britain and France out of the negotiations and for a low-key U.N. role.

As the cabinet met, the military command in Tel Aviv reported its second combat death in two days in a continuing series of exchanges of fire on the Egyptian front.

Mrs. Meir, in her scheduled meeting Sunday with Kissinger, "will demand assurances that the conference be conducted under the sponsorship of the two superpowers and not give the United Nations any practical influence," the newspaper Ma'ariv said.

"Israel will also oppose the addition of France and Britain in the framework of the big-power sponsorship," it said.

Bank Of America Buys City Block

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bank of America has purchased an entire city block in the downtown section for $1.5 million.

The bank said yesterday it would use the area for private parking for its employes at a Data Processing Center.

The sale was handled by the Victor L. Marcus Co., a realty firm which represented the seller, National Inns of Atlantic City, N.J., and the bank.

Drop In Fuel Use Draws Praise From Energy Czar

Gasoline consumption dropped 15 per cent in the three weeks ending Nov. 30, and the combined consumption of gasoline, heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel was down 29 per cent, administration officials reported yesterday.

That involved a 1.1 million barrel a day decline in the use of crude oil, out of which gasoline and other consumer petroleum products are made.

"Americans are responding. They must be thanked for their efforts," the administration's energy chief, William E. Simon, said.

But the picture was not all rosy. Eastern Airlines announced yesterday that another 3,760 employes, more than 10 per cent of its work force, will be laid off early in 1974 because fuel shortages have cut the number of flights. The layoffs will include 440 pilots.

Three other Airlines—Piedmont, Allegheny and United—announced cuts of some flights to save fuel.

The Airline Pilots Association wired President Nixon that pilots feel their industry has been made to bear "an unreasonable portion of the burden of the energy crisis." The union scheduled a Dec. 19 executive council strategy meeting but made no strike threat.

In other developments:

President Nixon summoned his chief economic policy advisers to a White House meeting to discuss the impact of the energy crisis on the U.S. economy.

Prime Minister Edward Heath put Britain on a 2½ day industrial work week Dec. 17 through Dec. 31 and a three day week in January to cope with an even more acute fuel crisis. He said Britons face their "hardest Christmas" since World War II.

The Senate voted 60-33 to halt new funds for U.S. military fuel shipments to South Vietnam and Cambodia. But the vote was considered symbolic, since the Pentagon has $40 billion in old appropriated funds it could use for this purpose, and these were not affected by the vote.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent moved to curb rising general petroleum exports by requiring exporters to obtain licenses.

A group of the nation's governors told Nixon yesterday that dual highway speed limits — one for cars and a higher one for trucks—won't work.

White House spokesmen said that when President Nixon goes to Florida for a post-Christmas vacation he will take a train rather than fly, to set an example of energy-saving. It was unclear how much fuel that would save.

Casa Madrona Is Still In Business

By PAUL LIBERATORE

"Tell the people the place is still open," said a disheartened Robert Deschamps, operator for 15 years of the Casa Madrona Hotel in Sausalito.

"Someday we may be out of business," added his son, Jean, "But for now we are still in."

The Deschamps report that patronage at the hotel, which also houses Le Vivoir restaurant, plummeted 65 per cent last weekend, after the first newspaper story that the city is considering condemning the aged building, a portion of which has been undermined by earthslides.

But the Deschamps insist that the hotel "has not moved one inch in the past 15 years" and that "people can come and eat and stay here without fear."

Tuesday, the city council created a committee to seek an alternative to condemnation of the hotel, one of the oldest buildings in Sausalito.

Since 1958, Deschamps has poured $80,000 and the sweat of his own labor into a building he does not own. He and his family transformed a sleazy bar and flop house into a spotless French country-style hotel and restaurant.

Owner of the hotel was Floyd D. Allensby, a friend of the Deschamps who assured them they could operate the Casa Madrona and Le Vivoir for life.

But Allensby died in May, a few months after mudslides damaged two porch areas during last winter's torrential rains.

Executor of Allensby's estate is Crocker National Bank, which has refused to repair the damage or to install drains to carry off excess water.

Deschamps' attorney, John Colteaux, has accused the bank of caring only about turning a better profit with the property. "At first they told the family they had 30 days to get out," he said. "I told them to go to hell."

Rumor is that the bank plans to build residential units on the hotel site and commercial businesses on a portion of the lot that fronts Bridgeway in Sausalito's busy downtown.

No bank representative attended Tuesday's council meeting and the estate's attorney has not been available for comment.

Public Works Director Norman Wohlschlaeger said that if no alternative to condemnation is found by Jan. 15, he will conduct his own examination of the building to determine if it is safe.

So far, only consultants hired by the bank have studied soil and structural conditions, and it is on that bank financed study that condemnation has been based.

"Ninety per cent of the time, you can walk in and see if the building is falling down," said Wohlschlaeger when asked what would be the extent of his investigation.

But the Casa Madrona is hardly falling down. Le Vivoir and the hotel rooms upstairs are gleaming and polished, with an eye toward the most meticulous detail.

"Look at that mirror," said Jean Deschamps, pointing to a mirror that covers an entire wall. "It is not cracked, this building has not moved. Whatever cracks are in the foundation have been there 15 years."

Two porches recently built by Robert Deschamps, admittedly have been undermined by the slide but they never have been used and the remainder of the building sits on solid footing, the family says.

The 60-year-old Deschamps is a dapper, white-haired man who speaks softly in his spare English and disdains the controversy that has intruded on his quiet life. He cares little about the legal intricacies and regrets that he does not have the money himself to make the repairs so that he could at least run his business until the end of his lease, which has another 18 months to run.

His wife, Mary, still does the cooking for Le Vivoir and her culinary skills and the restaurant's French charm have been the subject of numerous articles, from Los Angeles to London.

The place was featured in a spread in Playboy magazine and Herb Caen, originally chauvinistic about San Francisco, admitted in print that the most authentic French restaurant in San Francisco is in Sausalito — Le Vivoir.

Deschamps, a native of France who immigrated to Sausalito from Canada, expressed hope that the city would not lose the elderly building, even if he must give up his business. He said the hotel was built in the 1860s but one book on local history, "Here Today," places its construction in 1889. The city landmarks committee is considering buying the building.

The restaurant and hotel has gleaming wood, ornate antiques and iron work, fresh cut flowers, fireplaces, candlelight and a stunning view of city lights and the bay — but few guests these days.

RESTAURATEUR — Robert Deschamps, patriarch of a restaurant family that took a sleazy old hotel and dining room and converted it to a model of Victorian splendor and French haute cuisine, stands proudly by the fireplace of his establishment. Deschamps faces the end of 15 years of a labor of love if the City of Sausalito decides to condemn the landmark establishment because his landlord won't make repairs the city thinks necessary.

Trial Set For Four Men Arrested In Drug Raid

SAN FRANCISCO — Trial has been set Feb. 25 in federal district court for four men, including three arrested in September at a Mill Valley home in a raid which police said netted drugs valued at $35,000.

Dennis Gawland Scales, 24, of 362 Pine Hill Road, Tamalpais Valley, is charged with distributing cocaine and possessing it with intent to distribute.

Three other defendants are charged with distriubtion of cocaine. They are: Peter J. Blosvern, 30, and John D. Cook, 32, both of San Francisco, and Gary L. McLaughlin, 26, of Spokane, Wash. Cook was arrested at his home.

Blosvern, McLaughlin and Cook are free on $10,000 bail, court officials said, and Scales is free on $15,000.

All four men pleaded not guilty last month during arraignment before federal Judge Stanley A. Weigel.

At the time of the arrests, federal Drug Enforcement Task Force officials said they climaxed a month-long investigation in which undercover agents bought cocaine from the defendants. Agents reported they found 29 kilograms of marijuana, a pound of cocaine, 200 tablets of LSD, several smaller amounts of marijuana, a .22 caliber airgun and $1,200 in cash in the Mill Valley residence.

Anderson Can't Recall If Film Resulted In Parental Protests

Tamalpais High School teacher Kenneth A. Anderson took the stand yesterday to tell about a war film he once showed his class.

After Anderson said he couldn't recall if the film's showing has resulted in parent protests, attorney William O. Weissich rested the Tamalpais High School District's case.

The district is seeking to fire Anderson on charges of incompetence, refusal to follow policies and immoral conduct.

Carl B. Shapiro, the 32-year-old teacher's attorney, said the defense case, which was to open today, will take about two weeks.

Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire denied Shapiro's motions to dismiss 11 allegations of incompetence and three of immoral conduct.

In five minutes on the stand, Anderson testified he didn't remember when he showed to his English classes a film allegedly depicting Vietnam War atrocities.

He also said he didn't recall if he obtained permission from school administrators to show the movie or if parents objected to it.

Because he saw many war films between 1965 and 1972, Anderson said he couldn't remember the details of the movie to which Weissich referred.

In other testimony, two campus guards said they frequently found students who belonged in Anderson's class wandering about campus.

And Richard Mason, the chairman of the English department, testified he would have given a D to a notebook kept by one of Anderson's students, Bruce P. Lohmann. The notebook earlier had been described by another teacher as possibly meriting the A grade Anderson gave it.

Mason said Anderson was "not conforming to school grading policy" when he gave A's to every student but two in the 1970-71 school year.

After the first day of trial, no other evidence than Lohmann's statement has been presented linking Anderson to a wave of bombings and arson.

GUN CHARGE — John Sassi, one of the leaders of the independent truck drivers' protest against lower speeds and higher fuel prices, was arrested near Glasgow, Del., this morning on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon when a gun was found in his station wagon.

morning, John Sassi, 29, and three companions were taken into custody after a search of their station wagon turned up a handgun, state police said.

Sassi, an independent driver who helped organize the "park in," testified before a Senate committee hearing on the truckers' plight earlier this week. Sassi accused the Senate of not acting quickly enough to redress truckers' grievances.

The work stoppage spread to the Missouri side of the St. Louis area today as "a few dozen" trucks blocked exits at two suburban Fenton truck stops. A Missouri Highway Patrol spokesman said the blockage was "very orderly" and did not affect highway traffic near the truck ports.

In Baird, Del., last night, a trucker had his windshield shot out. Similar incidents were reported on two other Delaware highways as the angry independents attempted to get other truckers to join their protest shutdown.

There were also reports of violence in Maryland where at a Whitemarsh truck stop late Thursday two trucks were fired on while waiting to be fueled.

One blast hit a truck radiator while shotgun pellets shattered the windshields of other rigs. No injuries were reported.

A new outbreak of gunfire and bricks aimed at operating trucks erupted in Ohio early today. The tires on some trucks were slashed.

The success of the shutdown, suggested by editors of Overdrive magazine as a two-day protest of rising diesel prices and lower speed limits, was only partial. Across the nation state police and truck stop operators reported trucks were still rolling on expressways, although truck traffic was lighter than normal, and in some spots cut in half.

Ohio was hardest hit by the violence, but gunfire or rock and bottle barrages also harassed truck drivers who tried to drive in Colorado and Pennsylvania. Three striking truck drivers were arrested in Pennsylvania yesterday and accused of throwing rocks at a truck.

Ohio police said at least 25 operating trucks were hit by bullets last night and early this morning. Nine trucks were struck by gunfire in Ohio and Pennsylvania earlier yesterday. No drivers have been hit.

Other drivers who were ignoring the shutdown reported numerous incidents of brick-throwing, tire slashing and being bottled up in truck stops. Near the Ohio-Pennsylvania border, drivers stood in the middle of major truck routes and flagged down oncoming truckers, redirecting them into nearby truck stop parking lots.

"They're catching the trucks as they come up routes 11, 30, 14 and 7," said the state highway patrol in Columbiana County, Ohio. "More than 200 trucks are tied up (in parking lots) at East Liverpool. But all the roads are clear.

A Brighton, Colo., truck driver was struck in the hand by a bullet that pierced the cab of his truck as he was driving it on Interstate 70 three miles east of Watkins, Colo., yesterday. He was not seriously injured.

In parts of Michigan, Montana and Nevada drivers stopped their rigs on expressways yesterday. State troopers quickly hauled them out of the way.

to get out of urban planning in the eastern coridor and we should nail them to the wall Monday, and we constitute our planning commission as the area planning commission."

"We can make a showplace of North Marin," Quesada said. The growth in the next 10 to 20 years will be in Novato and San Rafael, he said. "Give us the representatives and let us do it."

The council voted 4-to-1 that the 500-a-year limit be applied to the entire Novato planning area not just the city. Mayor Fred F. Ruegg, who wanted to set a limit only for the city, dissented.

Ruegg said he believes the county "envisioned sending all the low income housing they can to this area," and he expressed concern about "getting mixed up with the county."

Planning technician David Wade explained that under the county proposal, Novato would have the majority of the members on the proposed review board.

He explained that under the county plan the review board would rate projects after all other planning procedures were completed and the only appeal would be to the courts.

Under the city planning staff proposal, review would be integrated during the planning process, and appeals could be made to the council or supervisors, whichever had jurisdiction.

Senior planner Mark Westfall said the growth in the city has averaged a little less than 400 dwelling units a year and in the planning area 540 units a year, during the period from 1960-72.

At an earlier meeting, the planning commission passed a resolution establishing open space regulations, including a provision for agricultural preserves, as small as 10 acres.

The council adjourned until 8:20 a.m. tomorrow to interview applicants for two open seats on the planning commission.

Coast Chamber Seats Officers

The Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce installed new officers last night at its annual dinner meeting in the Rancho Nicasio.

Herbert H. Angress of Marshall was seated as president, succeeding Earl L. Lupton. Others installed were Michael Gahagan, vice president; Emma K. Benevenga, secretary, and Jeanette Tanner, treasurer.

Tomales High School students Toni Weyman and Krispin Sanford, who went to France as exchange students, showed slides of their trip.

Cuddles Just Too Expensive

Because the local government authority wants the zoo to return Cuddles' pool to its original depth, she has been offered for sale at $82,500, and there have been no bidders.

The local authority said the zoo infringed a building regulation, and the zoo said it would cost too much to return the pool to its original size.

"We shall be very sorry to see her go. But it will cost far too much money to build a new pool for Cuddles," said a zoo spokesman.

Unless a deal goes through soon, the zoo may be forced to put the three-ton whale into a small storage pool, he said.

Tiburon Hires Firm For Project

The Tiburon City Council has decided to hire Stone and Youngberg of San Francisco as a financial consulting firm to help the city with its proposed downtown redevelopment project.

City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert said that the council asked him at a closed session Wednesday to draw up a contract with the firm which was interviewed at a Monday council meeting.

At that time Terence J. McCarty of the firm said that the fee for Stone and Youngberg's services would be $250 per day.

TIME

state from DST if a governor issued a proclamation saying an exemption was needed to conserve fuel or avoid hardship. Nixon also could ignore the proclamation, however. The request must come from the governor before daylight time goes into effect.

A state split by a time zone could by law exempt the portion of the state in one of the time zones from the DST law, resulting in uniform time throughout the state.

Indiana, which exempts part of its territory from DST under present law, would be permitted to continue that exemption automatically.

Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands automatically are exempted.

Otherwise, no exceptions would be permitted.

By providing one extra hour daylight in the evening, when home energy demands are greatest, the theory is that less heating will be needed and lights and electrical appliances will be used one hour less than normal.

Opponents contended little energy would be saved and that extreme hardship would be caused in some areas, including children having to wait in the dark for school buses.

On the northwestern edge of time zones, the sun would not rise until after 9 a.m.

Because of late winter sunrises, the bill directed the Federal Communications Commission to permit many daylight-only radio stations to go on the air earlier in the evening.

If the sunrise-to-sunset stations were required to wait until local sunrise in some areas, their main morning audience already would be at work or at school.

Tanker Is Ordered To Give Guam Aid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A California-bound oil tanker has been ordered to change course for Guam to alleviate a fuel shortage on the island. The move yesterday is believed to be the first allocation order issued by Federal Energy Office director William Simon.

The order told Union Oil Co. to divert a tanker with a half million barrels of oil to Guam's only refinery at Apra by Dec. 31.

DRILL

setting up medical and other emergency teams.

"We're getting to the point where we can work on other phases," Barrows explained. "There's no doubt our communications need a lot more effort, though we've already spent a lot of money on it. The evacuation plans need attention," he added.

Sixty disaster workers and observers worked throughout the morning reacting to an imaginary earthquake of 6.5 magnitude that sundered Highway 101 in several places, broke major dams in central and northern Marin, ruptured gas, water and sewer lines and collapsed a number of buildings.

In the afternoon, County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis and a smaller group of disaster workers manned the temporary command post while schools went through earthquake drills and reported imaginary crises, via volunteer amateur radio networks.

It was the first time that the schools' earthquake drills — required twice a year under state law — had been coordinated with countywide training for the other emergency services. Stress yesterday was on utilizing fire equipment, private and public utility manpower, heavy rescue equipment and evacuation procedures. Less emphasis was put on emergency medical procedures than in the two earlier countywide drills.

segment of the economy profit while others are sacrificing," Warren said.

Nixon was studying reports of airline and auto industry layoffs, gas station closings, and disruption in industries which are affected by the nationwide energy shortage.

The economic quadriad that serves as Nixon's chief advisory team includes Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Chairman Herbert L. Stein of the presidential Council of Economic Advisers, Budget Director Roy L. Ash and Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve.

There have been some forecasts —chiefly by critics of administration policies —that unemployment might reach 8 per cent next year because of layoffs resulting from industrial cutbacks due to fuel shortages.

A housing industry leader predicted unemployment would be widespread, accompanied by business failures and housing shortages, because of administration policies.

George C. Martin, president of the National Association of Home Builders, told newsmen the administration had taken a negative approach to housing production.

Yesterday, Nixon met for nearly an hour with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrinin, but the White House declined to give any details other than to say they reviewed U.S.-Soviet relations.

MUSIC FROM THE CRISIS

Christmas carolers add a festive air to shopping at the Great Store in San Rafael. The singers (left to right) Wana Dowell, Rochelle Labert and Michelle Truffaut will be performing traditional and folk carols daily from now to Christmas Eve. Eugene Schankel, co-owner of the store, said he hired the carolers as a kind of replacement for the lighted Christmas decorations which the store has used in the past. "We've cut out the lights because of the energy crisis," he said.

Ross Council Won't Douse Smoking Lamp

Proving that where there's smoke there's fire, a Ross computer analyst chided his town councilmen last night for refusing to ban smoking at council meetings.

"You smokers must realize you're addicted to a narcotic," said Sandy G. McKean.

The council had just killed a motion by councilman Roy Farrington Jones to douse the smoking lamp in the tiny council chambers.

As Mayor Frederick S. Allen puffed a cigarette and councilman Alan P. Maginis sucked on a pipe, Jones said:

"Ever since I stopped smoking I get a headache halfway through these meetings. When I get home my clothes reek of smoke."

Jones's wife, Nancy, a reformed two-pack-a-day smoker who also was known to light up an occasional cigar, suggested a compromise: "Call a 10-minute recess and let the addicts go outside and light up."

Urging councilmen to strike a blow for cleaner air and healthier lungs, McKean pleaded: "Now that we know smoking is unhealthy, it's time to do something about it."

But the matter was extinguished when Jones's motion to declare the council chambers off-limits to smoking drew no second.

The Ross Town Council Also:

FEES — Was informed the town already has spent more than $6,800 in legal fees to defend itself against a suit brought by Peter S. Valentine challenging city approval of a flood control project for Corte Madera Creek.

LOTS — Approved readjustments of lot lines for three parcels on Laurel Grove Avenue to remove .7 acres from one lot and apply it to two others. The split was asked by Marcy C. Skewes-Cox and Joan S. Malone.

PARKING — Adopted an ordinance banning parking on portions of Olive and Bolinas avenues near Glenwood Avenue at the San Anselmo line.

RENT — Voted to charge $150 per month to the Ross Valley Sanitary District for use of a sliver of land the town owns between the post office and Corte Madera Creek. The district is using the land to store equipment being used in a sewer project. The council also ordered the district to remove a pile of dirt blocking the post office parking lot.

TREES — Introduced an ordinance permitting the superintendent of public works, rather than the town council, to approve requests to trim or remove trees on private property.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Jan. 10 at town hall.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Human blood plasma was used in an operation amputating the right leg of a 16-year-old female gorilla at Sydney's Taronga Zoological Park, the zoo director said.

Jury Panel Calls For PG&E Line Leasing, Undergrounding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A grand jury yesterday revived a 50-year-old national park dam controversy and recommended that the city take over electric power distribution from the giant Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

The city attorney's office promptly pooh-poohed the 7,000 word report.

Acquisition by means of revenue bonds through a non-profit corporation of PG&E facilities.

Undergrounding of all power lines within 10 years.

"It looks to me as if they've overlooked a lot of technicalities and legalities," said William Bourne, the city attorney's general counsel for public utilities for the past 11 years.

The report hinges on a controversy over public power that began half a century ago when the Hetch Hetchy Valley was damned in Yosemite National Park to provide San Francisco with power and water.

The dam on the Tuolumne River was a personal defeat for conservationist John Muir, who founded the Sierra Club. The environmentalist-oriented club still insists that the O'Shaughnessy Dam should be torn down and the Little Yosemite Valley be returned to its natural state.

Congressional legislation in 1913 authorized the dam. But it specified that the city couldn't sell its Hetch Hetchy electricity to private utility companies for resale, said the grand jury report. In 1940 the U.S. Supreme Court issued an injunction that told the city to quit disposing of electric power through PG&E.

In 1930 a second phase of the Hetch Hetchy plan was completed with the purchase of privately owned Spring Valley Water Co.

The grand jury questioned the low-cost sale of Hetch Hetchy power to the Modesto and Turlock Irrigation Districts — original partners with San Francisco in the Tuolumne River water and power development.

Mrs. Jean P. Sullivan, chairman of the jury's Public Utilities Committee, said she reviewed the old court decisions and, "My eyes popped out. The law is clear," she said. "The city is supposed to have a public power system. Where is it?"

The grand jury report called for creation of a Hetch Hetchy Power Distribution Corp., which would become a non-profit, non-stock corporation to issue revenue bonds without the ability to levy taxes. It would acquire PG&E properties, including power lines, to be leased to the city.

Bourne said the report overlooked a number of technical details. San Francisco's arrangements for disposal of Hetch Hetchy power are reviewed every three months by the U.S. Interior Department and approved, he said.

END OF CHASE — Larkspur police yesterday prepared to haul away the car of Gerald C. Crane, 22-year old son of television personality Les Crane, who led officers on a 75 miles-per-hour chase through the Bon Air hills. Crane was finally run to earth at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road.

Arrest Finally Ends Wild Chase

A young Mill Valley man led Larkspur police yesterday afternoon on a chase through the twisting streets of the Bon Air hills — reportedly at speeds up to 75 miles per hour — after a policeman attempted to arrest him on outstanding traffic warrants.

Police finally caught up with Gerald Clair Crane, 22, of 16 Lower Alcatraz Place, Mill Valley, at the intersection of Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road.

A Larkspur police spokesman said the chase began at the Marvin Gardens Deli-Restaurant on Magnolia Avenue, where an off-duty officer spotted Crane and his mother, Eve Crane of Seattle. The policeman summoned a uniformed officer to arrest the pair for outstanding traffic warrants. Mrs. Crane had been cited for $290 in violations and her son owed $516, police reported. Both were said to be former Corte Madera residents.

When the uniformed officer arrived, the son fled in his white 1964 Plymouth Fury, according to police. The chase began, joined by several other off-duty policemen. "The uniformed officer was the only unit on the road and so he had no other help," a spokesman said.

Crane was jailed on charges of resisting arrest, reckless driving and failing to yield to red light and siren, as well as not appearing on the original traffic violations. Mrs. Crane posted bond and was released. Her son was held in lieu of $896 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

California Highway Patrolmen arrested Crane in September of 1969 after chasing him along U.S. 101 at 130 m.p.h. speeds. On that occasion he told police he wanted to see how fast his car would go.

In 1971 the youth was sentenced to four months in the Marin County Jail for burglarizing a Greenbrae quarry and possessing 100 pounds of stolen dynamite.

His father is Les Crane, a Bay Area television personality whose program appeared on KGO-TV's Channel 7 several years ago.

Struck Markets Secure Court Order On Pickets

Supermarkets being picketed in the labor dispute between butchers and employers obtained a court order yesterday limiting the number and activities of pickets around store entrances and driveways.

A Sacramento Superior Court judge ruled that no more than one picket per driveway will be allowed. He also prohibited mass picketing, customer harassment, large-scale demonstrations and blocking driveways.

The order, directed against six butcher locals, is enforcable in all Northern California counties except Alameda.

Marin supermarket chains affected by the ruling include Safeway, Lucky, Albertson's and Alpha Beta, where the butchers strike-lockout continues in full force.

The only unresolved issue in the 11-day-old Bay Area labor fight is whether a cost-of-living pay increase formula will be unlimited or have certain maximums each year.

Meanwhile, many Marin markets opened their meat departments yesterday after signing interim agreements with the butchers. Local chains reaching settlements with the union were Cala Foods, Big G and United Markets.

Caning Is Kept

LONDON (AP) — The House of Lords rejected a bill that would have banned caning in British schools. The Lords reasoned that the use of caning was steadily declining, but some educators wanted it retained on the books to serve as a disciplinary threat.

Bugliosi Seeking Younger's Post

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Los Angeles deputy district attorney Vincent Bugliosi announced today that he is a candidate for the Democratic party's nomination for state attorney general.

The 39-year-old Bugliosi, who prosecuted the Manson family in the Tate-La Bianca murder trial, unsuccessfully ran for district attorney of Los Angeles earlier this year.

Knifing Of Grandmother Laid To Ex-Marin Man

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 27-year-old former Marin resident has been jailed here after being indicted for the murder of his 80-year-old widow grandmother in her Russian Hill mansion.

Robert M. Pasqualetti was accused of fatally stabbing Stella Pasqualetti repeatedly in the chest with a 12-inch knife. Police found the weapon — along with a pair of bloodied workman's gloves — in a garbage can in the 15-room mansion.

Mrs. Pasqualetti's body was found Nov. 14 by her son, Dr. Roy Pasqualetti of Kentfield, the accused man's father.

Attorney Alan Brotsky, retained by Pasqualetti's father, said he would ask the San Francisco Superior Court today to order mental examinations for the accused man. Brotsky said his client "thinks that he is being burned and that he is getting radio messages." He said Pasqualetti had left home when he graduated from high school at 18, and has had little contact with his family since.

Police said Pasqualetti had worked as a warehouseman in October in Oakland, where he bought the gloves left at the murder scene. His only police record was a minor narcotics charge in 1971, later dismissed. He also was briefly treated in a psychiatric ward in 1971.

Roth Asserts He Can Bring 'Independence'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — William Matson Roth, of Ross, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year, asserts that he can bring independence to the governor's office.

To back up his claim, he told 500 persons at a fund-raising lunch yesterday that "I have not taken—I will not take—one penny from an individual or a special interest contributor who has a financial stake in the decisions of state government."

Roth, whose grandfather founded the Matson Steamship Co., commented that "I know and like many of my opponents —Republican and Democratic— and to my knowledge, none of them is a rascal."

"But I am telling you that none of them would have greater independence than I."

Roth was not quite so kind to Gov. Ronald Reagan, a fellow regent of the University of California.

He said that Reagan's policies on the board had been one of the key reasons he entered the race.

"You can't sit across the desk from him—as I have at the Regents for the past seven years—and not entertain the thought you would like to replace him."

Roth pledged that as governor he would appoint "public advocates, not special interest representatives to the state's regulatory agencies.

"I would, to put it more succinctly, throw the foxes out of the henhouse."

Skylab 3 Team Beats One Mark

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts passed the first space station pilots' record for time in space today and said they felt like they were just starting their 84-day flight.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue passed the one-third mark of their mission—28 days, 23 minutes—at 9:23 a.m. EST on their 415th revolution of the earth. At 9:51 a.m. they surpassed the Skylab 1 crew's time of 28 days, 49 minutes, 49 seconds.

The second crew currently holds the world spaceflight endurance record of 59 days and 11 hours.

Ground communicator Robert Crippen counted down from 10 to the precise second that the pilots passed the time of Charles (Pete) Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

"You guys have now been in orbit as long as the Skylab 1 crew," Crippen told them. "Congratulations."

"It's hard to believe Pete and his guys were through after this long," Carr replied. "We feel like we're just getting started."

Skylab program director William C. Schneider said yesterday there was nothing presently to prevent the three astronauts from finishing their three-month mission.

Schneider said the astronauts have done excellent research work and the station, launched May 14, was in good shape.

"All in all for a vehicle that's been in orbit for seven months, it's behaving very well and we're very pleased with the mission as it's progressing thus far," he said.

Schneider said the astronauts were "go for 60 days, open ended" to the possible three months. He said there is no problem anyone knows of that could end the mission prematurely. After the astronauts spend 59 days in space, ground physicians will approve weekly extensions of their flight.

"This crew certainly doesn't have anything to be ashamed of," he said. "We're not particularly happy that the filters were left out, but we don't think it's an earth shattering thing."

For the first time in their 28-day trip, the astronauts saw Comet Kohoutek without the aid of their optical instruments. Pogue, obviously excited as he watched the comet streak toward its loop around the sun, said it had grown significantly brighter during the past 24 hours.

VET TO BE 100

While he sipped his one-beer-a-day ration at the Miami Veterans Hospital yesterday, Spanish-American war veteran Alfred Chapman looked forward to his 100th birthday tomorrow. Chapman remembers fighting in Cuba and president-to-be Teddy Roosevelt: "Common-looking man, he was. Common as you and me," Chapman said.

FCC Commissioner Lee Submits His Resignation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Communications Commissioner H. Rex Lee said today he has submitted his resignation to the President, effective Dec. 31, 17 months before his term was to end.

Lee, 63, is the second Democratic commissioner to resign within 10 days. Commissioner Nicholas Johnson's recently quit after serving six months past expiration of his seven-year term.

"I have been in government for 38 years and I decided I wanted to do something else," Lee said. "I decided now is a good time to retire."

The Rigby, Idaho, native said he had no immediate plans, but that he would stay in Washington and "remain active." He said he is in "excellent" health and did not resign early because of any policy disputes.

Lee, an economist, began his government service with the U.S. Resettlement Administration in Moscow, Ida., in 1936, and came to Washington in 1942 with the War Relocation Authority.

He subsequently served as deputy commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, governor of American Samoa under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and was named by Johnson to the FCC in 1968, after a stint as assistant administrator of the Agency for International Development.

Lee said he had been waiting for the White House to announce his resignation, and said it would be accepted soon.

JFK Affair With Sex Symbol Told

NEW YORK (UPI) — Syndicated gossip columnist Earl Wilson reported yesterday that Marilyn Monroe had a romance with President John F. Kennedy. Just before she died of an overdose of sleeping pills in 1962, Wilson reported, she said, "Say goodbye to the President."

Wilson said he withheld the story for years but finally decided "to set the record straight" because of a book on Miss Monroe which dwelled on her friendship with Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, written by Norman Mailer.

Miss Monroe's relationship with President Kennedy is detailed in Wilson's own book on the life of the late actress, to be published early next year. He said he undertook a three-year investigation to establish a "dalliance" between the blonde sex goddess and the president.

Wilson said the affair went on for almost a year before Miss Monroe's death. He said she was sometimes a discreet guest at little dinners arranged by President Kennedy, usually at the Hotel Carlyle in New York.

54 Persons Missing From Sunken Vessel

SUVA, Fiji Islands (UPI) — Officials reported yesterday that 54 persons were missing in the sinking of a cargo ship by a powerful cyclone packing 100 mile an hour winds.

There were 41 known survivors among the 95 passengers on the inter-island vessel Uluilakeba which sank Monday off the southern tip of Fiji enroute from Vatoa Island to Ogea Island.

Among the missing was Dr. Melvin Hill, chairman of the music department at Pacific Union College near Napa, Calif., and his wife, Jean. Mrs. Hill is an assistant professor in the school's art department.

The Seventh Day Adventist-operated liberal arts college is at Angwin, Calif., 25 miles from Napa.

The Hills were headed for Australia for the Christmas holidays, school officials reported.

One survivor, Metui Lasarusa, 43, said the ship "went down so quickly in those big seas many people were trapped in their cabins."

Lasarusa, the ship's boatswain who was rescued from the seas Tuesday, said a shark encircled him while he was swimming alone.

"I was using a sack of unhusked coconuts as a floater," he said. "I had drifted with a very strong current since the ship sank about 1330 hours on Monday. On Tuesday afternoon shortly before I was picked up I saw a shark's fin slice through the water toward me.

"I am a God fearing man and I prayed. The shark seemed to veer away. It circled me once or twice and disappeared. I thanked God and thought of my wife and children who were awaiting my return in Suva."

Lasarusa said he ran up on deck when the ship pitched over to one side. When the ship heeled over a second time he saw passengers jumping into the heavy sea, he said.

"It was so sudden. The wind was something like 100 miles an hour and the seas seemed more than 40 or 50 feet high."

Electricity Use Shows Decrease

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. customers used 6 per cent less electricity during the first week of December than in the comparable week last year, according to the utility.

The reduction was attributed partly to warmer temperatures but also indicated an effort by users to conserve energy, Joseph Y. De Young, vice-president of commercial operations, said yesterday.

"This report shows that our customers are heeding pleas to conserve energy," De Young said. However, he added the 10 per cent reduction requested by the California Public Utilities Commission had not yet been achieved.

Ban On Carols

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — The Ithaca school board has banned Christmas carols that refer to the birth of Jesus, ruling that they make it uncomfortable for children who are not Christians.

Senate Vote On Saxbe's Nomination Set Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the expectation of new assurances from President Nixon on the independence of Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, the Senate Judiciary Committee has approved Sen. William B. Saxbe to be attorney general.

The committee voted 15-1 to approve Saxbe after Republican Leader Hugh Scott agreed to seek "clarification" from the White House on the agreement under which Jaworski's independence and jurisdiction is protected.

Earlier yesterday, committee liberals had demanded that Nixon submit written assurances to the committee before Saxbe was approved.

Scott called their demand "a tempest in a teapot" but said he would try to obtain the assurances before the expected Senate vote to confirm Saxbe on Monday.

"After the swearing-in," Saxbe said, "I'll tell you how I feel."

The only vote against the Ohio Republican came from Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., who felt that a constitutional problem over Saxbe's pay had not been cleared up.

Sens Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Philip Hart, D-Mich., had threatened to delay Saxbe's approval until the written assurances were given, but Hart said later he was satisfied with Scott's offer to seek further clarification.

At issue was language added last month by Acting Attorney General Robert Bork to the special prosecutor's charter. It requires that Nixon obtain the consensus approval of eight congressional leaders before either dismissing Jaworski or limiting his investigation.

Hart and Kennedy called the provision an "erosion" of Jaworski's authority.

Report On Apartments Is Delayed

An environmental impact report on a controversial proposal for 80 apartment units off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Fairfax last night failed to gain prompt action by the Fairfax Design and Environmental Review Board.

The board, after a lengthy and often rambling public hearing, said more environmental impact information is needed and continued review of the document to 8 p.m. Jan. 10 in the Fairfax Women's Club.

The report by Lampman and Associates of Walnut Creek outlines the moderate-income project proposed by owners Eleanor McArdle Jean and McKeon Construction Co. for 20 one-bedroom apartments and 60 two-bedroom apartments in 15 two-story structures on the 3.44-acre Buon Gusto restaurant site between Olema Road and Broadway Avenue.

The project would require paved surfaces over 88 per cent of the site, require 176 parking spaces and house 200 people, according to the report.

McKeon attorney Albert Bianchi told the board that the site is zoned for up to 100 apartment units, and said only 80 units are proposed in order to minimize impact of development.

Bianchi also rapped "pre-hearing publicity" on the proposal, saying statements made last week by Fairfax Town Councilman Frank J. Egger prejudged the project and "tend to make almost a charade out of this public hearing."

Egger, running for reelection to the council, said he opposed development of the site on the "basis of density alone".

Bianchi urged the board to keep the project out of the "political football season."

The proposal was roundly criticized by several neighbors and Fairfax residents, among a crowd of about 40 who attended the hearing.

Louis Vaccaro, who said he owns property near the Buon Gusto site, claimed that the hearing was legally "clouded," saying neighbors had not been given notice of a rezoning hearing for the parcel last year. Another man, William Anker of 11 Olema Road, described the rezoning as "sneaky-poo".

The town council rezoned the property from restricted commercial district to multiple residential in November, 1972.

Anker also warned that the project may become a "shoddy slum," and said the development would compound severe drainage and sewage problems in the area.

The project drew the support of several residents, one of whom described the board as a "bunch of idiots" since lagging on approval of the impact report will result in wasted time and spiralling development costs.

The board said it needs more information before acting on the report, including the total projected cost of the development, more precise air pollution and traffic information, and other data.

Board members admitted that the report will probably require a series of hearings, and said the project is especially difficult to evaluate since the board has no staff to aid in review of such planning matters.

(UPI Telephoto)

Three Key New York Legislators Charged In Vote Grabbing Plan

NEW YORK (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, who is charged with masterminding an illegal plan to get votes away from Democratic candidates, yesterday said he will not resign from the legislature and indicated he may still run for governor.

"These charges are really nothing," the Long Island Republican told a news conference after his arrest. "We are going to move as soon as possible for a proper disposition of the case."

The two-count indictment against Duryea and five others charged he was the "ultimate authority" behind a bogus "Action Committee of the Liberal Party," which last year aided Liberal candidates in 12 Assembly races considered toss-ups between Democratic and Republican candidates.

The committee allegedly mailed fake campaign literature to voters thought to be likely to favor Democrats, hoping to swing their votes to the weaker Liberal contenders and help ensure a GOP victory.

Also named in the indictment were Assembly Majority Leader John E. Kingston of Westbury, Assemblyman Alfred A. Delli Bovi of New York, and three members of Duryea's staff—Henry A. Mund Jr., I. Lynn Mueller, and James Threatte.

All pleaded innocent at their arraignment before State Supreme Court Justice Jawn Sandifer and were released on their own recognizance.

"I do not intend to resign," Duryea told reporters, promising he would be in the speaker's chair Jan. 9, when the next Assembly session opens, "to bang the gavel." Asked about the governorship, he said, "I am keeping my options open." He said, "I would need more information," when asked about suggestions the charges were an attempt at "political assassination."

Duryea, who heads a lobster-fishing firm, was elected speaker of the lower house of the New York state legislature in 1969.

Duryea has been seen as the leading rival to Gov.-designate Malcolm Wilson for the 1974 GOP nomination. Wilson, currently lieutenant governor, will take office next week when Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller resigns.

"I doubt this will have any effect on my political career because these charges will be dismissed," he said.

Scotti said the scheme involved $12,000 and about 80,000 letters were mailed.

Three Die From Sewer Line Fumes

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Three workmen cleaning a big, muck-filled sewer pipe in the Jersey swamplands were killed yesterday when they were overcome by toxic fumes, police said.

A police spokesman said two scuba divers who were called after rescue workers were driven back by the gases pulled the bodies from the 4-by-6-foot, 750-foot long pipe.

"It was filled with muck and water," said Paradiso.

The captain said the victims, who were not wearing gas masks, were trying to remove sludge from the pipe with a narrow, 850-foot-long steel cable that had a shovel at one end. The other end was attached to a truck.

One of the victims crawled into the pipe to look for the end of the cleaning cable, and the others noted that he failed to return and went in after him.

William Colon, 27, of Jersey City, N.J., the foreman of another crew, crawled in when radio contact was broken off and spotted the bodies. He backed out in time to avoid injury.

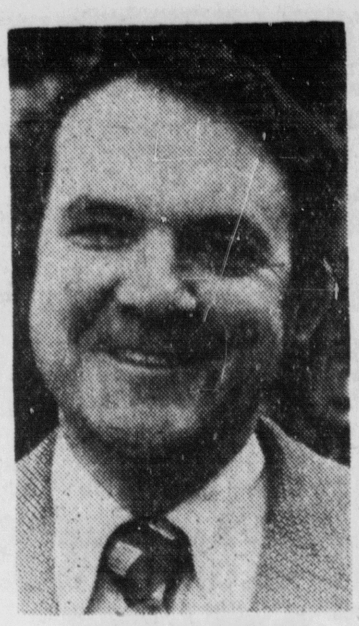
It took the divers three 10-minute trips to bring the bodies out. Police said the victims were found at distances of 50, 37, and 30 feet from the opening of the pipe, which is one of a network that carries refuse from downtown Newark to the swamps.

A company spokesman said the clean-up crews had been working under a city contract for the past three months and that this particular job "was coming to an end."

The victims were not wearing gas masks when they entered the pipe, Paradiso said.

The victims, employes of the Robinson Pipe Cleaning Co. of Newark, were tentatively identified as Thomas Williams, 30, Robert Rivers, 36, and Sergio Perez, 25, all of Newark.

Planner To Make Run In Larkspur



CHARLES H. CURLEY
To enter council race

Charles H. Curley, Larkspur planning commissioner, will seek a seat on the city's council in the March 5 election.

He would like to make the council more responsive to city residents.

"Seven years as a Larkspur planning commissioner has given me a working knowledge of issues which concern all Larkspur residents," the 37-year-old Curley said. "Proper city planning and effective local government means that the city council must be responsive to citizens."

Curley is the president of a San Francisco packaging distribution firm. He has been a resident of Larkspur since 1962 and a commission member since 1966.

He is chairman of the board of Marin House, a home for retarded women in Corte Madera, a director of the Marin Audubon Society and a member of the Sierra Club and Marin Conservation League.

The terms of councilmen Alfred J. Malvino and Neil R. Brixon will expire next spring. Brixon will not seek reelection but Malvino will run for a third term.

Airline Trainee Says Clothing Forced Ouster

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Kathryn Miller, 25, a pretty stewardess-trainee for Hughes Air West Airline, has complained that she was dismissed because her clothes were too avant garde.

Miss Miller, of Saratoga, Santa Clara County, asserts that a male supervisor dropped her from the stewardess class because she wore a maxilength denim jumper skirt and red turtleneck sweater on a flight.

She said the stewardesses were supposed to ride as passengers on the flight to observe other passengers and the experienced stewardesses.

Miss Miller said she was never given any dress regulations and that she had been told stewardesses were supposed to be "trend-setters" in their attire.

A spokesman for the airline said Miss Miller ignored dress regulations and therefore was dropped from the program.

PONY POWER

Richard F. Johnston of North Reading, Mass., does his bit to ease the energy crisis by giving Betty Conner (left) and Doris Lafond, both of Wakefield, a pony cart ride to the Lynnfield restaurant where all three work. Johnson keeps about a dozen horses and ponies and uses the cart when weather permits. The ride to work takes about half an hour.

Drivers Tending To Ignore Pooling Rides

Despite gasoline shortages and government pleas for more car pooling, Marin and Sonoma commuters are driving to work alone in increasing numbers.

Vehicle counts comparing morning commuter traffic on Monday with June 18 on the Golden Gate Bridge, showed the average occupancy per vehicle had dropped from 1.35 in June to 1.31 on Monday.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said the figures indicated larger car pools had the greatest cuts. The number of single-occupancy vehicles, he reported to district directors, went from 15,058 to 15,339 on those dates.

While the number of two-occupant vehicles went slightly up from 3,934 to 3,941, three-occupant vehicles dropped from 736 to 664 and four-occupant vehicles from 313 to 215.

Other counts showed five occupant vehicles dropped from 76 to 52 and six occupant vehicles from 74 to 51.

Luehring also reported that while the number of commuters has increased steadily, bridge traffic during November dropped 2.19 per cent compared to the same month last year.

The additional commuters apparently helped to account for the record 8,379 who rode district buses on Monday.

Jail Terms Urged For Fuel Violators

Mandel said he is preparing an executive order which will impose a 60-day jail term and fines as high as $1,000 for violators. The order will make it a crime for anyone to charge excessive prices for heating oil, diesel fuel or gasoline.

Auto Sales Gain Over Last Year's

DETROIT (UPI) — For the first time since mid-September, U.S. auto makers have reported they sold more cars in a 10-day sales period this year than they did during the same period last year.

They credited a steady switch to smaller cars for the reversed trend in declining sales, a 1 per cent increase over the Dec. 1-10 period in 1972.

Mack W. Worden, GM vice president for marketing, said the new car market "continues to reflect buyer indecision resulting from confusion and uncertainty with regard to the energy situation and its related impacts."

Nearly every small car model available showed an increase over last year, as did many of the intermediate models. The automakers sold 182,436 cars in the Dec. 1-10 period—a modest 1 per cent jump over a year ago.

It was the first time since the 1974 models were introduced that General Motors, the industry giant, showed such a gain. GM sales were up 2.8 per cent while American Motors continued its strong pace with a 43 per cent jump.

Ford Motor Co. sales were down 6.1 per cent, but small cars — the Pinto, Maverick, Mustang II and Comet— accounted for one of every two sales. Mustang was up 185 per cent from a year ago, Pinto was up 39 per cent, and Maverick showed a 25 per cent jump.

Chrysler was down 1.1 per cent, primarily in the big car area. Sales of the compact Valiant were up 64 per cent, while Dart sales increased 41 per cent.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend, in a year-end statement yesterday, said his firm's production would be more than 50 per cent small cars by mid-January. The company is indefinitely idling 2,100 workers at two big car assembly plants while converting its Newark, Del., facility to Dart and Valiant production.

College To Delay Year On Project

A $1.6 million College of Marin building project will be delayed for one year, Marin Community College District trustees decided last night.

The board said it wanted more information about the administrative services center, said Earlen Jones, district publicist. She said trustees also want to study alternative sites for the building.

The postponement means construction of the center will not begin until 1976.

Trustees also approved a $221,153 corporation yard for the college. Construction will start next year.

Marin Community College District board also:

ACCOUNTING — Approved $3,181.50 to add new terminals to district computers to accommodate updating of accounting systems to conform with new changes in state requirements.

SENIORS — Reduced class fees from $6 to $3 for persons over 55 years old in the district's Emeritus College program for senior citizens.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired Ole Prahm as supervisor of plant operations and maintenance at the College of Marin at a monthly salary of $1,430.

TELEVISION — Agreed to join other Bay Area colleges which have banded together to provide college courses on KGO-TV. Cost to the college will be approximately $10,000.

STUDY — Decided to spend $5,000 for a consultant to study problems in the new college library's heating, ventilating and air conditioning system.

SOUND — Spent $1,000 for a sound consultant study of acoustical problems at Harlan Center.

MEETING — Will meet to select a new college architect at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Room 101 of the Science Center at College of Marin.

Hells Angels Attack Off Duty Policeman

A San Francisco policeman was attacked and beaten last night by two Hells Angels in Fairfax, police reported today.

Police said patrolman Herman G. Fruchtenicht of Fairfax was taken to Marin General Hospital with cuts and bruises following the 11 p.m. attack on a Fairfax street, but hospital spokesmen said they have no record of his admittance or treatment.

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon were John Nelson Sibbald, 25, of 156 G Street, San Rafael, and Robert David Bayer, 24, of 215 First Street, San Rafael.

Both men were held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Fruchtenicht was driving on Pacheco Avenue near Center Boulevard when another car suddenly cut him off, turned off its front lights and stopped at a traffic sign on Center Boulevard.

Fruchtenicht pulled around the car, got out of his vehicle and approached the other car to see if its occupants needed aid, police said.

Two men police described as members of the Hells Angels jumped from the car, one immediately striking Fruchtenicht in the face with a chain, the other clubbing the back of Fruchtenicht's neck with a walking cane, police said.

The two men wrestled Fruchtenicht to the ground, kicked him in the face and choked him with a leather thong before speeding away, according to police.

Police arrested the two San Rafael men in a San Anselmo bar after spotting a parked car that matched a description of the vehicle used by the attackers.

Benefit Party To Aid Artist

The Help One, Then Another Committee, a Marin group which wants to help struggling Bay Area artists, will hold a benefit party at Davood's restaurant in Mill Valley at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday for artist Scott Behrens of San Rafael.

Proceeds will go to pay for a billboard to be created by Behrens, whose medium is mold, such as is found on food. Donald Koplowitz of the committee said the group hopes to put up the billboard on some Bay Area highway.

The party will feature food, music and an exhibit of Behrens' works. Davood's or Koplowitz, of 845 Fifth Street, San Rafael, can provide more information.

A DANDY EXCUSE FOR AN OUTING

Heavy rains, high winds and the incoming tide serve as an excuse for a boat outing for the Tackitt brothers of Tokeland, Wash., a small Willapa Harbor community. The storm hit the Washington coast Wednesday, turning one of the town's roads into a waterway.

Allen Will Seek Ross Slot Again

Allen, 61, has served on the council since he was appointed in 1960, and has been mayor continuously since 1964. He was reelected to the council in 1962, 1966 and 1970.

He is semiretired and devotes much of his time to town business. He formerly was vice president of the Pacific Coast Title Co.

Allen and his wife, Barbara, live at 131 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard; they have four grown children.

Allen was born in New York City, was graduated from Harvard University and served as a Navy officer in World War II and Korea, retiring as a commander.

Two council seats will be up for election in the March 5 election in Ross — Allen's and that of Vice Mayor Roy Farrington Jones. Candidate filings will close at noon Dec. 27 at the town clerk's office.

Partial Victory For The Nude Sunbather

Nude sunbathing on Bolinas Beach is not illegal, a Marin judge has ruled, because Marin's antinudity law covers only public property and not the private beach.

Municipal Judge David R. Baty issued the ruling in dismissing misdemeanor charges against four Bolinas residents and one Colorado man arrested July 24.

The brief order upheld the validity of the law for publicly owned land but said it does not apply to private property.

That was the point of view argued by Bolinas attorney Paul D. Kayfetz on behalf of Peter Holmes Davidson, 30, of Colorado, and four Bolinas residents — Roland Jacopetti, 37, Elizabeth Kreusler Ehmann, 39, Nancy Joan Denmark, 26, and Theodore Harvey Saladin, 36.

Kayfetz hailed Baty's decision as implying that no private beach in Marin is covered by the coverup ordinance.

Still pending in municipal court is the case of two Oakland residents and a Strawberry man, also accused of skinnydipping in West Marin.

The three — Stephen Francis White, 21, and Susan Mehrings White, 23, of Oakland, and Walter Voight, 33 — were arrested July 21 on Muir Beach.

Unlike Bolinas, Muir Beach was leased to the Muir Beach Community Services District by its owners and the district attorney's office contends this makes it public property and subject to the nudity ordinance.

Carpenters Continue To Halt Work

Teams of striking carpenters roamed throughout the county today closing down a number of construction projects.

Completely shut down were the Courthouse Square office-parking complex and Firemen's Fund Insurance building in San Rafael and the Highway 101 project in Novato.

A threatened confrontation between striking and working carpenters again failed to materialize at the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center addition in San Rafael, where other hospital picket lines were honored by all carpenters. Other tradesmen continue to work despite pickets.

Bike Path, Park Plans Approved In Larkspur

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission last night approved final plans for bicycle path and small park at the Greenbrae Interchange and forwarded them to the State Department of Transportation.

The commission voted to ask the state department how much money they allocate allocated to the park, said Harlan Barry, assistant city manager.

The plans were drawn by Arbegaste and Newton of Berkeley who are also drawing plans for the Heatherwood Park. The commission last night asked the firm to change the arrangement of the picnic facilities in the Heatherwood Park.

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission also:

OFFICERS — Elected Gilbert Dubuc as chairman and Arnold M. Mayer, vice chairman.

TREES —Approved a list of 40 trees for street tree planting.

TREE HOUSE — Continued to 7:30 p.m., Jan. 10, at the city hall consideration of a tree house, review of the plan for Piper Park and a public hearing on revisions to the parks and recreation master plan.

New Year's Show At Prison Is Off

The annual New Year's Day entertainment for San Quentin inmates is being canceled this year, according to Information Officer William D. Nyberg.

"The staff hasn't had the time available to set it up and coordinate it," he said. The cancellation is not for security reasons, Nyberg said.

"There are contributing factors. The musician's union, which has always donated its time to the program in the past, wants us to pay them $500 this year," Nyberg said.

Smaller programs may be put on throughout the year in the future, he said, rather than a single larger show.

Tiburon Water Tank Plan Flayed

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission decided last night to write to the Marin Municipal Water District objecting to the proposed site of a new water tank on the Paradise Drive side of the Tiburon Peninsula.

Commissioner Phyllis Ellman said the site just outside the city limits near the tip of the peninsula is on the edge of an oak-bay forest above Paradise Drive. To build the tank would require taking out dozens of trees, she said.

Free Parking In Sausalito

Free two-hour parking for downtown shoppers in Sausalito during the holiday season was granted last night by the city council.

Free parking will be available in lots 1 and 3 during daylight hours on weekdays from today through Dec. 31. City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie stressed that the parking holiday does not include evenings or weekends.

Prior to the public meeting, councilmen met in closed session with the city attorney to discuss a city condemnation suit against several owners of Southern Pacific Railroad property along the waterfront. No action resulted, McKenzie said.

Board Asks Long-Range School View

Bolinas-Stinson School District trustees have ordered a thorough study of school buildings, finance and curriculum.

"We will be looking at what exists and what needs to be done with an eye on long-range planning," said Supt. Bernard Barrish.

Trustees will head three committees, which also will include teachers and board members, and are to report their findings within three or four months, the board decided Tuesday.

The superintendent reported that the Grateful Dead rock group has cancelled an agreement to rent the old Stinson School for $1,500 as a practice hall. Barrish blamed newspaper publicity for the group's cancellation.

Trustees agreed to allow the Bolinas-Stinson Child Care Center to use the old Stinson School buildings for six months. The center, applying for federal funds, will pay utility and maintenance costs. The agreement will be reviewed after two months, Barrish said.

Board members set the district's first- mid-year kindergarten registration for children 5 years old on or before May 1. Parents may register youngsters at Bolinas School anytime during school hours up to Feb. 1.

Part of the distinctive power system of the University of Illinois' hybrid electric urban car — the constant power generator-rectified combination — was pointed out yesterday by Roger W. The generator-rectifier is combined with four nickel cadmium buffer batteries for acceleration. More than 100 students have worked on the three-year project. The vehicle is expected to be on the road by spring.

Rohnert Park Adopts Ordinance To Check Recreational Vehicles

Despite arguments by owners of recreational vehicles that their constitutional rights were being abused, the Rohnert Park Planning Commission last night recommended adopting an ordinance which would control such vehicles.

Under the recommended amendment to the city zoning ordinance, residents would not be allowed to park inoperative vehicles such as camper shells and unattached trailers in their front yards.

The vehicles still could be parked in side or back yards under the proposed amendment.

One member of the audience of 30 to 40 persons spoke in favor of the amendment, according to Sandra Faus, commission secretary.

Commissioners noted, however, that the large number of opponents had turned out because notices of the hearing had been mailed only to recreational vehicle owners.

The proposed amendment next will go to the city council.

In other action last night, the commission considered applications for two new restaurants.

A use permit was approved for a bar-restaurant to be built of wood and slumpstone and to have a 150-person seating capacity for a lot west of Commerce Boulevard near the Rohnert Park Expressway.

Another request for a McDonald's restaurant on Commerce Boulevard at Hunter Drive was held over by the commission, according to Mrs. Faus, because the commission wants an environmental impact study for the property, now zoned agricultural.

It has been proposed that the parcel be rezoned for commercial and multiple family use.

TWISTER TOLL — A tornado hit Gainesville, Ga., yesterday, taking the roofs off a number of homes and other buildings and injuring a reported 20 persons. Other twisters and thunderstorms with high winds slammed across Tennessee, northern Georgia and South Carolina. Two people were killed at Ninety Six, S.C. (UPI Telephoto)

Three Dead In Southern Storms

NINETY SIX, S.C. (UPI) — Three persons were killed and at least 47 injured yesterday as tornadoes ripped across three southern states, causing millions of dollars in damage.

Two women were killed when a twister cut a swath a mile long and nearly 100 feet wide through this rural area. It struck the Ninety Six Manufacturing Co., destroying a cloth separating building where they worked. A 15-month old boy, Brandon J. Farr, died in an overturned mobile home in Newberry County, S. c.

Twenty-six persons were injured in a tornado which struck Gainesville, Ga., shortly after noon. At least 44 houses were destroyed along with two trailer parks, two downtown businesses and a church.

Another twister ripped the roof off an elementary school in Conasauga, Tenn., yesterday morning, injuring three children. Several other children were trapped briefly in the rubble but were uninjured.

The worst damage was reported in Greenwood County, S.C., where Ninety Six Fire Chief Bubba Summers estimated damage in the millions of dollars. At least 18 persons were injured.

The tornado ripped through the Edgewood School community, a new housing development near Ninety Six, damaging nearly every house in the development and unroofing many of the structures.

The South Carolina National Guard was called to duty to prevent looting.

The workers killed at the Ninety Six Manufacturing Co., were identified as Charity Griffin and Ozala Thomas, both of Ninety Six. The plant was destroyed by the twister.

The basketball team at Mid Carolina High School in nearby Prosperity narrowly escaped injury when the gym roof was blown off.

In Gainesville, Ga., County Civil Defense Director H. D. Ward said it was an "unusual" tornado in that it "was narrow in width but it hit in so many places." He estimated damage at more than $2 million.

"You wouldn't believe what was done to those houses and trailers," Ward said. "A lot of times you couldn't tell whether a lot had a house on it or it was just a cleared out place."

State troopers were dispatched to the area to prevent looting.

In Conasauga, Tenn., two miles from the Georgia-Tennessee line, the five-room Conasauga Elementary School was flattened. The three children who were injured were not believed seriously hurt, however.

A tornado also struck Dayton, Tenn., demolishing two mobile homes and heavily damaging five others. Damage was estimated at $60,000.

Aerospace Back Pay Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Cost of Living Council ruling could mean between $75 and $85 million in back pay for up to 250,000 workers in the aerospace and related industries.

The CLC ruled Wednesday that 108,000 workers at five aerospace companies were entitled to pay withheld by decision of the now-defunct Pay Board. The money would be apportioned during the course of a year, instead of being paid in one lump sum.

The companies are Boeing Co., Lockheed Aircraft Corp., LTV Aerospace Corp., McDonnell Douglas Corp., and Rockwell International. The decision will cost them nearly $30 million.

10 Per Cent Pay Increase Is Asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The University of California's staff personnel board has been asked by the California State Employers' Association to recommend an average 10.8 per cent pay raise for non-academic employes next year.

The chairman of the CSEA's University Staff Occupational Council, L. Easter McHenry, said in the request yesterday that raises of 6 to 7 per cent per year have been necessary since 1969 to keep up with inflation and taxes.

(Second of eight articles on candidates for a seat on the Novato Planning Commission)

Albert Solnit, a 45-year-old planning consultant who has written a book entitled "The Job of a Planning Commissioner," is seeking that job on the Novato Planning Commission.

(Solnit is one of eight applicants to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Leroy J. Syrop last month).

"I've always been dishing out planning advice, and since I've stopped being a government official, I have been giving seminars on the job of a planning commission, Solnit said. "Now I figure I should pay my dues."

Solnit, who has worked overseas helping to set up commissions, said "the thing we (the United States) have going is people who volunteer to serve in local government."

Generally, "the most exportable thing we have is teaching people to govern themselves at home without depending upon big government," he said.

He said he has always been convinced of the merits of residents serving in local government voluntarily "and now I'd like to do it . . . see what it's like in the trenches."

Solnit, a consultant to Sonoma County on its general plan program and former chief of advance planning for Marin County, said he expects to "learn a lot" from experience on the planning commission.

He teaches at the University of California at Berkeley and Sonoma State College and has written a book on the fiscal impact of different types of development.

Solnit, a resident of Novato for 7 years, his wife, Theresa, and four children, live at 7 Carmel Drive.

Hub General Plan Leader Enters Race

Pieter Toal, chairman of San Anselmo's citizen's committee on the general plan, yesterday announced he will seek election to the city council March 5.

Toal, 52, is the first candidate to announce a bid for a council seat. The terms of Mayor Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart and councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V. Capurro expire.

Stewart and Perry have announced they will not seek reelection.

Toal, an engineer with a San Francisco consulting firm to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, said the major issue facing the city is putting the emerging general plan to work.

"I'm running because over the past two years I have chaired the citizens committee on the general plan, and I just want to make sure the plan is implemented by the city council," he said.

Toal said side issues in the race include future use of Isabel Cook School, which is being phased out over a three year period, and a horse control ordinance recently tabled by the city council.

PIETER TOAL
Makes council bid

He said the school should become city office space or a town center, and said the city has no need for a horse ordinance.

He pledged to make public all campaign contributions, contributors and expenses.

Toal, a native of The Netherlands, graduated from Delft Technological University with a master's degree in civil engineering.

During World War II, he was placed in a forced labor camp in Germany and after liberation served as an interpreter for the U.S. military government. He has lived in San Anselmo since 1964.

Toal was appointed to the San Anselmo School District board in 1965 to fill out the bulk of a four-year term, but failed to gain election to the board in 1969 and again in 1970.

Toal ran unsuccessfully for a council seat in 1972, basing his campaign almost exclusively on the issue of allowing second units on single family residential lots under certain circumstances.

Bahama Gaming Casino Is Closed

The Monte Carlo Casino here, a property of Bahamas Amusements, Ltd., announced its closing in a terse release Wednesday, giving no reason.

The closing follows by two weeks an announcement that the three casinos eventually would be taken over by the Bahamian government.

In 1972, Freeport's two casinos earned over $20 million and paid more than $4 million in gaming taxes to the Bahamian government.

The country's other casino is in Nassau.

WATER FLOWS IN CHICAGO

Jerry Ellick, a resident of a high rise condominium on the Chicago lakefront, watches water pour through window wall of his ground level unit. High winds yesterday knocked over a retaining wall, causing Lake Michigan water to flow into the building. Many other apartments and garages along the lakeshore were flooded by the pounding waters.

The completion was reported to the district board last night along with progress reports on other community projects.

A navigation lock at the mouth of the lagoon is under construction with completion expected early next year.

Improvements at Montego Park are about 50 per cent completed with irrigation system and underground electrical work finished and grading in progress, Mrs. Dow said.

Director Donald J. Thrall, who was reelected last month, and newly elected member Howard Kanter were seated on the board.

Directors expressed appreciation to former director Carl W. Wandt for his service.

BRIGHT BRUSSELS BOULEVARD

From all the lights ablaze on the Boulevard Adolphe Max in Brussels last night one would hardly guess that Belgium is hard hit by an energy shortage. The Christmas decorations, including an oil advertisement (top), blazed away as fuel-starved motorists passed beneath.

Bike Safety Program To Be Launched

The Larkspur School District board last night approved starting a bicycle safety program in all elementary schools.

The board voted to ask the police and any other interested group or individuals to help in the bicycle safety education program, said Supt. Milton S. Cohen.

The action came after the board received a copy of a State Assembly resolution stating that accidents on bicycles of elementary school children increased 70 per cent in the first quarter of 1972 over 1971, and asking the schools to start the classes.

The Larkspur School District board also:

MONEY — Received notice from the state Department of Education that the district will get $12,000 in Title 1 money for its special reading and mathematics classes.

MILK — Received notice that the state will subsidize the cost of milk by three cents per half pint carton, cutting the price to students from 10 to seven cents.

ENERGY — Heard a report that the district is conserving electricity by cutting the security night lights by half; saving fuel by cutting the boilers back by four hours a day; saving water by cutting down on the amounts used by the toilets; saving paper by using both sides and getting bins to hold paper for recycling.

DISASTER — Approved revised disaster plans for fire earthquake and atomic disasters. There are many minor changes such as if the children are outside during an earthquake they should stay there instead of entering the buildings as the present plans called for.

REPORTS — Heard a report that 96 per cent of parents held conferences with teachers in the past month.It approved having teachers make a report on the student as well as giving a grade in grades 4, 5 and 6 of the Henry C. Hall School.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m., Jan. 17 in the district office, postponing the Jan. 10 meeting by one week.

Savings Bond Offer On Energy Solution

An anonymous donor has pledged a $25 savings bond for the best energy saving idea offered by a San Anselmo School district child, district trustee John Hulpke told colleagues last night.

The board decided to sponsor a district energy conservation idea contest, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Elliott said the contest will be held after the Christmas vacation.

The San Anselmo School District Board also:

COMMITTEE — Commended the district master plan survey committee, a group that is soliciting resident opinion on future school district sites and facilities.

READING — Said reading tests given to first, second and third grade youngsters last May show that pupils are doing well in reading skills.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to evaluate Elliott's performance, but took no action on the matter. The board will consider the superintendent's employment again next month.

LEAVE — At her request, rescinded a leave of absence for teacher Frances Findley.

BUDGET — Approved shifting $64,851 from district reserves to various district accounts to pay for maintenance work, school supplies and equipment.

INVENTORY — Hired Tait Appraisal Co. of South San Francisco to inventory district assets.

EXPENSE — Approved a $9,000 expense to purchase a portable classroom from the Mill Valley School District.

SHARING — Said the district will share a music and instrument instructor with Sir Francis Drake High School.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Jan. 10 in Red Hill School.

Clean Air Act Meeting Set

A public meeting to discuss the Clean Air Act and the one year postponement of some provisions announced last week by the Environmental Protection Agency, has been set for noon on Feb. 14 at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael.

The meeting is sponsored by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau. It has sent notices to other chambers of commerce, unions, real estate brokers, businessmen and interested parties.

The meeting originally was scheduled for Jan. 10.

Hub Trustees Select Two New Principals

The San Anselmo School District board last night appointed Rulon Cook principal of Red Hill School and Robert Balzon principal of Isabel Cook and Yolansdale schools.

Both appointments were made for the remainder of the school year, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliot, saying permanent appointments were not made due to uncertainty over school closings and staffing needs.

Cook, 45, of 826 McKellop Court, Petaluma, is currently vice principal of Red Hill and Hidden Valley schools. The new post pays $21,136 annually.

He graduated from Utah State University with master's honors in education.

Balzon, 28, of 61 Windsor Avenue, San Rafael, is currently a teaching vice principal at Isabel Cook School. The new post pays $18,915 annually.

He graduated from San Francisco State University with master's honors in education.

Ancient Dining Custom Revived

That is until farmer's daughter Caroline Hunt arrived with Jezebel, the pride of her dairy herd, and milked the cow in the middle of the dining room.

"It was tradition in medieval times to bring the cow into the dining hall to prepare a syllabub," he said.

PREPARED THIS TIME

Many residents of Bay City, Mich., were caught unprepared when storms raged through the area last spring, causing extensive flooding. This mobile home owner apparently learned her lesson as she now keeps a boat tied to her front porch. Northwest winds caused minor flooding yesterday as the winter season's first storm brought snow to the area.

Dollar Mansion Plan Given By Supervisor

A Marin County supervisor yesterday proposed a broad-based plan for public acquisition of the historic Dollar mansion and grounds in San Rafael.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said he would like to turn the picturesque old mansion into a museum run by the Marin County Historical Society and use the grounds for other public activities.

He said preliminary discussions with city and county officials and representatives of the historical society and Marin Heritage Society indicated interest in a joint venture to purchase the estate.

Roumiguiere said funds to buy the mansion and surrounding 10 acres could be raised from federal grants, public donations and city and county funds.

"A joint venture effort will develop, I believe, if the board of supervisors and city council take the lead by developing a platform on which we can meet," he said in a letter to his board colleagues.

The historical society, which currently runs its museum at the Boyd House in San Rafael, is looking for another location, he said.

Cramped quarters and a city plan to remodel the old home have prompted the need to move.

Roumiguiere at one time proposed the museum be located at Civic Center but abandoned the idea because the county buildings are closed on Sunday and have a parking shortage during the week.

Hope Crowns Beauty Queen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bob Hope last night crowned Lexie Brockway, 19, a Washington State University coed, as the second "Miss World USA" of the year.

Miss Brockway was runnerup in the original contest in July to Marjorie Wallace, 19, of Indianapolis. Miss Wallace went on to win the "Miss World" title, leaving her national crown vacant.

The new "Miss World USA" is a straight-A journalism student, delivers the 6 p.m. news on the campus radio station and says she wants to go into television news work.

Muni Driver Reports He Relayed Plea

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A man who gave chase to the alleged murderer of a San Francisco woman charged last night that a Municipal Railway bus driver ignored pleas to call for help.

William Bryan, 28, of Sonoma, said he witnessed the shooting of Marietta DiGirolamo, 31, and then got out of his car to chase her killer. Mrs. DiGirolamo was shot three times.

Bryan said when he lost the suspect, he asked an unidentified driver of a No. 71 bus to call police on his two-way radio.

"There are a lot of pay phones in the area," Bryan quoted the driver as responding. "Use one."

Bryan said the driver then shut the bus doors and drove off.

Muni officials said the driver, eight-year veteran Joe E. Ringold, "who has a good record," denied having told Bryan to use a pay phone. They said bus records show that Ringold did call Muni Central Control to ask for help and that Ringold's message was relayed to police.

Two Men Arrested As Suspects In Burglary

Two men were arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglarizing a Mill Valley home.

Stuart Moore Gray, 21, of San Francisco, and Jeffrey Joseph Greenbach, 20, of Palo Alto, were held in county jail in lieu of $1,500 bail each to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said a patroling officer saw a pickup truck with license plate numerals obscured with tape in a driveway at 324 Summit Avenue at 3:34 p.m.

According to police, driver of the truck, Greenbach, honked the horn when approached by the officer. Gray was taken into custody when he was caught running upstairs in front of a home in the area.

Officers said Gray carried a screwdriver in his back pocket and a television set and guitar were found in the bed of the truck.

SIXTY-DAY EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES allow you to exchange anything you aren't happy about within 60 days (counted from Jan. 1), and the ONE-YEAR SPEAKER TRIAL lets you receive your full purchase price on any speakers costing up to $200 in trade toward more expensive speakers any time during 1974.

Free Connecting Wire and Installation Manual Along with your new system we'll give you everything you need to start enjoying it right away with no hassles. We've found that many owner's manuals aren't as easy to read as they could be, so we've prepared our own complete guide to setting up a component system.

DEGREES IN SPRING

Three Combine Families, School

By BARBARA HOSMER

Janet Clark started college 17 years ago. Amy Barron finished high school 20 years ago, and Dorothy Clifford was a University of California freshman in 1948.

Ask them how they feel about college today and all three get excited.

They are among some 107 older women who are one-fourth of the undergraduate students at Dominican College in San Rafael, and each will receive a hard-won bachelor of arts degree in May. Seniors now, they all manage families of growing children at home.

Each has found that returning to college is a major plus in her life.

"I was determined to jump in and do it," remarked Janet Clark of Larkspur. "I started out with 10 units."

Dorothy Clifford of San Rafael has eight children and confines her time on campus to the hours her children are in school.

"I started out with three units in 1969 to see if I could do it and keep the family going, too . . . Now I usually carry eight or nine units," she said between classes.

Amy Barron of Vallejo finds it "opens you up as a person; you make new friends and get a different perspective on life. You do things you never considered doing because you thought 'that's not me' but it is."

ALL THREE women said that a careful management of their time is the key to getting a college degree while taking care of their families.

Janet Clark has three boys, Richard, 15; Peter, 12, and Chris, 8. An art major, she also teaches art workshops through the University of California Extension in winter and summer.

She finds it hard to write papers at home with the family around and fixes herself no set study hours at home. Instead, she spends time between classes studying at the college library, does some reading at night, and often spends the weekend at the library. On these occasions, her husband takes over with the boys at home or takes them on outings.

Because art requires the longer hours of studio classes and Mrs. Clark has a class from 1 to 3:30 p.m., she worked it out to start earlier so she could pick up her youngest son at 3 p.m. when his school finishes.

"I worked it out with the individual teachers," she explained. "But when I took ceramics, I needed to be there with the teacher."

Janet Clark said a big factor in choosing Dominican College was that it is only 10 minutes from home. "In an emergency they can find you here." That has given her the security that if the children should need her, she is close by.

SHE FINISHED Anoakia School in Arcadia and had taken classes here and there — Pasadena City College in 1957, Fullerton College, University of Southern California and the University of California Extension. She was married, then came to Marin 10 years ago, and planned that when her youngest child went to school all day that she would have time to finish college.

"I always thought a degree would be useful. I had been team teaching, working with artist Ann O'Hanlon in U.C. Extension, and everyone else on the team had a degree. But I am not getting a teaching credential, so I won't be teaching full time," she explained. Instead, her goal after graduation is to work in an art-related field and to continue her painting.

She finds in going to college now that her whole focus is different from when she began Pasadena City College in 1957.

Dominican she finds is a comfortable place for a returning student.

"I have lots of friends at College of Marin and I think there is a bigger generation gap there with the younger students than I find here.

"You get more out of coming back if you have a goal in mind," she said. "You have more focus and seem to participate more."

Going to college full time and not taking on anything else, she believes, helps the older student to get more out of classes.

DOROTHY CLIFFORD, with eight children and the youngest only 5, finds often she has to put off studying and then "cram at exam time."

"I realized I couldn't always do school work when I wanted. But it has worked out well at home." Her husband and family always encouraged her and she has worked hard to balance her home life and school.

"I had always been active in volunteer work," she said, so had managed time away from home anyway. The close location of campus to home has enabled her to continue college.

Mrs. Clifford, a psychology major, is aiming for a master's degree and to do counseling. Both she and Amy Barron believe that it will be easier as their children grow older.

Mrs. Clifford's eldest three are in college themselves, and she finds she has a common ground with them as a student herself. They had given time to help with the younger children so their mother could attend college, but now "all the help has left for college," she said, laughing. She does have a Mexican student living at home this year, however.

Mrs. Clifford, one of Dominican's early "returnees," helps to give orientation to incoming older students. And she is older student representative on the College Council, the chief policy-recommending body.

She has found that her attending college has fostered an academic atmosphere at home that influences her younger children.

"Home and college are my main life now," she said. But she and husband have time to entertain friends on weekends and she has made many friends on campus.

"I love the pace of the campus and don't know if I would do so well at another," Dorothy Clifford mused. She was familiar with campus because she was graduated from Dominican Uqper School in 1947, and finds many of her former teachers are professors at the college now. "Of course, I'm older than many of my professors," she commented.

WHILE HER three boys are in school, Janet Clark will earn the bachelor of arts degree in art. Here she does silk screening on the San Rafael campus, only 10 minutes from home in Larkspur. Her husband manages the family on the weekends she studies at the library.

MRS. CLIFFORD felt that she needed to do something with the 20 to 30 years of her life after her children leave home and "I wanted to be specifically trained. I'm doing this with the idea that they're going to be gone."

"I'm a great believer in continuing to take courses. It's true for most older students here — we want to take them all.

"There's a tremendous difference from when I was in school before. Then I took French to fill a requirement — now I would take it to learn the language."

Amy Barron commutes from Vallejo, does domestic work two days a week, caters parties, works in the dean of students' office on campus and will receive a degree in social science in May.

"I always wanted to go to college. My mother worked at a house up on Summit and when I would go to pick her up, I'd go by Dominican and say to myself, 'that's where I will go,'" she explained. She plans to get a master's degree and do psychiatric social work with families.

"The first step is the hardest. You think you don't have time," she commented.

Divorced and the mother of three children, Mrs. Barron has been out of Vallejo High School for 20 years. She started at Solano Junior College in 1969, taking 12 units and working full

How To Make Home Safe For Holidays

SACRAMENTO — The California Department of Consumer Affairs suggests precautions and materials to make holiday home decorating and tree trimming safe and attractive.

Use only flame-proof decorations on the tree. Homemade decorations should be constructed of flame-proof materials. Tinsel should be of plastic or non-lead material because lead tinsel is hazardous if ingested by pets or children.

Wear gloves while handling spun glass "angel hair" to minimize skin irritations or use nonflammable cotton in its place. Neither of these materials should be sprayed with artificial snow.

If there are children in the house avoid sharp, breakable ornaments and those resembling candy or food.

Never place lighted candles on or near a tree, and keep them away from decorations and wrapping paper.

After gifts are opened remove wrappings from tree and fireplace areas. Don't burn wrappings or evergreens in a fireplace. They ignite suddenly, burn rapidly and can cause a flash fire.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Will Equal Rights Amendment Be Applied To Prostitutes?

DEAR HELEN:

Please name the states where the Equal Rights Amendment hasn't passed the state legislature yet.

Next question: When ERA becomes law, will it offer equal rights to prostitutes too? That is, when they arrest people for this illegal act, will they arrest the Johns as well as the Janes?

Seems to me men are just as guilty as women — you can't have one without the other — but even the pimps usually go free while the girls get rounded up regularly. — FOR ERA

DEAR FOR ERA:

States whose legislatures have not yet ratified the Equal Rights Amendment (as this column goes to print) are: Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Utah and Virginia.

Thirty states have already ratified the amendment, and eight more are needed to make the necessary three-fourths vote by 1979.

Prostitution? It's legal in a few Nevada counties.

Several cities in the No-No states are getting tough with the Johns. These cities have set "man-traps" with policewomen decoys; and "customers'" names are printed in local newspapers under "arrests." Since men don't care to have it advertised that they must buy their love, and they're not terribly fond of fines or imprisonment — or wifely awareness — street business has dropped off considerably there. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

If a husband and wife have a problem with sexual incompatibility, and they can't afford the new Masters and Johnson-type clinics which can cost up to $2,000 or more, (or psychiatrists) the only help left is their doctor. And that's a crying shame, because often doctors have more hang-ups about sex than their patients.

My husband thought he was becoming impotent. His doctor made a joke of it. "So what do you want to be —a dirty old man?" he asked. My husband is 52! So we read several good books and things worked out for us.

A woman friend consulted her doctor about her 17-year-old daughter who was deeply involved with her boyfriend. The doctor wouldn't prescribe the pill because he would "have no part in immoral conduct."

Our family doctor avoids any mention of sex when he's examining me. There are questions I'd like to ask, but he turns me off.

Medical schools teach almost nothing about human sexuality, except how to recognize disease or operate on the sex organs.

Isn't it time this vital part of our lives got more than a passing nod from medical doctors?

DEAR LOIS:

If they can't afford expensive therapy or counseling, then they should do what you and your husband did: read several good books, and practice what they teach. (You were lucky here. Many aren't, unfortunately.)

Yes, it's long past time for medical schools to include "sex education" in their courses. According to several recent articles on the subject, they're beginning to recognize the need, but it may be a long while before general practitioners can adequately treat all the sexual disfunctions. These problems still require specialists. — H.

Student Planning Visit To Russia

By KAREN PETERSON

A Petaluma student participating in a "Person to Person" tour of the Soviet Union will spend her Christmas holidays traveling, sightseeing and living with a Russian family.

Joan Diamond, a sophomore at Santa Rosa Junior College, will leave Dec. 23 for Moscow on a two-week tour sponsored by the American Soviet Friendship Society.

During her stay in the Soviet Union, Miss Diamond, 19, will live with the family of an English-speaking Soviet student and will be free to travel and sightsee in the country.

She will stay in Moscow for one week and then travel to Leningrad and other northeastern cities. The tour, said Miss Diamond, will include visits to Red Square, including Lenin's Mausoleum, and St. Basil's Cathedral.

"There will be special tours to elementary schools, which I am very excited about," she said.

Darlene Calvi of Bodega will also participate in the Soviet tour. Miss Calvi is an agriculture major at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Gary Anderson, an instructor of cultural geography at the college who arranged the tour for the two students, said the program is partially subsidized by the Soviet government. The members of the tour, he said, will have the opportunity to see things not generally shown to other tourists.

"I would like to bring a little bit of Russia back to share with people who know little or nothing about that vast country," she said. The trip will cost $1,000 including air fare, accommodations and meals, and Miss Diamond added that her "Petaluma-styled clothes" may not be adequate because the average Moscow temperature is 12 degrees in January.

Miss Diamond, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Diamond, is majoring in elementary education, and she plans to transfer to California State University, San Francisco, next year. She is a graduate of Petaluma High School and was a member of the original Police Athletic League Drill Team. She has been an outdoor education camp counselor for the sixth grade class of McDowell School in Petaluma and teaches Sunday school and counsels a youth camp for the Free Will Baptist Church.

Fifty young people from the United States will participate in the Soviet tour.

Annual Hub Block Party Will Be Wednesday Night

Residents of Florence Avenue in San Anselmo will have their annual Christmas block party Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

As has been the tradition since 1956 signs wishing "Merry Christmas To All" have been hung at each end of the block.

Chairman is Bell Jelineck. Organizers of the party are Peter Horne, Jerry Cruthers, Paula Raudio and George Rambke. Irene Christian will lead the singing of Christmas carols around a pot belly stove.

Each child will bring an ornament he has made and place it on the tree, which will be in the cul-de-sac, and talk to Santa Claus (Ernest Jehly.)

Coffee, milk and homemade cookies will be served in a decorated garage, and each family will introduce itself as a microphone is passed around.

Not All Asian Women Find Life Liberated

By JOAN HANAUER
U.P. International

(Second of two articles)

Women by tradition have controlled the family budget in countries such as Vietnam, India, Laos, Cambodia and Hong Kong, where women invest the family funds in intricately carved gold and silver jewelry and wear their bank accounts like baubles.

Men are served first in Asian restaurants because, it is said, Asian women believe man is a weaker, more fragile being whose needs must be taken care of first.

Not all Asian women, however, find life so liberated.

In India the vast majority of women are illiterate, subject to arranged marriages which they cannot refuse but which their would-be male partners can. They consider their husbands as overlords. Women in manual jobs in India receive lower wages than men and often perform the most strenuous work.

In Indonesia, women take a back seat to the man. About 90 per cent of Indonesian women marry under Moslem law, permitting a man four wives and allowing him to divorce them on such grounds as neglect of family duties. But a divorced wife can go to court to veto any marriage candidate of her divorced spouse.

In Japan the family system is rigid and housewifely duties specifically defined — definitely unliberated. Keiji Kamata, 28, a bachelor who works for a film distributor, commented, "I don't think it's possible for women to be economically independent in Japanese society today. Women's Lib is just attacking in one direction: women's rights, women's position. The whole society, the whole social system must change for women's position to improve. Right now, Japan is a man's country."

LATIN AMERICA remains the stronghold of "machismo" — the swashbuckling Don Juan image. Women's Liberation movements are few and far between. There is one in Argentina that serves mainly as a discussion group, another in Venezuela that protested against a beauty contestant, and a "women's rights" group in Peru trying to change discriminatory laws. No more than a fourth of the adult women hold jobs outside the home in Latin American countries.

"We're not about to burn our bras," a young Chilean woman said. "They're too expensive."

Maria Elena Oddone, the spokeswoman of an Argentine Women's Liberation group, didn't want to reveal her group's membership "because we are so few it's a psychologically negative factor.

"It will take five, six or seven years for us to reach the level of consciousness and activism that the U.S. women's liberation movement has achieved," she said.

In Peru 40 per cent of university enrollment is female, but there are still laws that forbid women to work without their husbands' consent.

In a number of Latin American countries there are women political figures, but usually they are figureheads acting for a male family member.

PUERTO RICO, perhaps because of its close relationship with the United States, does have a vocal Women's Liberation movement, women cabinet members, and San Juan for 20 years had a woman mayor.

Directed south of the United States border in Mexico the government has found it necessary to launch a campaign against "machismo" to try to slow the country's 3.4 per cent yearly population growth rate. The idea is to convince men not to measure their masculinity by the number of children, and specifically the number of sons, they can produce.

Things are getting better slowly in Latin America, with more women in better jobs, but for now it's Chauvinism, Si! Liberation, No!

ON BEING BLACK

Parallels In Sexism, Racism?

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate

SALT LAKE CITY — "White women have been 'niggered' in this society, too. Institutionalized sexism and institutionalized racism are parallel phenomena."

The speaker was a white female, encouraging blacks and women to unite against a common oppressor — the white male.

Though there may be a few logistical parallels between the women's liberation movement and the black liberation movement — strategies and rhetoric for bringing about desired changes — the nonparallels are considerably more glaring.

White women are not accused of being members of a completely separate species, as black people have been. They have not been bombarded by theories and theses published down through history which attempt to prove them to be something less than human.

WITHOUT EXCEPTION, these ethnologies are absolutely incredible. Still, they were widely read and seriously considered. It is the task of the "race thinker" to reinforce and/or substantiate what he already (rightly or wrongly) believes.

Skull size, facial features, brain size (along with the number and depth of fissures) and IQ have been offered (scientifically and academically) as explanations for racial differences and a rationale for subhuman treatment for blacks.

One scholar applied the theory of hybrid reproduction to blacks and whites. His theory stated that, since blacks and whites were of separate species, their offspring (like tangerines and mules) would be sterile, unable to reproduce themselves. Consequently, black-white hybrids would eventually die out. His theory, obviously, was lacking in proof.

Would you believe another lunatic (employing the scientific method) developed a theory using body lice (yeah, body lice) as indices to the separate-species theory? To my knowledge, white women are privileged to host the same strains of body lice as white males. According to this looney, not so with blacks and whites.

Criminal tendencies and a proclivity for poverty have never scientifically and academically been assigned to white women, and they have never been accused of being a step closer to apes (on the evolutionary scale) than their male counterparts.

ANOTHER MAJOR nonparallel between sexism and racism is the fact that some, if not many, white women have been subjected to a measure of luxurious and plush "niggering." Their pedestals, whether they were up there by choice or force, are located in livable homes, supplied with such necessities as food and clothing. A night out on the town or a vacation in Europe with the "master" (the white male) is tolerable for many a Pedestal Patty.

It's amusing that, in our great American frenzy to keep everyone and everything neatly categorized, white women now have been classified as a major minority. They are now in line to receive "special" (minority) consideration for jobs, scholarships and the like. It is ironical that suddenly, to fill many "token" job openings, the most desirable person is a black female, for she fills two demands. She is the double minority. Unfortunately, this status often adversely affects the black woman under other personal circumstances.

The differences between sexism and racism outweigh the similarities simply because white women have been a human minority. Blacks have been a subhuman minority. The struggle is not quite the same.

HARDY, TIMELESS style is designer Vera Maxwell's trademark. She puts a premimium on looking casually chic, as in this uncomplicated evening ensemble.

VERA MAXWELL'S TOPS

A Return To Sensible Fashions

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Vera Maxwell, a fashion classicist, finds the times once more in tune with her sense of style.

"It's a great relief," she admits "to see girls emerging from that terrible kick of no-dressing, and to see women reaching once more for fine natural fabrics, superb cut, and easy, but sure, elegance."

She weathered the mini-maxi-midi fashion convolutions because a determined coterie of Maxwell fans kept buying and believing in her kind of hardy, timeless fashion. These were the chic uncluttered, comfortable styles that became for most Maxwell loyalists the building blocks of long-range wardrobes that were expected to carry on valiantly for years.

THOUSANDS OF women agreed with Princess Grace of Monaco and Mrs. Henry Luce, that Vera Maxwell produced the "staples" in their closets, the "dependables," that the designer sometimes refers to as "calendar clothes" because "they look great anytime, anyplace, anywhere."

A Vera Maxwell retrospective, covering the years 1935 to 1970, was sponsored three years ago by the Friends of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. It came at ebb tide for the designer, but it provided the impetus for her current resurgence.

"I am copying myself this winter," she said as she showed her current collection, "but then, who has more right?" To illustrate, she brought out the gently flared skirt and wrapped blouse she first introduced in 1950, and the same classic greatcoat, with a swing, that has been in her line for years. It is so loved and in demand that she can't retire it. This time around it appears in a fuzzy purple mohair.

She is still using the same hand-woven tweeds from Magee of Ireland that she has used since 1935, still buying the same great Scottish woolens, and featuring the same nubby wild silk that she has since 1951. ("I've even had the same workers in my establishment for the past 35 years," she quips.)

THIS YEAR wool jersey is her favorite fabric, but it is getting more scarce and difficult to buy. She found printed wool challis in Switzerland for dresses, and located a limited amount of hand-painted Burmese cotton to make a few dozen evening caftans.

She sees neutrals — beiges, browns and grays — as her best colors for this winter. But she says black is having a strong comeback, and she likes parma violet and nasturtium orange for interesting contrast.

Mrs. Maxwell says the "fabric of the year" is "ultra suede," made by Skinner. It feels like sheer doeskin, she claims, yet is washable, spot-resistant, and durable.

This designer shows a number of pants costumes: pants with dresses worn over them and pants with matching slender knee-length cardigan coats. "They're great for the less than good figure," she said. "And women move freely in them."

HER SHIRT dresses are lined and well-cut, and her little chemise dress with patch pockets and bow neck is the essence of simplicity.

TWENTY YEARS out of high school, Amy Barron will receive a bachelor of arts degree in social studies and a teaching credential next May. She sandwiches classes and study at the library between catering, domestic work and care of her family in Vallejo. "Do it," is her advice to older women considering college.

DOROTHY CLIFFORD studies on the Dominican College campus while her eight children are in school themselves. A senior psychology major she hopes to do counseling and plans to continue taking classes. Time — "It's a matter of priorities," she says. Starting at the University of California in the class of '48, she'll graduate from Dominican in the class of '74. (Bob Hax photos)

Attendants To Groom Have Variety Of Tasks

Staying close by the bridegroom's side is the best man's job. He holds onto the wedding ring and the clergyman's fee, until the right moments to surrender each arrive, plus he helps the bridegroom prepare for the wedding, accompanies him to the church and waits with him in the vestry.

Beside checking honeymoon reservations and transportation and overseeing various matters at the reception, the best man is also in charge of the ushers, who, among other things, escort guests to seats at the church and reception, keeping a list of guests handy. They also roll out the white carpet if one is going to be used.

Three Who Combine Families, School

It took three years, but she came to Dominican a year ago September as a junior and has taken 15 units every semester. She does catering at night and on weekends, domestic work before night classes two days a week, spends 10 hours a week observing in elementary school to get her teaching credential, plus class hours and her studying.

"And I've made it a point never to neglect my children." They are Vicki, 17, Ted, 15, and Ken, 9. Vicki, a high school senior, has taken over much of the cooking and housework, but she also works part time. On weekends Mrs. Barron cooks a big family dinner for the children.

"THEY THINK it's pretty good," she said of her being in college. Vicki was doing fair in school, her mother said, and when "I made the dean's list, she said, 'Mother, if you can do that, I'll have to do better.' " She said all the children have started competing with her in lessons.

By working, Mrs. Barron felt she had already had experience in budgeting her time. Going to graduate school should be easier, she thinks, as the children grow. Also, her mother, father and sister have been a big help with the children.

"I've gone to school through years when they've needed me. Without my family's support, there are some things I couldn't have done."

She studies after the children have gone to bed, helping them with their own lessons in the early evening.

"I really talk up the continuing education thing with my friends. A lot of us felt no hope of going on, but you can go on and do it. And colleges are reaching out to people like me. There are night classes and more classes we want. My advice to people is 'Do it,' if they are thinking about college," emphasized Amy Barron.

In fact, that was the advice of all three women students.

Lights Are Based On Storybooks

To all Santa's helpers wanting a storybook tree, the newest in midget tree light sets is "storylites."

These are special tree decorations for children. The "lights" are characters from Little Red Riding Hood, Hansel and Gretel, the Wizard of Oz.

In each set there are assorted "players" from each story. The Red Riding Hood set, for example, includes Grandma, wolf and a woodsman. The Oz set includes Tin Man, Lion, and the Straw Man.

Politics, Car Racing Dominate Her Interests

Next after her family, Mary Anne's chief interests are her job as top woman staff member in the administration of Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar and his related work for women, and spare-time activities in the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA).

She and her husband, Tom, an advertising consultant, form a husband-wife team in racing. She holds a SCCA national competition license, one of the relatively few women who do.

"I am not as aggressive a driver as I should be but I like to compete for the sheer enjoyment of racing," she said.

Her job title as chairperson of the Mayor's Task Force on Women only hints at the work she does. "The task force has three priorities," she explained. "Economic security for women, including careers, is first. Public safety is second. To be able to walk home in the dark or drive home after a night meeting is important. Women need to unite to make their cities safe for themselves. At our last meeting, we found that 90 per cent of all the women there had come into contact with incidents of rape, pursesnatching or burglaries. Either it happened to them or they knew someone it had happened to."

Third on the task force's priority list is an area described by Mary Anne as "home and family. All of the changing patterns that create an impact on the family and efforts to assure that the family is preserved."

Mary Anne and Tom first met beside a United Press International teletype machine in the Daily Student office at Indiana University. She was the campus editor and he was the cartoonist. They have a four-year-old daughter, Meredith, described by her mother as "very construction-oriented. She can recognize every car on the street. She recognizes more tools than I did at the age of 21."

For the Butters, racing is a family sport. Mary Anne has taken two courses at Purdue University-Indianapolis in auto mechanics to acquaint herself with automotive innards.

So far Mary Anne has never won a sports car race.

"I have finished in the middle several times, sixth, seventh or eighth," she said. "Some people find it hard to believe but I really enjoy racing in the middle of the pack." But she still hopes someday to win a sports car race, and has come in third a couple times.

Prior to joining the Indianapolis mayor's staff, Mary Anne worked as a reporter for the Indianapolis Star

Shultz. The musical will be given five holiday season performances at the Marines' Memorial Theater in San Francisco at 10 a.m. Dec. 27, 28, 29 and 30 and at 1 p.m. Dec. 28. 'Yo-Yo' Firing Is Postponed

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (UPI) — The launching of a "yo-yo" Explorer satellite, designed to dip in and out of the earth's atmosphere from its orbit, was scrubbed last night about a half-hour from liftoff because of winds at high altitude.

A NASA spokesman said the launch was rescheduled for 10:13 p.m. PST tomorrow.

The 1,450-pound Atmosphere Explorer C satellite, aboard a Delta rocket, was to have been launched last night

Several Injured In Fuel Explosion

MANILA (UPI) — A predawn explosion ripped through a fuel tank farm in a swank Manila suburb today, touching off huge fires in two oil storage tanks and injuring more than 20 persons. The fire still was blazing at nightfall.

Reports from police and hospitals said one person was missing and 22 injured, including eight firemen and a policeman.

State Board Vetoes School Age Proposal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Board of Education yesterday went on record against lowering California's compulsory school attendance age to 14.

The National Commission on Secondary School Reform earlier this week recommended such a reduction in the age of required attendance, contending it would combat classroom boredom.

But Dr. Wilson Riles, state school superintendent, told the board, "The answer to problems of boredom by high school students is not to give up on their education, abandoning them to the streets."

"If the compulsory attendance age were lowered to 14, the result in California could mean more than 1.5 million additional teen-agers out of school," Riles said.

"That would not only be an educational tragedy, but also an economic disaster for the state's already strained job market," he added.

Currently, California students must attend school until they are 18 or receive a high school diploma. The board's resolution urged that this requirement be retained.

Riles also wanred the board to "go-slow" on the idea of switching to four-day school weeks to ease the energy shortage.

If four-day school weeks were adopted throughout the state, Riles said it would leave many working parents with the problem of what to do with their youngsters on the fifth day.

"And we also should be sure that a four-day week really would save energy," Riles said. "What about the youngster who stays at home on the fifth day and turns on the television all day. Is that saving energy?"

Legislation permitting districts to adopt four-day weeks has been proposed by Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento.

Pupils still would be required to attend classes for the same number of hours per week.

Spacecraft Looks Again At Jupiter

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pioneer 10 spacecraft lost and then rediscovered the planet Jupiter's mysterious magnetic field four times yesterday as it headed deeper into space, scientists were told.

"At Jupiter we are dealing with a huge and far out beast," project Scientist John Wolfe told the American Geophysical Union convention here. "The outer edges of the field are very soft and it's like hitting a pile of straw."

The mysteries of the planet's magnetic field, which expands and contracts like a rubber band over millions of miles, is important because of its implications for the magnetic field of earth.

The size and shape of Jupiter's field, whether it looks like a doughnut or a pancake, became controversial 10 days ago when Pioneer made its closest approach to Jupiter.

Pioneer rediscovered the elusive field yesterday 6.5 million miles from Jupiter, Wolfe said.

FAMILY

"Fiddler on the Roof" — Charming musical of the life of a Jewish dairyman in a small village in Czarist Russia who has five unmarried daughters. The girls efforts to break the tradition of arranged marriages stirs deep emotions, joyous humor and a rare insight into the lives of Jewish people.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"American Graffiti" — Filmed in Marin County, story is just one night's activities in 1962 in the lives of four boys. Some suggestive sex scenes and scruffy language.

"Harold and Maude" — A comedy about a rich, confused, suicidal young man who is shown the more positive side of life by an 80 year-old woman. He finally decides to marry her.

"Lady Ice" — Sophisticated crime caper about an unorthodox insurance investigator and a woman "fence" for stolen jewels. Their romance calls for serious decisions by both of them. Cursing, violence and nudity.

"Man of La Mancha" — A musical within a play. A playwright is jailed by the Spanish Inquisition. A kangaroo court of his peers inspires him to stage a fantasy play with other prisioners as the cast. Lengthy but engrossing, some sex scenes.

"Paper Moon" — Sophisticated drama recreating the 1930s. A salesman-con-artist agrees to deliver a 9 year-old orphan girl to an aunt. The child is tough, smokes and swears and outswindles her mentor. Sophisticated, violence and sex.

(Most sources say Adults Only

"Charley Varrick" — Small-time bank robber inadvertently steals nearly a million dollars of Mafia money. His efforts to escape their wrath makes for a suspenseful drama. Violence, salty dialogue and suggestive sex sequences.

"Executive Action" — A curiously antiseptic film based on the festering controversy of the assassination of John F. Kennedy, neglects to offer any coherent, convincing proof of theory. (Catholic Film Newletter).

LIFE AFLOAT — Scott Diamond (left) rows away from the old dredger Golden Gate berthed next to the abandoned drydocks in the middle of Richardson Bay. Unable to find a hospitable shore in Marin, he must ferry in this fashion everything needed to sustain life aboard. Before leaving (center), he receives from shipmate Sharol Shoemake the water bottle that must be filled ashore. Later (right), he fixes a bite to eat amid the clutter that results from having to devote all energy to making the vessel seaworthy. (Photos by Jim Kean)

FACES LEGAL ACTION

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Scott Diamond says he's no criminal, even if Marin County authorities treat him like one.

His only offenses, he maintained yesterday, are his economic condition — poor — and his lifestyle — living aboard the ponderous dredger Golden Gate.

"The board of supervisors looks at things from a middle-class point of view," he said, "Like everyone wants to, or should, live in a heated house on a hill."

Diamond, 23, was to face a jury trial yesterday on a charge that he failed to get a permit for his floating home.

The Golden Gate, which Diamond and three friends call home, was declared a nuisance by supervisors in October after Diamond beached it on mudflats at Strawberry Point to repair the 350-ton vessel's leaking bottom.

Some residents of Strawberry Point declared the dredger an eyesore and its residents "hippies" looking for a free place to live. Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said houseboats have turned Richardson Bay into "a doggone garbage dump . . . a cancer in the heart of Marin."

Supervisors gave Diamond until Dec. 11 to get his boat off Strawberry Point or they would contract to have it destroyed. On Monday, a day before the deadline, the Golden Gate was towed — at Diamond's expense — off the beach to the drydocks in Richardson Bay, themselves a target of public and private anger as a blot on the bay.

Yesterday, skies like slate broke into rain after threatening all morning but the natural gloom and the legal gloom hanging over the Golden Gate failed to dampen the activity on board.

Life on a 49-year-old dredger in Richardson Bay is tough but Diamond is resolute that life there will go on, at least until he finds an alternative place to go.

"They are trying to single us out, to make an example of us, but we are not going to give up to them," he vowed.

And while court battles proceed there is work to be done. Diamond and friend Mike Shoemake, 20, were busy collecting discarded tires to use as cushions between the 78-foot-long dredger and the drydocks.

Beside the Golden Gate was the houseboat Delight, whose owners also have received abatement notices from the county.

Christmas is coming and even at the drydocks there is a tree — positioned in a corner of the combination galley and living room on the top story of the two-story Golden Gate — with brightly wrapped presents beneath it.

Light is supplied by oil-burning lamps (there is no electricity) and a potbelly stove makes a dent in the chill of winter days and nights on the bay.

Hot water is a luxury that comes only when heated on a propane cookstove and drinking water must be carried in bottles from the shore.

There are two bedrooms choked with plants nurtured by Laura Ward, 26, another resident, and a makeshift greenhouse on the deck.

Sewage goes directly into the bay, just as it does from the hundreds of houseboats on the Sausalito waterfront and beyond.

Diamond is a boat carpenter with plans to make the cavernous bottom story of the dredger into a workshop. Shoemake owns a truck and earns money scrapping. Miss Ward and Sharol Shoemake, 24, clean houses for a living, but on this day Mrs. Shoemake was home recovering from dental work.

"Supervisor Wornum and his wife came by Monday to see that we got off," she said. "When his wife saw the dredger she just started laughing like it was the ugliest thing in the world. But those apartments on Strawberry are ugly to me.

"A lady from another newspaper told us the rich people think we like to live with no hot water or other comforts. But we've got to get the bottom fixed first, then we can work on the rest."

Families on the Golden Gate plan to refurbish the dredger and brighten it with a coat of paint — yellow — install a wind-powered generator for electricity and chemical or compost toilets. There is a water heater and stove that will work after some repairs.

The bottom was not completely patched during the Golden Gate's six-month sojourn on Strawberry point. A bilge pump must labor 30 minutes a day.

"I don't want to stay here too long," said Diamond. "What I want to do is get it out of the water and fixed."

Once the dredger can be trusted on the sea, Diamond says, it will be towed up the Sacramento or San Joaquin rivers, where there are no ocean insects or worms to eat at the bottom.

But the nuisance abatement action and criminal action by the county demands that the Golden Gate leave Marin County waters. "We are not interested in putting the man in jail," said marine inspector Richard L. Larson. "All we want is compliance. If we don't get it, then we'll have to proceed with the abatement action, removal and demolition."

Cost estimate to destroy the Golden Gate has been reduced from $11,500 to $5,000, according to Larson. With that kind of money, Diamond says, he could fix the dredger to meet county codes.

If he is forced to leave it will be after spending most of his life on the waterfront. At 8, he lived with his parents in the Spreckel's boat house near Gate 5, where the Golden Gate was berthed until it moved into hot water at Strawberry Point.

His lifestyle, he says, has been practiced by waterfront people for a century.

"The policy is to leave everyone alone until sewer hookups are installed," Diamond said, referring to a two-year county plan to force cleanup of houseboat marinas. "But it hasn't come to that and to single me out is, what's the word . . . persecution?"

Marin Dining And Wining

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Peacock Gap Is Now Offering A New Experience In Dining

Golf and country clubs have been a party of the American way of life for nearly a hundred years.

Scotland has had its version of them twice that long. They were, cf course, the outgrowth of a quaint practice of whacking around a little ball with as few whacks as possible first popularized by the Scots in the 15h Century.

Early clubs were quite exclusive — probably had to be, so dignified players who took too many whacks could work out safely guarded from the critical and sometimes contemptuous scrutiny of the general public.

But the public retaliated by opening municipal golf courses. Eventually so many people became good players, a number of clubs began to relax their restrictions. Others were organized to allow nonmembers to play and thus capture extra revenue in green fees. Some, like Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club in San Rafael, went further and built big dining and banquet areas and lounges, large enough to accommodate several times their membership.

Facilities like this cost money and have to be put in use to justify their existence. They require serving good food and good people to prepare it. Peacock Gap has always done a bustling business in banquets and I am told that last month topped all previous records.

But what can be done in large scale production, can also be done with small orders if there are enough of them — and there are blank spaces between banquets. So Peacock Gap, which for some time has been catering to individuals only for lunches, is now doing so with dinners. Food facilities are handled in the manner of a high class restaurant and this public operation is now known as the Terrace Room.

The American dining public always has and probably always will favor going out to eat on weekends. It's a hard habit to break. Some restaurants actually lose money during the middle of the week, but feel they have to remain "available."

So until proven feasible, the Terrace Room isn't even considering serving dinners on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. It's practical. You may have noticed that a few other restaurants have cut down on mid-week service or eliminated it. Nothing is so discouraging as a half-empty dining room.

But there's a good chef — Mark Wyman — and a good menu for Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, for lunches throughout the week and breakfasts on Saturdays and Sundays.

WITH A VIEW — Mrs. Clark Young, dining room manager, ponders a reservations question in the newly decorated dining room at the Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club. The club's new owners have given the dining area a name — the Terrace Room.

Along with steaks, tournedos, veal Oscar, lamb chops, stroganoff, coq au vin, frog legs, prime rib, brochettes and about seven seafood selections for dinner, Mark is also turning out three Japanese entree specialties — sukiyaki, beef teriyaki and yukitori, not to mention tempura and sashimi among the appetizers.

Redecorating has taken place here recently under the new owners. The interior has a lighter and cheerier look.

Reservations are now in order for New Year's Eve. Dinners, served from 7 p.m., offer a choice of prime rib, New York steak or lobster thermidor. The $40 per couple also includes party favors, music and dancing.

YOU MIGHT HAVE EXPECTED this to happen.

Once people found out about the new La Chaumiere in San Anselmo it was bound to draw a big flurry of customers. And it appears likely the flurry will become a regular on weekends.

As a result, owners Georges and Dedee Lebugle have to ask that advance reservations for dinner be made on Friday and Saturday nights. There just aren't enough tables to accommodate everyone.

You probaby can still get by without making them on Wednesday and Thursday nights, but a reservation for this type cf place is always a good idea.

APPARENTLY A SURE THING — the new Tortola restaurant at Second and G streets, San Rafael (where West End Villa and Medallion used to be located) will open Tuesday.

Both lunches and dinners will be served. Day of closing is Monday. Tortola will not be open on Christmas.

From what I could see with all the work going on, the place will look sharp. Mario Gaidano is responsible for the decor.

ONE PLACE that does plan to open for Christmas dinner (if there are enough customers to justify it) is the Four-Sixty-Four Magnolia in downtown Larkspur. Every year it's a day of closing for most eating places. You should call and make reservations a week in advance — that means by next Tuesday.

Entrees will include a choice of braised ham with Madeira sauce, roast goose stuffed with apples, prunes, fruit and nuts and prime rib. Along with them will be oysters wrapped in bacon, cream of leek soup, green beans with mushrooms and water chestnuts, braised turnips, roast new potatoes, spiced pears with pomegranate, watercress and mushroom salad, monte blanc with walnuts and coffee. Service will start about 4 p.m.

Make a party of it and save cooking at home.

LE CAMEMBERT at 200 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley has decided to put on a special 10 p.m. dinner menu for New Year's Eve — complete with those French overtones for which this restaurant has become so popular.

Price is $14 per person and this includes party favors, music and dancing. You" have to make reservations well in advance, even though Le Camembert is by no means a small place. When you phone you can also get complete information on the menu.

COMES THAT TIME of year next week when La Petite Auberge in San Rafael opens its doors at noon for the annual party of the SPPEC — otherwise known as the Society for the Preservation and Protection of Executive Secretaries.

I don't know that executive secretaries feel they need protection (unless maybe it's from their bosses) but apparently their bosses believe they do. Possibly it's because business would go downhill without them. Anyway, this is their day and do they make the most of it — for about three hours.

END YOUR MEAL at Lark Creek Inn, Larkspur (lunch or dinner) with "country coffee." It's a new creation by assistant manager Don Walker.

Meetings Scheduled On Launching Water Project

The Sonoma County Water Agency has set a series of meetings and hearings aimed at finally getting started with the aqueduct project to bring water from the Russian River, the Petaluma Water Commission learned last night.

Other agencies, including Petaluma and the North Marin Water District, which will contract for some of the water will meet with the Sonoma agency.

The first meeting will be at 10 a.m. Monday at the water agency office in Santa Rosa and the project status, financing and contracts with users will be reviewed.

On Jan. 7 at 7 p.m. in the board of supervisors' chambers in Santa Rosa, the agency will hold a public hearing on the environmental impact report for the aqueduct project.

On Jan. 9 agency officials hope to formulate final contracts with all the users.

North Marin Water District residents in 1970 approved a bond issue for an intertie to the aqueduct system. A similar project for the Marin Municipal Water District was turned down by voters last month.

Santa To Visit Sausalito Tots

Santa Claus will hear children's Christmas requests beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday in front of Vina Del Mar Park in Sausalito, according to the Sausalito Youth Center.

In the event of rain, Santa will be at his post in front of the city hall on Bridgeway.

Signs Encouraging On Bald Eagle Population

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Will the day come when bald eagles — the national bird — can be found only in zoos?

Although there is no clear answer to the fate of this endangered species, the experts are coming up with some encouraging evidence that the noble birds may escape extinction in their wild habitat.

Once plentiful on the East and West coasts, the whiteheaded, black-bodied eagles with wingspans of up to eight feet have fallen prey in recent years to pesticide — poisoned foods, human encroachment on nesting sites, poisoned bait, electrocution on power lines, and hunters. Protection by federal and state laws has proved ineffectual.

The Interior Department's first eagle census, completed last spring, indicates that at least 1,000 pairs nest in the United States south of the Canadian border, some 250 more pairs than previously estimated. However, officails of the Audubon Society — a leader in the crusade to save the bald eagle — claim this represents a more extensive beak count rather than a real increase in eagle population.

"We're dealing with birds with a longevity of 20 to 30 years, so it's too early to make any correlation between the ban on the use of DDT and any increase in eagle reproduction," said Richard Paul, an Audubon research biologist. "Such information just doesn't exist yet."

Eagles ingest DDT and other pesticides with their food, 90 per cent of which is fresh water fish, to the extent that residues in the birds sometimes is a million times that found in the environment. High level residues causes eagles' eggs to be infertile or kills the developing embryo. Eggs also develop unusually thin shells that are broken easily during incubation.

In Maine, where DDT residues tend to disappear slowly in the cold soil, authorities counted 29 eagles' nests in use but found only eight eaglets. By contrast in warmer California, 19 nests contained 24 chicks, an average of 1.26 per nest.

"We feel this level of productivity is satisfactory to maintain the population as it now exists," said Robert Malette, biologist for the California Department of Fish and Game, who also stressed it will be a few years before experts can declare the eagle's decline halted.

Fortunately, the level of DDT in fresh water fish has declined sharply, and young eagles are expected to be much freer of residue than older birds. But tremendous damage already has been done, according to all research sources.

National Audubon Research director Alexander Sprunt IV believes the eagle population in some areas — notably parts of Florida, Maine, Chesapeake Bay and the Great Lakes — has declined as much as 50 to 90 per cent in the past 20 years.

The Interior Department's survey of the largest eagle populations showed 300 to 400 pairs in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan, 350 pairs in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and Florida, and 100 pairs in Oregon and Washington. In the Lake Erie region, there are only seven known breeding pairs and they produced only one eaglet this year.

Malette said the California eagle population of about 50 pairs has held steady for two years and biologists are "optimistic" about the species holding its own unless human activity causes wholesale relocation of nesting sites.

"If these activities continue, they may cause a significant decline in the population by preventing birds from sustaining themselves," he said. "In some cases disturbances at the nest will cause chicks to starve to death when adult birds won't come in to feed them. Where nests are on public land, we work closely with public land agencies to make them as disturbance free as possible."

For nests on private lands, he said, the department has asked owners, such as loggers, to modify their land use practices near nests. In certain cases, the department's protection efforts may include acquiring the property immediately around the nest area. In addition, warnings are issued to the public that persons shooting eagles are subject to a fine of $1,000 or one year in jail, or both.

Zoos are not the answer to the preservation of the species because eagles do not breed well in captivity. Only one instance of successful breeding — more than 50 years ago in the Buffalo, N.Y., zoo — was recorded until last February when an eaglet was hatched at the Crandon Park Zoo in Miami, Fla. Another was hatched in May at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C.

Reasonable Search Ruling By Highest Court

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

It is a slow process, but bit by bit the U.S. Supreme Court seems to be restoring some reasonableness to law enforcement.

The latest step was the high court's 6-3 decision Tuesday that it is legal for law enforcement officers to search any person who has been legally arrested, and that evidence found in such a search is admissable in court.

Offhand, these would appear such patently obvious assumptions that they could be taken for granted. But they have not been so for some years. A long series of decisions by lower courts have resulted in thousands of criminals being turned loose either after trial or without facing trial because evidence was uncovered in a search conducted without a warrant.

IT SHOULD BE obvious that there is great difference between searching the person of someone who has been arrested with probable cause and invading the premises or searching the person of someone else who has not been cited for any crime. But court decisions have not only blurred but largely eliminated the distinction.

Almost any police officer can cite cases where he has been forced to release a guilty person because the evidence he found was inadmissible under these search-and-seizure decisions.

A particularly ridiculous case that comes to mind occurred a few years ago in Marin County. A man arrested on another charge was being booked into the county jail. In accordance with jail rules, his belt was removed — a precaution against violence and suicide attempts. The jailor noticed that the belt buckle was actually a thick case snapped shut. Opening it, he found several illegal drug capsules. The man accordingly was charged with drug possession. But when the case was taken to court, the judge threw it out on the ground that such a search was illegal.

The judge threw out the case because he feared reversal, in view of the long series of search-and-seizure decisions — and the lack of a definitive ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court.

TUESDAY'S decision, written by Justice William H. Rehnquist, puts the matter clearly: "It is the fact of lawful arrest which establishes the authority to search."

The dissenting opinion, by Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Thurgood Marshall, actually made the case for the majority decision.

The dissenters objected to "departure from our long tradition of case-by-case adjudication of the reasonableness of searches." It was that case-by-case approach which made it impossible for police to know where they stood, and clogged the courts with needless appeals.

Further, objected the dissenters: "It is the role of the judiciary, not of police officers, to delimit the scope of the exceptions to the warrant requirement."

That is exactly what the judiciary — six men on its highest bench — did in Tuesday's decision.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON: 'Thinking Small'

WASHINGTON — Common sense says that in attacking the energy shortage in the years ahead, we should move into the future instead of digging deeper into the past. But there is strong resistance — understandably from the industries that have a colossal investment in doing things the way they used to be done, but also from well-intentioned specialists who are freighted with pessimism.

Because the whole problem cannot be defeated by shifting to new energy sources tomorrow, some argue that there is no point in gradually substituting them for the old, destructive, polluting and rapidly diminishing fossil fuels. It is one of those cases where the American insistence on thinking big turns into an obstacle to getting the job done.

AT HAND is a letter from Ralph O. Kehle, a geology professor at the University of Texas, whose further expertise is suggested by his chairmanship of the Geothermal Survey of North America and his associate chairmanship of the University Committee for Energy Research.

Dr. Kehle says he shares my enthusiasm for accelerated development of clean, nondestructive sources — but:

Geothermal energy plants take 12 to 15 years to put on line, and are not so clean as people think. If a Texas oil field were as dirty and unsightly as the geothermal field south of Mexicali, Mexico, the Texas Railroad Commission would shut it down immediately and heavily fine the operators, he said.

As for solar energy, Kehle maintains that a solar-electrical device creates only half enough current to pay for its own cost before it wears out. Some other Texas specialists tell him it takes more energy to produce a solar cell than the cell produces in its lifetime. "Clearly a losing battle," he argues.

His conclusion is that solar, geothermal and nuclear fusion systems together will not produce a major share of our energy until the second half of the next century — and it is unlikely that any of them will supply a measurable percentage of our needs before the turn of this century.

"Consequently, whether we like it or not, we will have to rely on conventional energy sources for the next 25 to 75 years," Kehle declares. By "conventional," of course, he means oil, gas and coal.

BUT THE NATIONAL Science Foundation's estimate of geothermal heat is that its cost is competitive, it is environmentally clean — and that by 1985 it will be producing 132 million kilowatts of electricity in this country. Not surprisingly, that prediction is downgraded by the National Petroleum Council, which says the figure then will not exceed one per cent of U.S. power. As always, it is wise to consider the source.

The best example I know of experts who are going ahead, rather than playing the same old record about "It Can't Be Done," is in Maryland, just outside Washington, where two scientists who came to America after the Hungarian revolution of 1956 have left the Communications Satellite Corp. to strike out in solar energy on their own.

They are Joseph Lindmayer and Peter Varadi, whose Solarex firm makes no pretense of solving all the country's energy problems overnight. But they have applied their space background to producing a solar-electric cell more efficient than any other yet devised, and readied it for remote applications such as ocean buoys, oil platforms, fire towers and irrigation pumps.

They say most current estimates about solar energy's future are wrongly based on its cost in the space program, where money was virtually unlimited and standards of near-perfection were imposed. The silicon cell they have refined has a theoretically infinite life, thus outdating Kehle's statements about the ratio of cost to energy produced.

Varadi insists that pessimistic forecasts about solar energy today are parallel to such talk about nuclear energy in 1944. These scientists predict that with a serious government commitment to its development, solar energy will account for a "measurable percentage" of building heating in only five to 10 years, and solar cells will make such a dent in electricity output in no more than 15 years.

THE DECISION to proceed in these new fields must be based on today's data, not yesterday's — and on the elementary economic fact that the more new units the country builds, the less each costs. It also must recognize a worthwhile goal in cleanly filling a tiny percentage of the total energy demand today, then a steadily growing proportion in each year ahead.

We have come to a situation where the country needs some farsighted men who are not afraid to think small.

Court's Reapportionment Good — Except In Spots

By RUS WALTON

Better later than never, I guess.

The State Supreme Court, in the closing days of November, finally issued the boundaries for the state's new legislative districts.

That reapportionment job is supposed to be done every 10 years, right after the completion of the federal census. It should have been completed and announced back in 1971.

But some of the legislators let their greed lead to gross gerrymandering. They put personal ambitions, partisan power plays, and incumbency ahead of the voters' best interests.

That's when the courts stepped in.

BASICALLY, THE COURT'S design is pretty good. In the main it puts the interests of the citizens first, as it should. Reapportionment is for the people, not the politicians.

The court did mess things up on several scores.

For one thing, there will be districts here and there throughout the state without direct representation in the State Senate from January 1975 to January 1977: parts of Los Angeles and Orange counties, Sen. Fred Marler's Second District in northern California, and parts of the Great Central Valley.

Come 1975, those senatorial districts will be kaput and the folks in them will be represented until 1977 by senators they do not know and never voted for.

That's bad.

Some folks who voted for a state senator in 1970 will not vote on that race again until 1976. But, some of the folks who voted for a state senator in 1972, will vote again in 1974, and again in 1976.

IT ALL COMES to pass because the court decreed the constitutional guarantee of four-year terms for state senators should have precedence.

The court said nothing about the constitutional guarantee that citizens have a right to vote for the state senator who will represent them at least once every four years.

What the court did was to put the interests of the politicians ahead of the interests of the people.

It did it again when it kicked the one-year residency requirement in the head. That's the section of the Constitution that says a candidate must live in the district for at least one year before election day.

The court waived that requirement. It gave candidates until Jan. 28, 1974, to move into their "new" districts. That may be convenient for incumbents who must relocate, but show me — where does it say that the Supreme Court has the right to waive the Constitution on anything? Only the people can do that.

BUT, EVEN WITH THESE baddies, the court's plan is better than the one that greedy legislators tried to ram down our throats.

The way to solve this problem, and to prevent this confusion in the future, is to get the hen house far away from the legislative foxes.

Put reapportionment in the hands of a citizens' committee, an independent commission backed by a professional staff, complete computer data, and a list of strict dictums — including voter equity and preservation of community interests.

Such a reform measure should be placed on the ballot well before 1980.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14, 1963

Three "amateurs" were arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the kidnaping of Frank Sintra Jr. The FBI said most of $240,000 random paid for the 19-year-old youth's return had been recovered.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev announced plans to reduce the USSR's military forces.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14, 1953

A 53-day strike of United Auto Workers against North America Aviation Co. was settled as the union accepted the same offer made before the walkout.

A Bay Area shortage of milk because of a strike against companies manufacturing cardboard milk cartons was not expected to affect Marin.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Giacomini's Aide Won't Run For Council

There has recently been some conjecture in the press as to my running for San Anselmo City Council.

It is true that I have considered running, and to that end I have talked to various citizens of San Anselmo, whose opinion I value, regarding my candidacy. Their comments were thoughtful and to a great extent positive.

I have thought about this decision at great length, and have come to the conclusion that if I made the decision to run for council and were elected, it would create a conflict of interest with my present position as county administrative aide, if not legally, certainly politically, and would thus dilute any effectiveness I might have in either position.

My decision, therefore, became one of either staying in my present job or leaving my county job and running for city council.

I have decided to stay in my present job. I believe that I can make a contribution to the City of San Anselmo as a private citizen, while working in my job as a county administrative aide, a position I believe in and respect . . .

I would like to thank everyone who encouraged me to run for the council, and I look forward to doing whatever I can as a private citizen for San Anselmo.

I would like to extend our thanks to Joan Lisetor and your newspaper for the fine article which appeared in the Dec. 6 issue describing the Marin Infant Center, a program of the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center. The coverage you provided has brought much interest from the community and as a result a number of families with infants under two will be served in this program.

President Has No 'God-Given Task'

In answer to a letter printed on Dec. 10, in which reference was made to President Nixon's "God-given task":

It seems to me that Mr. Noxon received his mandate from the electorate of the United States of America, and therefore is responsible to the people of this country for his administration of that office.

Undoubtedly, there are still many people who want Mr. Nixon to continue in office, but there are many others, perhaps even a majority, who feel that his capacity to govern is seriously enough in question to warrant impeachment proceedings against him.

I don't consider myself an atheist, and I believe in "brotherly love and understanding," too, but I don't believe that any president of the United States governs by "divine right." That was a prerogative of royalty, and should have gone out when King John of England signed the Magna Charta in 1215.

While this country's government may operate under God, the elected officials who run it are still answerable to the people they govern, in my opinion.

Commuters Soaked By Bus Re-routing

Tuesday morning the rains came and the wind blew and Novato commuters by the dozen . . . got half soaked before they could get aboard a bus. Standing on street corners on Novato Boulevard, where there is no shelter at all, no warmth, no rest rooms, no telephones, and no ticket office, they, clad in raincoats, hoods, boots, and umbrellas did their best to try and keep dry until they could get on a bus to get to work in San Francisco. Because that is where they have to catch the Route 54 buses now that they have rerouted away from the stops on Grant Avenue and the Greyhound Bus Depot where they have picked up since the start.

Some people not brave enough to stand in the downpour came to the depot on Redwood Highway and Grant Avenue to catch one of the buses from Santa Rosa. They waited and waited as bus after bus either did not stop at all or stopped and announced standing room only. They all finally got on something, whether it was going where they wanted to go or not. At least it was going to San Francisco.

In the meantime Golden Gate Transit, ignoring the many protests since mid-November of the rerouting, sat back and ignored the whole thing. Plans go forward to waste millions on ferry boats, which will do the commuters of Novato and all North Marin no good at all . . . instead of expanding the bus service to the point it should be.

In the beginning Golden Gate Transit said, "We are going to pick up the people where it will be most convenient for them." Bahh!

Marin Transit District is trying to get Golden Gate Transit to route the buses back where they were, so far to no avail.

'Operation Candor' Not Candid Enough; President Nixon Remains Secretive

WASHINGTON — The only candid report which can be made on the state of the presidency is this:

1 — The fact that the nation now has in Gerald Ford a respected and acceptable vice president is not feeding the flames for Richard Nixon's resignation or impeachment. Ford is an asset to the president and improves the prospect that he will remain in office.

2 — But Mr. Nixon is in deepening trouble and only he can extricate himself from it. "Operation Candor" has not been candid enough and the president has not begun to restore his credibility significantly. This is not just the reaction of Mr. Nixon's opponents. It is evident that there is a gathering consensus of those who wish him well that time is running out and that the president has not yet embraced the way to restore trust and confidence in his presidency.

MOST AMERICANS earnestly want to consider Mr. Nixon innocent unless proved guilty, but something new has been added to the state of mind I find in many quarters friendly to the president. The feeling now is that the president must produce evidence to clear himself and that he cannot simply wait for some court, judicial or political, to report that there is no conclusive evidence to the contrary.

Too many valid doubts have been raised, not by hostile arguments alone but by events, and it is clear that Mr. Nixon has not yet done enough to erase them in the public mind —and public opinion will determine the president's fate.

I am not saying that the worst is inevitable. I am saying that nearly everything which the president has done and said since the Watergate offenses began to surface has been so tardy and reluctant that now only heroic frankness can arrest the adverse tide.

THE INSTANT REACTION to the swearing in of Gerald Ford was that, since the country now has a suitable vice president, Republican senators and congressmen who are up for election next year would press for Mr. Nixon's resignation.

There is some talk to that effect, but it is lessening, not increasing. One reason is that Ford is taking exactly the opposite line and he carries weight with his Republican colleagues. He is making it clear that Mr. Nixon has no intention of resigning and that under any circumstances he can see President Nixon will be an asset in the congressional elections.

Ford contends that GOP candidates will be wise to stand with the president, and that in any event the Republican congressmen should be willing to stand up and be counted if impeachment proceedings come to a vote in the House. Ford's view is that impeachment would be defeated by a majority vote at its first test.

THE CENTRAL REASON why the president is in trouble may well be that the proclaimed more open administration is not coming to pass. Things seem to be run as secretively as ever, with Mr. Nixon continuing to isolate himself.

The president rarely allows his aides or his other top officials to deal with him face to face.

Former Colorado Gov. John Love, who resigned the governorship to accept appointment as White House energy chief, says he was never able to talk with Mr. Nixon alone.

The president's constitutional lawyer reveals that White House aides permitted him to state in court that Mr. Nixon would "comply in full" with the subpoena for tapes, though they knew before he gave this assurance to the court that two of the tapes were missing but didn't tell him.

Earlier Nixon fired Interior Secy. Walter Hickel rather than confer with him face to face, and Governor Love experienced the same thing.

It is this kind of insulation which, I believe, led to most of the Watergate crimes, without anyone saying "Stop, this is wrong."

Maybe Marin Public Transit Could Be Sold As Money-Saver

Let's have a try at exploring Marin Transit Mgr. Ray Foreaker's several plans to tax Marin folks to pay for buses to be used in intra-county service. He indicated that any method or methods selected by the transit district directors should be submitted to a vote of the people.

He suggested a half-cent additional sales tax, also registration fees ranging from $10 for one vehicle to $150 for five garaged at the same address.

Then there has been some thought by the directors that at the June election the present tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation be increased to 25 cents.

Wornum preferred a sales tax of 20 cents a gallon on gasoline. Arrigoni pushed for a county income tax and wanted the staff to explore the legality.

THE HALF-CENT SALES tax would raise $2.2 million a year and the county registration fee would bring another $1.9 million, while 25 cents on $100 valuation would raise $1.75 million.

To me it seems that the registration fee is a dangerous move. Next there could be a registration tax on a sewing machine, a clothes washer or dryer, or what have you.

It also seems to me that we are going to be forced to change our county's historical use of private individual transit to a public one. Unlike the East Bay we never had street cars before the advent of the horseless carriage. They have just naturally grown into the public transit they now enjoy. Not so here.

I BELIEVE that if the supervisors will put the expensive data processing department to work on this we will find the cost of good public transit for the intra-county service will be no more and possibly less than the use of the auto — even the smaller models.

Then there is the shadow of restrictive gas allocation to reckon with. Darn it! I guess we have been living a little too high on the hog and the party's over.

Could Richardson Bay Ducks Be Termed "Attractive Nuisances'?

I have received several calls since an article I wrote about some Belvedere residents' dismay over duck hunting in Richardson Bay.

One man wanted to know whom he could contact to begin action to get duck shooting in the bay outlawed. He has a sailboat and he doesn't want buckshot fraying his spinnaker.

Another fellow, a hunter, good-naturedly pointed out that there are two sides to the story and I only told one. What about the revenues from hunting licenses that go to feeding ducks he asked.

He informed me that the issue takes a different form, depending on what side of the trigger you happen to be standing. Those boats scare all the ducks away, he complained. Why don't we outlaw them?

MY OWN SOLUTION is simple: ban ducks from the bay. Lodge nuisance abatement actions against them and send them packing back to Saskatchewan or wherever they came from. If they won't go before spring, drag them into court for failure to obtain occupancy permits. It's time to quackdown, er, crackdown on freeloaders in this county.

I can see the headlines now: "Duck Bill Passes Supervisors — Mallards Picket Civic Center."

Another solution would be to allow hunting, but only if it is done underwater. I can see the headlines: "Submarine Fires Nike Missile — Duck Pierced."

SPEAKING OF RICHARDSON Bay, it was a pleasant surprise to see that residents of the embattled dredger Golden Gate, lashed to the infamous drydocks, still installed a Christmas tree in their living quarters even if life for them during Christmas '73 means legal hassles with the county over their occupation of Marin waters.

Speaking of Christmas, I overheard this little quip uttered by a harried Marin housewife trapped in the frustrations of the season: "If I'm told one more time that I'm trying to be a martyr, I'm going to kill myself."

First Family Has Mailed Out 50,000 Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just like millions of other Americans, President and Mrs. Nixon send cards at Christmas—50,000 of them to be exact.

The White House mailed the cards, which feature a reproduction of a White House engraving as it looked in 1848, yesterday. They went to foreign heads of state, foreign and U.S. diplomats, government dignitaries, friends and close supporters of the Nixon.

Drawn by August Kollner, the cards contain a view of the north portico as seen from Lafayette Square. They are on a background of Christmas red with gold undertones.

The greeting on the inside, printed in black and engraved in black script on white vellum, reads: "With all best wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year—the President and Mrs. Nixon."

Girls Are Taking Longer To Grow

LONDON (UPI) — Nowadays, teenyboppers are taking longer to grow up, said gynecologist Dr. Thomas Dann.

In 1959, the average English girl reached womanhood at the age of 13, and now it is 13.2 years, he said.

Writing in the Nursing Times, he said he believes the age at which girls grow into women goes in 150-year cycles, and it is now on an upswing.

State Receives Bay Land Title

SACRAMENTO (AP) — More than 900 acres on San Francisco Bay have been transferred to state ownership, says Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor announced yesterday he signed transactions with Mobil Oil Estates for 132 acres of frontage along a five-mile stretch of Redwood Peninsula. In addition, Mobil Oil donated 800 acres of Bair Island.

In a statement, Reagan said the shoreline area is ideal for hiking, fishing, boating and other recreation. Bair Island is inhabited by various forms of endangered wildlife.

"These transactions have eliminated costly litigation, and guarantee that a significant portion of the Bay area is to be reserved for the people of California," Reagan said.

No Lights On Capitol's Tree

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time in decades, the Christmas tree in the state Capitol has no lights.

Instead of colorful light bulbs, the huge tree is adorned with 100 paper angels.

Gov. Ronald Reagan asked cub scouts to make the angels for the tree, which was placed in the Capitol's east wing for the first time because the century old west wing has been deemed unsafe if an earthquake should strike.

Businesses Planning To Hire More Women

CHICAGO (UPI) — A report based on information from 196 companies throughout the nation said yesterday that employers show plans for a significant increase in jobs for women college graduates in business and industry.

The survey was taken before development of the energy crisis, but the conductor, Frank S. Endicott, reported a sampling of 115 business firms and 66 colleges and universities attending a conference at Northwestern University indicated that the crisis made little change in employment plans.

Endicott, director-emeritus of placement at Northwestern, said the survey showed that the chances of jobs for women will increase to about one-fourth of the opportunities for men college graduates.

Of the 196 firms, 140 indicated plans to hire 54 per cent more women in 1974 than in 1973, to the point where employment will be about 24 per cent of men graduates hired, compared with 11 per cent five years ago and 7 per cent 10 years ago.

The report showed the highest demand will be for engineers and accountants. It said the demand for persons with bachelor's degrees will be up 13 per cent from 1973, and for those with master's degrees, up 10 per cent.

Jury Is Chosen In Z'berg Case

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A seven-woman, five-man jury has been chosen in the long-delayed drunken driving case veteran Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento.

Z'berg was present in court yesterday while his three attorneys participated in jury selection.

The lawmaker's attorneys plan to present arguments in court to challenge the validity of a prior conviction of drunken driving against Z'berg.

A second conviction in the latest case would result in a mandatory five-day jail sentence against the eight-term assemblyman.

Boston Bicentennial

Beaver II is a replica of one of the three British ships that were tied up at Griffin's Wharf that fateful night 200 years ago. On December 16, 1773, the meeting chaired by Samuel Adams broke up into angry shouts: "To Griffin Wharf!" "Boston Harbor a tea pot tonight!" Soon after, 382 chests of tea valued at 18,000 pounds were on their way into the water. The Colonists were protesting the monopoly on the colonial tea trade that Parliament gave a British company. Festivities celebrating the historic anniversary begin today in Boston and will climax Sunday, when members of the Massachusetts National Guard reenact the tea party aboard Beaver II.

DO YOU KNOW — What company was granted the colonial tea monopoly?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The comet was discovered by astronomer Lubos Kohoutek.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most Readers React Favorably To Column About Growing Old

Many readers complimented us on our column about gorwing old gracefully. In it, we offered such suggestions as seeking the company of younger people, not complaining about aches and pain, maintaining cleanliness, and taking a leisurely walk every day. One woman hoped that her 78-year-old husband would take it to heart. "Doctor, my husband does not believe in bathing. Sometimes he bathes only once a year. He embarrasses me, but if I tell him he is dirty, he gets mad."

When this man was born, frequent bathing was just coming into its own. Few people had bathing facilities. Furthermore, there was some question about the value of a bath. Some people believed that bathing removed all of the protective oils from the surface and paved the way for infections. Dirt was of secondary importance. We know now that cleanliness prevents infection and is definitely more esthetic.

BUT WE ALSO got letters from people with chips on their shoulders who misinterpreted what we said. At the end of the article, I mentioned: "Strive for preserving your ability to be self-sufficient. By the same token, accept the idea of entering an institution if it becomes necessary. Do nothing to hasten death, but remember that it is unavoidable." These are some of life's hard realities, and it is impossible to grow older without giving them some thought.

Mrs. H. G. from the Bronx went into a state of shock on reading this. "You have literally relegated all senior citizens to another world, where we smell bad, talk about our illnesses, where young people can't be annoyed with us, and where our only future is in the grave.

IN OUR CLUB, everyone comes dressed beautifully, the dance floor is always crowded, and everyone is having a hell of a good time. We are ready for life and living. So far as being with younger people — they bore us with talk about small children, bottles, diapers, and schools, etc. They show very little interest in world affairs, books, and shows."

I love this woman's attitude, even though she missed the point we tried to make. She closed her letter with "Encourage older people to get out, join clubs, and enjoy community activities." and we couldn't agree more heartily.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

NAIL SEPARATION

Mrs. L. writes: About a month ago the nail on my thumb started pulling away. Please tell me the cause and remedy.

REPLY

Nails are affected by the general condition of the body as well as by local diseases (ringworm, psoriasis) and injury. To pinpoint the cause, your nail must be examined. Our leaflet on nail disorders can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

DROPSY

S. C. writes: What is meant by retaining water in the system?

REPLY

This is a dropsical condition in which the fluid of the body is retained by the tissues in much the same way as a sponge holds water. In many instances, there is an excessive amount of salt in the tissues that attracts water. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on generalized edema.

AMENORRHEA

Miss J. Moss writes "Can constant failure to menstruate lead to insanity?

REPLY

No, considering that at least half the people in the world between the ages of 15 and 50 are not capable of this function. Menstruation is a glandular process and represents a periodic sloughing off of the inner lining of the uterus. When it does not occur, the timing mechanism is turned off and any emotional side effects are caused by anxiety or frustration. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on menstrual irregularities.

FALLOUT AND SNOW

H. C. writes: 1. What effect will radiation fallout have on children playing in the snow? 2. Should they be told not to eat it?

REPLY

1. At present there is not enough fallout to take extra precautions.

2. Eating snow, especially if it is dirty, should be discouraged.

PRESSURE MARKS

M. K. writes: It takes four hours for the pressure marks on my face to go away after I get up in the morning. Would you know why?

REPLY

These marks are more prominent when the face is puffy. As a rule, they vanish within 30 minutes. Examination is suggested because a circulatory disturbance may be delaying the flow of tissue fluids back into the general circulation.

DEATH KNELL FOR THE LINCOLN HOTEL?

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, an unofficial candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District, predicted last night that the Republican incumbent will resign within weeks to force a special election.

William S. Mailliard has held the seat since 1952, but has conceded reelection would be very difficult because Supreme Court redistricting removed major segments of voters who traditionally ballot for Republicans.

A special election, however, would be held in the old district, vastly improving the chance of another Republican to be elected and have the advantage of running for reelection as an incumbent. Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, is considering making a run for the seat in the event of a special election.

Citing speculation that Mailliard will be nominated by the President for an ambassadorship, Burton also predicted the congressman would not resign until the appointment was confirmed by the Senate. "I know I wouldn't," Burton said.

Speaking before the Marin County Democratic Central Committee in the Marin Civic Center, Burton said he will make his candidacy official early next year.

The state chairman of his party, Burton said he had decided to make the switch to Congress because he was "concerned about the country — something has to be done. Congress is where I can help solve problems," he declared.

Without offering details, he pointed to his nine-year "record of accomplishment" in the state Assembly.

Anticipating objections to having a second Burton in Congress (his brother, Phillip, also represents San Francisco), the assemblyman quipped, "I offered my brother $75 to change his name, but he didn't want to do it."He added that because of his brother's ties with congressional leaders, he already knows his way around Washington.

Burton also commented variously that the energy crisis resulted because of "absolutely no planning" by government and that negotiating legislation with the Reagan administration is "like playing poker with a drunk — you just don't know what they'll do."

Returning to the prospect of a special election, Burton said "any sensible governor would call it concurrently with the (June) primary." He acknowledged the special election would give an advantage to Republicans, but said the economy will be so bad by then that Democrats will have the upper hand anyway.

(Election law requires the governor to call a special election within 14 days of when a vacancy occurs, but because it already is less than 180 days before the June primary he also can consolidate the special election with the primary.

(If he called a special election sooner, both it and a runoff, if needed, would have to be held within 91 days of his call for the election.)

(Voters in a special election ballot for anyone running, not just for those in their political party. If no one wins a majority, a runoff is held between the top vote getters in each party.

(If the special election were consolidated with the June primary, candidates would run in both the old and new district. The winner of the special election thus would be an incumbent on the November ballot.)

The 28 persons in the audience in the supervisors chambers included other announced or unofficial candidates for next year's elections, including Alan F. Reeves of San Francisco. He said there is "a clear-cut philosophical difference between" himself and Burton, but declined to answer audience questions on the differences, saying it was "not fair" to take up the audience's time with the answers.

T. V. McGuire, a San Rafael businessman, said from the audience that he is considering running for the Democratic nomination in the congressional district, which includes northern San Francisco, all of Marin and a sliver of Southern Sonoma. He said it is "time we get nonprofessional politicians," and termed himself "a citizen who is teed off and griped."

Fire Is Blamed On Cigarette

A blaze which firemen said probably was started by a cigarette left on a couch did about $4,000 damage to a Homestead Valley home this morning.

Tamalpais Fire Protection District firemen said the residents of the house, Gerry Olds and his wife, were both present when the fire began. Olds tried to put out the flames himself, firemen said, but then called the fire department at about 7 a.m.

It took about five minutes to douse the fire, which damaged the living room and left smoke damage throughout the house.

West Wing Of Capitol Off Limits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state legislature yesterday declared the historic west wing of the Capitol off limits to the public effective Jan. 1 for fear that century-old golden dome would collapse in an earthquake.

Both the Senate and Assembly, however, will continue to meet in their ornate chambers in the west wing.

Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, chairman of the Joint Rules Committee, said "personal guests" of legislators will be allowed in the rear of each chamber after they sign "a waiver of liability."

Burton also said the viewing galleries above the chambers will be closed.

Legislative employes and news media members will be permitted access to the chambers when the legislature is in session.

Burton also said live closed-circuit television transmission of the sessions of each house would be provided for the public in two hearing rooms in the east wing of the Capitol.

Burton said all service units, such as the bill room, telephone message center and state police, ere being relocated in the newer east wing.

By Jan. 1, Burton said, all public entrances to the west wing will be closed. Workers Wednesday began sealing the entrances between the two wings with sheetrock.

Burton's announcement came the same day a 40-year era of the press sharing quarters with the legislature in the Capitol ended when the last news service, United Press International, moved out.

UPI was the last of the print media to abandon the historic Capitol. Like most other news organizations, UPI moved into private offices in the Park Executive Building one block from the home of the legislature.

One resident of the west wing has refused to leave and she has a $10 billion reason to remain.

About $10 billion worth of bonds and securities owned by the state, most of them negotiable as cash, are stored in the vault of State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest.

Reagan administration officials have been unable to find another vault with the same security and capacity of her current one, and Mrs. Priest says she won't move until they do.

Also remaining in the Capitol are Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, Sen. George Moscone and Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, along with two television newsmen. They all plan to leave before Dec. 31.

Conservationists Attack Ski Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation intended to open public lands for construction of more privately owned ski resorts drew fire yesterday from spokesmen for environmentalist organizations.

The environmentalists, testifying before the House Public Lands Subcommittee, termed the legislation "a landgrab" and charged it would lead to the "destruction" of scenic mountainsides in the West.

A spokesman for the Sierra Club also suggested the bill, introduced by Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., was intended to pave the way for a huge ski and summer resort that Disney Enterprises wants to build on government land in California.

The legislation was supported by the Forest Service, spokesmen for ski operators and an official of a Denver, Colo., bank which has financed the construction of two big ski resorts.

The bill would do away with an 80-acre limitation on the amount of public land that may be leased to a commercial enterprise. It also would allow leases for up to 50 years instead of the 30 years now permitted under the law.

"This bill represents an unprecedented landgrab by commercial developers, aimed at national forest lands that belong to all of the people," said George Alderson, a spokesman for Friends of the Earth. Alderson also said it would mean "people could be required to pay a private developer for the privilege of setting foot on some of the most scenic lands in the national forest system."

Lloyd Tupling, speaking for the Sierra Club, said the bill could "lead to the destruction" of large areas in the national forest and possibly prevent public access to wilderness areas.

Tupling also charged the bill was intended to end a court fight between the Sierra Club and the government over Forest Service plans to grant a permit to Disney Enterprises for its Mineral King resort in the Sierra Nevada mountains of California.

The Sierra Club spokesman said the huge resort would be built in a scenic area citizen groups had long been trying to get added to the Sequoia National Park.

Johnson, who suffered injuries in a fall, was unable to attend. But in a statement read by an aide, the California congressman said the bill was "needed particularly for most skiing areas where 80 acres is an insufficient amount of land to develop and operate an adequate ski facility."

Associate Forest Service Chief Rexford A. Resler told the committee headed by Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., that the bill would "enhance the partnership between the Forest Service and the private sector in providing needed recreational facilities in the national forests."

"One person can look at a ski slope as a scar," Wallace said. "Someone else looks at it as recreation. Nature itself has scarred mountainsides. It's in the eyes of the beholder."

Wallace contended that ski operators were "very sensitive" to environmental values and wanted to preserve the scenery at their resorts.

Thomas W. Swanson, vice president of the United Bank of Denver, urged that the bill be passed to make it easier for resort developers to borrow money.

Swanson said his bank had provided financing to Vail Associates and the Aspen Skiing Corp., but that both had "well-established" resort operations before the loans were made.

"Under the existing Forest Service permit system, I have doubts whether our bank, without this previous experience, would undertake to finance a new and untried ski area operation," Swanson said.

The bank official said the 80-acre limitation on size and the 30-year maximum life of a permit places "serious constraints" from a lender's viewpoint.

Fire Directors Elect Alvernaz

Henry V. Alvernaz of 1048 Eighth Street, Novato, is the new chairman of the Novato Fire Protection District board, succeeding Peter J. Ferrarese, who lost his bid for reelection last month.

Joseph F. Silveira was elected vice chairman Wednesday and Richard W. Price secretary.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Poll Gauges Major Issues In Inverness

ANNE WEST

Controls on growth, the tourist industry and the family dog are needed in the view of most residents and property owners in the Inverness area who participated in a local opinion survey.

But respondents were split on a number of issues including adequacy of water supplies and sewage disposal, the need for local government or opposition to any higher local taxes.

Computer tabulations of 666 replies to about 1,200 questionnaires distributed by the Inverness Area Planning Group were recently completed by the Marin County data processing department. The area covers private lands on the west shore of Tomales Bay between Point Reyes National Seashore and Tomales Bay State Park.

Questions covered issues ranging from the need for bicycle paths (561 in support) to a proposal to encourage communal living (458 against).

A growth projection that would add 300 more dwelling units by 1990 (or less than 20 a year) found 480 opposed to a higher growth rate, with 354 replying on a separate question that even fewer additions should be allowed. Only 55 would approve a higher growth rate.

Limiting future population by limiting the amount of water available was supported by 551.

The knotty problem of deciding just who would be allowed to build was reflected as 390 agreed that "people who own lots should have the right to build on them" while 235 either disagreed or were undecided. Regulating home starts through a local plan was supported by 419, although 481 felt a special zoning study should precede a local plan.

Encouragement of the tourist industry was opposed by 537, with 533 favoring a local review board to control future tourist or business enterprises. Additional campgrounds for recreation vehicles were opposed by 541, with 425 saying daytime tourist industries are "most appropriate for the area."

A no-growth policy on auto travel also found favor, with 454 saying the number of cars entering the national seashore should be limited, 483 opposing improvements to access roads to West Marin and 409 feeling that access to West Marin park areas should be primarily by public transit.

Dogs should be locked up at night, said 570 respondents, and 463 said dogs should be chained or confined when unattended by their owners. Tighter county controls were favored by 368 respondents who outweighed 173 canine enthusiasts and 75 undecided persons.

In an area served by several different water companies and a number of private wells, three-way splits were recorded on questions relating to adequacy of present supplies or plans for the future.

Similar divisions on these and other topics with figures in parentheses showing those in agreement, disagreement or undecided on the statements made:

Water: satisfied with present water system (316-243-47); North Marin Water District should serve entire area (225-201-182); local residents should purchase watersheds and water systems (337-123-158).

Sewage: would prefer unified sewage system to present use of septic tanks (194-288-150); would favor biennial inspection of all septic tanks (284-214-127); county should encourage alternate methods of waste disposal (418-39-183).

Local government: favor local government to control water, fire, police and plannings (289-156-163).

Taxes: will oppose plans for the area that threaten to raise taxes (241-243-142). On a separate question asking how much money respondents would pay annually for purchase of open space, 308 said they would approve amounts between $30 and $50. 168 would authorize from $5 to $20, and 73 would refuse any amount.

Questionnaire results will be discussed at the next meeting of the Inverness Area Planning Group, to be held at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 4 in the Inverness School.

Prosecutor In Manson Case Seeks Office

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Deputy District Attorney Vincent T. Bugliosi, who prosecuted the Charles Manson "family" for the Sharon Tate murders, announced yesterday he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state attorney general.

Meanwhile, Irving Kanarek, Bugliosi's foe in the Tate trial as defense lawyer for Manson, filed suit against Los Angeles County yesterday for $49,150. Kanarek maintains he was appointed by the court to defend Manson, and so the county owes him his fee. The county says Kanarek was hired privately and so the bill should go to Manson, who is serving life in prison on nine convictions for first degree murder.

SUNDAY NIGHT FARE

'Menagerie' Offers Rare TV Watching

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — The most casual television watcher knows by now that Katharine Hepburn is doing her thing on the tube Sunday night in "The Glass Menagerie." So read here instead about Joanna Miles.

Her portrayal of fragile innocence gives an enchanting glow to the somewhat truncated version of the noted Tennessee Williams memory play that monopolizes the ABC television network from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. (PST) on channel 7.

Miss Hepburn centers the piece with predictable authority as a termagent Southern matriarch who hopes to win back lost gentility by manipulating the lives of her grown children.

It is not slighting her superb artistry, however, to suggest that Miss Miles exquisitely provides most of the dramatic balance that might otherwise be lacking.

The most autobiographically intimate of all Williams' works, "The Glass Menagerie" involves just four people, a natural for television's facility for reflective intimacy.

KATHARINE HEPBURN
Heads play's cast

In this David Susskind production, screened in advance for critics, the original text has been kept, although time limitations have required cuts.

Sam Waterston, who keeps growing in emotional range, enacts — as far as he is permitted — young manhood's rebellion against the rat-trap of life in a shoe warehouse.

To preserve the dramatic flow, the sponsor — IBM — has waived the usual number of interruptions for only one midway pitch.

All in all, "The Glass Menagerie" rates a rare, rewarding and unforgettable living room experience for those planning to watch it.

The Nixons Send Porcelain Figure

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Peggy Sue Wallace, soon to be married daughter of Gov. George C. Wallace, has received an engraved porcelain figurine as her wedding gift from President and Mrs. Nixon.

Although among the about 600 persons invited, the first family was not expected to attend the church wedding tomorrow of Miss Wallace and Mark Kennedy of Greenville, Ala.

Miss Wallace, 23, said the gift, identified as "Boehm's Bird of Peace," depicted a duck sitting on a lilly pond.

Warren Speaks Against Secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If anything is to be learned from Watergate, says former Chief Justice Earl Warren, it is that "we should strike at secrecy in government wherever it exists."

Speaking at a lunch yesterday where prizes were given to reporters in the name of the late columnist Drew Pearson, Warren conceded the need for some degree of confidentiality in government decision-making.

"But to recognize that fact, one need not subscribe to the bizarre contentions of the administration for boundless secrecy under the ensign of executive privilege and national security," he said. "If we are to learn from the debacle we are in, we should first strike at secrecy in government wherever it exists, because it is the incubator for corruption."

Faller Falls Upon Worker, Both Die

NEW YORK (UPI) — A construction worker fell 30 floors yesterday, landed on a co-worker and killed him. The man who fell died three hours later.

Police said they believed Robert Hanuer, 28, of Stony Brook, N.Y., may have fallen out of a harness. The other victim was Michael Pagano, 22, New York.

New Immigration Chief Plans Population Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After two weeks in office the new head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service last night deliberately set out to stir up a public controversy over how big a population the nation should have.

Leonard F. Chapman Jr., retired Marine Corps Commandant, said the nation is going to have to face that question as supplies of energy and other resources recurringly fail to meet the demands of population growth.

Chapman, an appointee of President Nixon, sworn in Nov. 29, told reporters he does not personally lean either way on the population question but pledged he will take a position soon after he studies the question.

He said the question has two sides:

The nation has an "open door" tradition, with the understanding all Americans, except Indians, are immigrants or descendants of immigrants.

At the other end of the spectrum, Chapman said, there is pressure to "haul up the gangplank" — pressure against immigration might as the supply of space and resources become scarcer.

PIRATE CLASSIC

San Marin, Drake Win

By TOM THOMPSON

San Marin High School beat Terra Linda last night, 51-46, in the Drake Pirate Classic to score the basketball tournament's second major upset in opening round play.

And host Drake, heavily favored and defending tourney champion, just barely escaped the clutches of another upset by beating Napa, 57-54, in the evening's second game.

The victories last night, coupled with San Rafael and Novato wins Wednesday, make the championship bracket an all-Marin affair for the first time in the nine-year history of the event, according to tournament director Carl (Red) Brown.

Semi-final action was to begin this afternoon with Ells (2-3) of Richmond playing Petaluma (4-1) at 4 p.m. and Terra Linda (2-3) taking on Napa (1-5) at 5:30 for shots at the consolation title. Championship play starts at 7 p.m. with Novato (4-0) going against San Rafael (2-3) and continues at 8:30 with San Marin (3-3) against Drake (5-1).

San Marin led all the way in its surprising win over Terra Linda, and seemingly had the game on ice at the end of the third quarter with a 42-28 lead. The Mustangs stretched that edge even further before Terra Linda rallied back into the game.

The Trojans chipped away at the deficit and trailed by four with one minute left to play. However, a lane violation and a traveling call hurt Terra Linda's chances and the Mustangs took control again.

"I thought we played a real good ball game except in the fourth quarter," said San Marin coach Andy Frauenhofer. "I made substitution mistakes when I thought the game was under control."

Guard Dave Harris, a 5-foot-7 senior, led the Mustangs with 19 points, scoring 15 in the third quarter when his team seemed to be breaking the game open.

Senior guard Rick Herbert sank two free-throws with 28 seconds left in the game to give Drake its hard-fought victory over Napa. The Pirates led by one or three points most of the fourth quarter before Napa's Ed Bianchi tied it up at 54-54 with 1:04 showing on the clock. The Indians had a chance to tie it again after Herbert's free-throws, but were called for traveling and Drake's Eddie Joe Chavez put the game away for good from the line with the final point of the evening.

Herbert had what winning coach Pete Hayward called "his best game this year", with 16 points, while Carson finished with 12. Neither Chavez nor Trimble, the Pirates' leading scorers so far this year, tallied in double figures.

Talking Tennis High In The Sky

The setting was high in the clouds over San Francisco and the main attraction in the room was Billie Jean King, perhaps the best woman athlete in the world, the gal who has done more for women's sports than anybody.

It was in the Bankers Club on the 52nd floor of the Bank of America Center in San Francisco, where the pedestrians doing their Christmas shopping were reduced to ants going from nest to nest as you looked down from the windows high above.

BILLIE JEAN KING

The purpose of the get together between Ms. King and the press was to announce the start of the 1974 Virginia Slims Women's Tennis Circuit in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium Jan. 14-19.

The purses for the women's tennis tournaments are $50,000, so as they say, they've come a long way, baby. Billie Jean has done a lot in bringing this about with her fights for equal pay with men of the tennis world. She's not a hard, sock it to 'em, leader of the women's liberation movement. She just wants to see women get their fair share of loot on the tennis courts.

When publicist Jerry Diamond of Tiburon introduced her at yesterday's luncheon he quipped: "You all know this chick next to me." Billie Jean smiled and said, "Chick, broad, it doesn't matter." She keeps the women's lib thing in perspective, and for that I am glad.

When the question of a rematch with 55-year-old Bobby Riggs came up, Billie said she's not considering it, despite a $100,000 guarantee Bobby promised he would dig up. "I don't think it would help me to go out and beat him again," she said. "That $100,000 doesn't mean that much to me."

Billie said Rosemary Casals is trying to work up a match against Riggs, the biggest sports hustler since Minnesota Fats started giving his

Astros' Star Will Likely Miss Camp

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno will almost certainly miss spring training with the Houston Astros and may not even free himself from his legal entanglement here until well into the 1974 baseball season, criminal lawyers were predicting here today.

Police called the shooting "accidental" in their report and Wednesday police said that the parafin test made of the outfielder's hands hours after the shooting were "negative," implying he did not fire a weapon recently. The test on the dead girl was "positive," police said.

Even if Cedeno is exonerated, it will be months before the trial process is completed if Dominican justice runs its normal course, the lawyers said.

He cannot be released on bail pending trial unless the charge is reduced because "voluntary manslaughter" is not a bailable offense, the lawyers said.

Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel, who is conducting the preliminary hearing, must decide whether the charge is to prevail or whether it should be reduced to "involuntary manslaughter." In that case, Cedeno could go free on bail pending trial but could not leave the country without special permission, the legal experts said.

They said Diaz could take up to 16 days to decide which charge Cedeno should face.

Meanwhile, the young athlete must remain in La Fe precinct jail where he has been since Tuesday. He surrendered himself voluntarily eight hours after the pre-dawn shooting.

The preliminary hearing, which began Wednesday with Diaz questioning Cedeno for two hours, did not resume Wednesday because Diaz unaccountably did not go to court.

The hearing is closed but sources close to the District Attorney said four witnesses have been called in addition to Cedeno, and that when the hearing was recessed, Keko motel room service waiter Pedro Banks was being questioned by the magistrate and that he was to resume the stand at the next session.

The version accepted by police was that the girl was examining the .38-caliber pistol and that Cedeno tried to get it from her when it went off.

Cedeno had skipped playing Dominican Winter League ball this season to allow a leg injury to mend. Three weeks before the shooting he said in a police complaint that he had been robbed of $5,000 worth of jewelry and a watch while he slept in another motel.

WILLIAMS SIGNS WITH YANKS

Finley Tapes Controversy Looms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now it's baseball that may have a great tapes controversy.

The question at hand is did Oakland owner Charlie Finley verbally release Dick Williams from the final two years of his contract on national TV on Oct. 21?

That could become the legal issue if Finley decides to take the New York Yankees to court after they broke a two-month stalemate yesterday by signing Williams to a three-year contract as their manager.

Williams claims Finley released him on national TV shortly after the Oakland A's beat the New York Mets in the seventh game of the World Series. Finley disagrees.

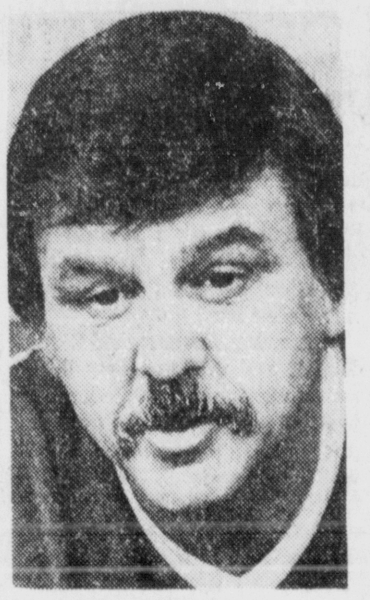
The hassle might be decided by a court's interpretation of the video tapes of the short TV conversation. NBC-TV, which broadcast the World Series, has the video tapes of the exact conversation.

According to an NBC spokesman who checked the tapes, the conversation went like this:

Finley: "even though you're not going to be with us next year, I want to thank you for the great job you've done for the three years you've been with us."

Williams: "thank you Charlie very much and I'm going to miss not being with you but I've made a decision and I'm going to stay with it."

Did that conversation constitute a release by Finley? That could be up to the courts to settle.



DICK WILLIAMS
Tapes controversy

Finley has threatened to sue if the Yanks signed Williams without giving him compensation. And he's rjected the offers the Yanks have made so far.

But at his LaPorte, Ind. home yesterday after he was notified of the Yankees' action, Finley refused to say what his next move will be. He said the Yanks, "decided to make a fast move" but added he'd "prefer to stay mum this time."

Of course, the whole issue still could be settled by negotiations without a court fight.

Joe Cronin, the American League president who refused to comment on the Yanks' action, has scheduled a meeting Wednesday in Boston to try one more time to resolve the issue. Cronin also has a meeting on Tuesday on the Detroit-New York situation.

The Tigers became involved when they signed Ralph Houk, who resigned on the final day of the season as Yankee manager, as their manager in October. Once Finley refused to release Williams, the Yanks brought up the issue of Houk since he had two years left on his Yankee contract.

The Tigers point out they signed Houk even before Williams resigned and they insist they're not involved.

Both Williams and Gabe Paul, the Yankee president, refused to discuss the legal questions involved in the controversy.

"I feel in my mind I'm a free agent," Williams said, "I checked it out with my lawyer to make sure I was free to negotiate."

Redwood Cagers Defeat Liberty

The Yuba City Tournament continues through tomorrow night, but the championship game will be tonight as far as Redwood High School basketball coach Dick Hart is concerned.

His Giants, who rolled to a 71-46 victory over Liberty of Brentwood last night, face East Bay power Livermore in tonight's 7 o'clock semi-final game. Livermore walloped Vacaville, 71-36.

In other tournament action, Marin Catholic fell to unbeaten Analy of Sebastopol in the Rose City Tournament in Santa Rosa, 68-56. The Wildcats were to face St. Patrick's of Vallejo at 5 p.m. today.

"We rebounded better than we have all season — against a smaller team, of course," said Hart. Randy Miller, a 6-foot-4 junior forward, hauled down 18 rebounds.

Neil Hennessy led the scoring effort with 24 points, making nine of 18 shots from the floor, and Darrell Elder chipped in 13 markers on six of 12 shots.

Redwood (3-3) held previously unbeaten Liberty (4-1) to 10 field goals and broke the game open with a 28-8 third-quarter outburst. "We'll have to play a good game tonight," said Hart. "Livermore is bigger than we are."

Marin Catholic (2-3) "just didn't come to play," said coach Dave Gonsalves. "It was a lethargic performance. Tom Cronin (15 points, 12 rebounds) was our only bright spot."

Cronin and Mike Mahoney combined for 13 points in the third period as the 'Cats rallied, but Analy pulled away in the last quarter. Terry Ahern scored 15 and Mahoney 13 for the game.

Billie Jean Is Top-Rated Netter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billie Jean King, Wimbledon Champion for the fifth time and conqueror of Bobby Riggs, today was ranked first among American women tennis players by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

For Billie Jean, of Hilton Head, S.C., it was the fourth straight time on top of the list, although her year was marred by injury and illness, notably at Forest Hills, where she collapsed from the heat and retired against Houston's Julie Heldman in the quarter finals.

Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale moved from third in 1972 to second, with Rosemary Casals of San Francisco third, Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex. fourth and Miss Heldman fifth. San Rafael's Sharon Walsh is ranked 20th.

SHRINERS PREP GRID CANCELED

When Redwood High School's Mike Connor was playing in the Shrine North-South All-Star Football Game last August in Los Angeles, little did he know that he would be the last Marinite to do so.

The Al Malaikah Shrine Temple of Los Angeles, sponsor of the game for 22 years, said last night it would hold only a Southern California game this year, pitting the best high school players from the L.A. area against the best from outlying regions.

A Shrine spokesman cited the energy crisis, budget cuts and perhaps declining attendance as the reason for the change. Nearly 50,000 paid for tickets last year, he said, but only 29,000 showed up on a warm Sunday afternoon.

BASKETBALL

Bad Start For USF Continues

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The season which began so hopefully for the University of San Francisco is rapidly turning to ashes.

The Dons, ranked as high as third in the nation in pre-season basketball polls, suffered their third loss in four games last night, bowing to host Providence College, 76-57.

Earlier, USF suffered one-point losses to Stanford and Long Beach State and skidded out of the United Press International rankings.

Phil Smith scored 18 points for the Dons, but Providence's Marvin Barnes was the dominant force in the game with 20 points, 22 rebounds and six blocked shots for the eighth-ranked Friars.

Elsewhere on the Coast, Long Beach continued to scare Pacific Coast Athletic Association rivals Fresno State, Pacific and U.C. Santa Barbara by winning impressively again.

The 49ers, rated 12th and apparently ready to move up, won at tough Canisius 94-82 with Roscoe Pondexter hitting 20 and Leonard Gray 18. Those two muscular veterans and Roscoe's 6-foot-8 freshman brother Clifton give the 49ers a front-line that would be unbeatable in a street brawl and is nearly as tough on a court.

UC Santa Barbara, meanwhile, entertained Wyoming and made it four-for-four in a 91-67 romp with Greg Bell scoring 20.

Fresno State watched a 20-point lead vanish but held on for a 57-55 win over Colorado State, its fifth without a setback. Charles Bailey was the whole show as he hit 29 for the winners.

San Jose State, now 4-1, claimed a 92-66 win at South Dakota. Pete Miller and Eric Saulny scored 14 each for the Spartans, who hit 52 per cent of their shots.

One team that appears to be outgunned in the PCAA, San Diego State, saw its record slump to 1-3 with a 95-78 loss at Oral Roberts. John Anderson led the losers with 18.

Elsewhere, Mike Savage scored 24 to lead Redlands over Southern California College 67-60, 17th-ranked Arizona had trouble putting away Idaho 101-80, Northridge lost to Weber State 73-67 and San Francisco State fell at Youngstown 81-64.

Sugar Bowl Has Come Long Way

By CHARLIE COANE

Instead of plunking down eight to 10 dollars every time you gear up to ski, how would you like to spend 25 cents per ride on the chairlift? Well, don't get your hopes up but that's the way it was 35 years ago when California's first chairlift was built on Mt. Disney at Sugar Bowl, on Donner Summit off Interstate 80.

That chairlift, a far cry from today's modern double, triple and four-seater chairlifts, had only single chairs and moved less than 100 skiers in an hour up the mountain. But 25 cents isn't too bad. So much for that.

And, Sugar Bowl has come a long way also, since those early days in the late 1930s. The resort is now California/Nevada's fourth largest, and vice president Don Schwartz had developed an interesting philosophy. Sugar Bowl doesn't necessarily seek more skiers to come to the resort. Instead, Mr. Schwartz is more concerned with improving the area for the many devoted Sugar Bowl enthusiasts.

But with the plans on the books for the next four years, Sugar Bowl is bound to attract some new talent. One thing is the fact that the lift ticket price is only $8 — in spite of the fact that nearby Alpine and Squaw have jumped this season to $9 and $10 respectively. A significant improvement on the mountain is the completely rebuilt "historic" double chairlift on Mt. Disney. The original single was replaced in 1952 and now comes the new Disney chair, which is one of six chairs on three mountacs. This new chair is 4,000 feet long, moves 1,000 skiers per hour and has a vertical of 1,000 feet. The capacity is an increase from last season. Mt. Disney was named after Walt Disney, who was the first Sugar Bowl stockholder.

Another plan to be put into effect soon is free bus service (busses with ski racks, of course) from the Interstate 80 exit at Soda Springs to Sugar Bowl on weekends and holidays from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Sugar Bowl has also done extensive summer grooming to improve many of the runs, and plans to keep things in shape with what they claim is the Far West's largest assortment of sophisticated snow grooming equipment with 22 units.

Another big project which hopefully will see reality next season is a new double chairlift for beginners and intermediates. This would replace the 800-foot rope tow and a 1,000 foot T-bar. The lift will be located below the nose of Mt. Disney, within walking distance of the hotel. The T-bar would then be moved to Christmas Tree Ridge and open up new ski terrain for advanced and intermediate skiers.

"We're thinking of opening a super new run for experts only," said Schwartz. "It would shoot down Mt. Lincoln and be a challenge for only top skiers. It would start at the sundeck, wind through the trees, plunge down the wall of The Three Sisters, open into the snow bowl above the Steilhung and then come out at the lower terminal of Lincoln Chair No. 2."

One of the things that makes Sugar Bowl unique is that access to the resort — which claims to be the unofficial "snow capital" of the U.S. with over 500 inches of snow annually — is gained only by riding the Magic Carpet gondola or a double chairlift in and out of the area.

Fatal Accident For Ski Officer

MAMMOTH MOUNTAIN, Calif. (AP) — A ski patrolman assigned to avalanche control was killed in an accidental explosion, the Mono County Sheriff's office reported.

Marvin R. Critton, 35, apparently was preparing an explosive charge when the blast occurred yesterday morning, a sheriff's deputy said. Critton was alone and no one else was injured.

The blast took place on the slope at the Mammoth Mountain Ski resort where Critton was a patrolman, officers said.

Saying she wants to get more changes for women's tennis "at the grass roots level," such as pension plans, Billie said, "I don't think we've done enough. We've just started."

Men and women are staying in tennis at older ages now, said King, and it's not just because of the money. "They are getting appreciation from the public. It's a growing thing. The thing to do now is to play tennis."

She admitted she didn't spend enough time on tennis last year and her game suffered for it. She termed 1973 a bad year, although she went over the $100,000 mark in earnings for the third straight year.

Last January she was forced out of the Virginia Slims tourney in San Francisco after the first round. The 30-year-old King suffered an inflamation of the joint in her right wrist. She was out of action for more than a month because of it. She came back to win her fifth Wimbledon title.

Although she's going to be playing a lot of tennis, Billie Jean is going to find time to go into the magazine publishing business. The magazine, called Women's Sports, will hit the newsstands in April and sell for 75 cents. Not wanting to lose all the male readers, there will also be a sprinkling of stories about men.

Because of her off year in 1973, Billie Jean fell to third in the international rankings. But she is still ranked No. 1 in the United States rankings which were announced today.

POOR FIGHTS

Tempers Flare In 49er Camp

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tempers flared and fights have broken out this week while the 5-8 San Francisco 49ers prepare for tomorrow's tussle with the 9- 4 Pittsburgh Steelers.

Though nothing is at stake for the 49ers in the game, the practice sessions this week have been hard fought.

A day earlier, defensive lineman Stan Hindman tangled briefly with offensive lineman Jean Barrett.

"Those were two of the worst fights I've ever seen," said Head Coach Dick Nolan in assessing the brief scraps.

John Brodie, who is scheduled to start at quarterback in his final game with the 49ers, came up with a sore arm yesterday.

"It's nothing," said Brodie. "I just threw too much on Wednesday."

2 Thrillers, 3 Routs In Recreation Cage

Two games were decided by one point each and the other three were decided by a combined 89 points in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league play last night at San Rafael High.

MacArthur's sneaked by the Centaurs, 52-51, and Mike's Bar and Grill shaded the Centics in double overtime, 53-52, in the close games. In the lopsided ones, Jim Shaw scored 30 points as the Skins beat the Bulldogs, 68-25; Ralph Dannenberg tallied 26 as George and Charles Carpentry crushed the Hardhats, 57-25; and Brookline Electric topped the All-Catholic All-Stars, 57-43.

Format Reduced In Tars' Tourney

In keeping with the spirit of the times, basketball coach John Panagakis has announced 1973 guidelines calling for a 50 per cent reduction in the number of teams in the College of Marin Invitational.

This newest shortage is expected to conserve the energy of the players, who will play only two games instead of the three they played last year, when the Invitational was an eight-team tournament.

This year, it will be a four-team, round-robin affair, with pre-determined opponents and no championship game. Tonight, Marin will face Moffett Field at 9 p.m. following a game between Santa Rosa and Reedly at 7 p.m. Tomorrow, Marin will play Reedley at 9 p.m. and Santa Rosa will battle Moffett Field at 7.

"It just got too expensive," said Panagakis when asked why the old format was scrapped. Even with a superior team, Marin rarely fills its gymnasium, and the mid-afternoon games with outside teams were even more sparesely attended.

Reedley, which won the tourney two years ago, holds victories over state powers West Hills and Ventura. Moffett Field, composed of Naval personnel from that air station near Sunnyvale, was a 74-52 victim of Marin in the 1973 opener. Santa Rosa is a Camino Norte Conference rival of the Tars.

Marin enters the game with a 7-0 record following an impressive 66-45 thumping of previously undefeated Laney of Oakland Tuesday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE STATS

Mets Have Poorest Flag-Winning Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New York Mets had the lowest won-loss percentage of any pennant winner in major league history and were last among the 12 National League teams in slugging percentage, official league statistics of last baseball season showed today.

The Mets' 82-79 mark for .509 compared with a previous low of .564 by the 1959 Los Angeles Dodgers who were 88-68.

In slugging percentage, where the Atlanta Braves led with .427, the Mets were the only NL club below .350, posting .338.

Individual slugging honors went to Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh with .646, and Darrell Evans of Atlanta was second at .556.

Hank Aaron was 38 short of the minimum 502 plate appearances required to qualify for the slugging championship. His percentage was .643.

Aaron had 40 home runs, Evans 41 and Dave Johnson 43 to give Atlanta the distinction of being the first major league club to have three 40-plus home run hitters in one season.

Evans drew the most bases on balls, 124; and Bobby Bonds of San Francisco had the most strikeouts, 148. Stargell's 129 strikeouts gave him nine consecutive seasons with 100-plus strikeouts, which tied a major league record held by Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox.

Montreal second baseman Ron Hunt led the league for the sixth consecutive year in the hit-by-pitcher category. The 24 times he was hit raised his 11-season total to 227, adding to the major league lifetime record he already held.

Seals Seek Better Goalie Play

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals hope for a little more defense in the nets tonight at 8 o'clock when they host mighty Montreal.

Montreal seems disappointed with a lofty 16-7-3 record, which puts them in second spot in the National Hockey League East behind Boston, which is dazzling the league with an 18-4-3 record.

"We're not scoring as much but we're playing well defensively," visiting coach Scotty Bowman said. "We've been running into good goal tending."

They could run into some of the other kind of goaltending tonight.

With regulars Gilles Meloche and Marv Edwards sidelined by injuries, the Seals have had to go with newcomers Ted Tucker and Bob Champoux. The result has been 21 goals against the Seals during the last three games.

Yet the Seals have traditionally played the Habs tougher than most and both Champoux and Tucker both have played in the Montreal system.

"It's easier to get ready for Montreal than any other club," says the 31-year-old Champoux. "The adrenalin starts to flow faster. When I was a kid it was a dream to play with them and I did play against them in an exhibition game once. Was I ever high!"

The 24-year-old Tucker says, "I would like to start since Montreal once owned me as an amateur. I don't think I'd be nervous. I've been to three of their camps."

Coach Fred Glover has not decided which rookie will start tonight.

Rancho Matmen's Victory String Ended By Analy

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park had its 19-match wrestling winning streak broken yesterday with a 39-27 Sonoma County League loss to host Analy High School of Sebastopol.

In other Southern Sonoma high school mat action yesterday, Casa Grande of Petaluma fell to visiting Sonoma County League for Healdsburg, 69-4.

Mike Martin got the only win for the Gauchos with an 18-6 decision over Mark Duran. Casa Grande is now 1-1 overall and 0-1 in SCL play.

Cal Poly Football Coach Anderson Out

POMONA, Calif. (UPI) — Roy Anderson quit Thursday as football coach at Cal Poly-Pomona.

His 1973 record was 4-6-1. He had served five seasons.

Thoms To Renew Old Acquaintance

They will be on opposing sides when the Raiders and Broncos meet Sunday for the championship of the Western Division of the American Football Conference.

"You've got to get to Floyd before he gets going," said Thoms who played at Syracuse with Little in 1966. "You've got to nail him quick before he puts on a move or he'll leave you."

Little needs 63 yards for his second 1,000 yard season in the NFL.

Thoms says the Raiders will win Sunday because everyone knows the money is on the line. "You lose any Sunday the rest of the way, you pack up and go home. I don't think we will."

Quarry Vs. Shavers Tonight

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Jerry Quarry, gunning for another heavyweight title shot, and Ernie Shavers, a power puncher who recently acquired a taste for boxing's big time, meet tonight in a scheduled 12-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Quarry was rated a 2½-1 favorite. Many boxing observers felt the bout wouldn't go the distance, and the fighters agreed.

Garden Boxing expected a crowd of about 15,000 for the fight, scheduled to start about 7:15 p.m., PST, and be shown on home-pay television in parts of New York State, Pennsylvania and New Jersey and on closed-circuit in nine cities including Cleveland, Shavers' base.

Sonoma Cagers Drop 4th In Row

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. — Sonoma State College had its basketball losing streak extended to four games here last night, as the Cossacks dropped a 105-76 non-league contest to Middle Tennessee State University.

The Cossacks, who face Murray State University in Murray, Ky. tomorrow night to conclude their six-day road trip, fell to 2-4 for the season.

"We played real hard, but we were a little tired," commented Sonoma assistant coach Dave Castleberry. "They're a real good team and beat us soundly."

After traveling all day yesterday from Missouri to Tennessee, the Cossacks were understandably tired; their fatigue was reflected in their 37 per cent shooting from the field.

Sonoma was in the game until just before the end of the first half when Fred Allen put in five straight 20-foot jumpers to give Middle Tennessee a 13-point bulge. Allen finished with 24 points.

Sonoma scoring leader Bill Belander again led the way with 25 points and seven rebounds.

Sonoma State	33	43—76
Middle Tennessee	46	59—105

Sonoma State — Belander 10-5-25, Johnson 6-5-17, LeBrun 1-0-2, Tiedeman 6-6-18, Bristol 2-0-4, Gibson 2-0-4, Long 1-0-2, Sumpter 1-0-2, Taylor 1-0-2. Totals: 30-16-76.

Warriors, Portland Tonight

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors, whose two game bulge in the Pacific Division is their biggest in seven years, try to widen that margin tonight when they face the Portland Trail Blazers.

It was Dec. 18, 1967, when the Warriors held a bigger margin in the division. The Los Angeles Lakers have led most of the time since then, but are having problems this season without Wilt Chamberlain and with Jerry West hurting.

Rick Barry will return to the Warriors lineup after missing Tuesday's win over Houston with a sprained ankle. Cazzie Russell picked up the slack in that one with a career high 49 points after Barry had hit for 50 in the game before.

The Warriors seemingly have played their best this season with one or two starters sidelined by injuries.

The Warriors return home tomorrow night to face the Capital Bullets and then host high-flying Boston next Tuesday.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

It Just Takes Some Teaching

The training and teaching of your dog and your wife. That's what this column is all about.

Last Wednesday when the bunch of us went to the Sacramento hunting area, we naturally took my dog, Bruno. You should see him. He's supposed to be a purebred Springer, but he has big feet and short heavy legs just like a Basset hound.

Three years ago, Howard Leach of Sacramento, one of my deer hunting partners, sent him to me, I think, as a joke. He has turned out to be just great. He doesn't fight with other dogs, lives in the house like a king, retrieves ducks admirably, hunts pheasants, and will track a crippled buck until it's found; and he doesn't have an iota of meanness in him.

ALL OF THESE features were born in him, but he still had to be taught. First Mary, my wife, took him to the Post Office where she works. There, Bruno met all of Woodacre. From the handouts he received every day, he learned that people were friendly, so he developed his enormous appetite and liking for people.

We took him when he was about eight months old on all the hunts. He learned quickly, and has been a help in everything we do. He handles a duck or a pheasant with such tenderness, that no mark is ever left on the bird. Now you can't beat that!

Now, let's take the wives. I always hear from people about the fact that I go to the mountains for a whole month each year. Other hunters wonder "How do you do it?" It's simple — take your wife. This method of approach takes all the heat off you and it actually can be helpful. But like dog training, it takes time and patience.

I remember when Mary started out — it was in deer season. I got her a Marlin .32 Special, lever action, then we held some target practice sessions. She eventually became a pretty good shot. Then it was after the bucks. At first it was a fiasco! I think I showed her every buck in Marin County before she finally got off a shot. We tried everything.

I REMEMBER taking her to Nicasio before she had that first buck. We went for a hunt, and up on one of the ridges we saw a good buck feeding. We made a long sneak on it, then from behind a big rock, I told her to take it. I figured this time, I would back her up with my gun. I counted one . . . two . . . three, and shot. She didn't get her shot off, but I did. I had already used my "A" tag that year, I looked at her and she thought I was going to have her tag the downed buck. Two big tears showed in her eyes. I tagged the buck! Did you ever hate a woman just for a minute?

At Webber Lake later that year, a big buck stood up behind a log and I had no rifle. I could see her front sight going around in circles. She couldn't get the shot off — finally that buck snorted and took off. Oh, we had our problems at first.

I remember one time — I believe it was on the 17th buck — that I told her that if a buck wasn't shot at it would always turn and look back at the crest of the ridge. That was the time to shoot. We tried this, but the bucks never looked back. Finally, I said to shoot at the next buck no matter what. She got the buck! I couldn't believe it. It was a running shot. From then on it was bucks, bucks, bucks!

I GUESS SHE'S bagged 30 or so since that eventful day. Then it was pheasants and ducks, sage grouse, trout, steelhead and salmon, abalones, clams and cockles. She became an enthused outdoorswoman and she can now hold up with the best of the men. She can also cook, and understands and fills in with the campfire jargon. She's fully aware of the beauty of the outdoors, so when she can't go, there is no displeasure on her part that I can go. I get a kick out of it all.

Last year up at Lassen, Enos Foster, our Woodacre neighbor, came by our camp one early morning. It was snowing. Mary was up making the fire and making some coffee. We were in the tent where we can sleep, eat and cook. Me, I was in bed! Coffee in bed — that was the ticket. Enos looked the situation over and said, "Al, you've got a racket!" Bruno was curled up under the warm wood stove; it was a homey scene. All it took to put the whole thing together was time and patience.

KEITH FRASER of Loch Lomond reported the sturgeon fishing as SUPER last weekend. Grant Howe, Larry Mah and Gene Tom tried drifting the Red Rock using shiners. They were in by lunchtime with nine bass. After lunch they took one pound of live shrimp and returned shortly with two sturgeon, 62 pounds and 122 pounds. That would be hard to beat but someone did. Three boats with three fishermen each came in Saturday with limits of sturgeon — nine. Top that!

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Complex Playoff Picture Going Into Last Weekend

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

On the final weekend of the National Football League's regular season, the situation for playoff berths is as simple as A, B, C and D.

Atlanta, Buffalo and Cleveland must win to remain in the running for wild card berths. Denver must win to gain their division title. If any of the four lose or tie they are out of the playoffs.

Five teams, however, would be willing to settle for a tie. If Cincinnati and Pittsburgh either win or tie they clinch playoff berths, one as the American Football Conference Central champion, the other as the wild card entry. If both win, the Bengals are the division champs and the Steelers the wild card. If both tie, the Steelers are division winners and the Bengals are wild card.

Oakland will clinch the AFC West title with a victory or tie against Denver. Washington and Dallas, both with 9-4 records in the National Football Conference East, can nail down playoff spots with victories or ties.

Only three teams—Minnesota (NFC Central), Los Angeles (NFC West) and Miami (AFC East)—have clinched division championships.

It's all so simple.

Terry Bradshaw will be back in the starting quarterback slot for Pittsburgh after returning to the lineup last week and hitting 11 of 20 passes for 117 yards in the Steelers' 33-7 romp over Houston. Bradshaw had been out since Oct. 28 with a shoulder separation.

Two Miami backs, Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka will be attempting to break the 1,000-yard rushing mark against Detroit in a game that means nothing as far as the playoffs go. Morris, with 954 yards, will be trying for his second straight 1,000-yard season while Csonka will be looking for his third straight.

But in the individual department Sunday, the focus will be on O.J. Simpson's attack against Jim Brown's season rushing record of 1,863 set in 1963. Simpson, who gained 219 yards last week in Buffalo's 37-13 triumph over New England, needs only 61 yards this week as the Bills hope to stay in contention against the New York Jets, who may be playing without Joe Namath.

Casa Grande Five Entertains Tomales

Tomales High School (1-6) and Casa Grande (3-3) of Petaluma will meet on the basketball floor for the first time tonight at 9 o'clock at Casa Grande.

The only other games involving southern Sonoma teams find St. Vincent (4-3) of Petaluma at Cloverdale, 8 p.m. tonight, and Petaluma in the Drake Pirate Classic in San Anselmo today and tomorrow.

Looking For A $1,500 Per Week Job?

By ED TOWNSEND
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Building trades craftsmen earning $1,500 a week? It is probable in 1974, if work gets under way on the long-delayed 796-mile trans-Alaska pipeline.

But there is a catch: The money will be for seven 10-hour days a week on isolated project sites in the frozen tundra. There appears to be more concern about filling the jobs than about turning jobseekers away.

Congress has authorized the $4.5 billion project, the most costly privately financed construction project in history.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of seven oil companies investing in the project, is pressing for a start of work next spring and completion of the pipeline in mid-1977. Many problems remain to be solved but apparently, labor contracts will not add to immediate project difficulties.

To help get the project under way on schedule, a number of AFL-CIO building trades unions and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters recently agreed on what could be a sound basis for smooth and peaceful labor relations during the three-year pipeline project. Alyeska will build the pipeline using union labor, and the unions will give up the right to strike and will relax work rules and restrictions and give other guarantees intended to assure high productivity on the project.

In many ways, the accord reached in Washington in late November is reminiscent of the construction labor agreements during the massive defense buildup in World War II. It is the forerunner of what is expected to be the largest and most complicated construction labor contract ever.

Negotiations on the actual contract are just beginning. Wages are expected to be left for area bargaining in 1974, when contracts covering the various crafts in Alaska run out. However, there is no doubt whatever that Alyeska will pay some of the highest wages ever to lure workers to its project — ranging from about $155 for a 10-hour day, including overtime pay, for lowest-skilled crafts to as high as $200 a day for electricians.

No more than about 20 per cent of the required workers can be recruited in Alaska. Some 80 per cent of the thousands who will be needed will have to be brought in from the lower U.S.

The massive employment opportunities and the huge wages to be paid apparently made the unions amenable to management demands that would probably have been rejected in other circumstances. Because it faces problems enough without any added ones from labor uncertainties on the pipeline, Alyeska asked the unions for some basic guarantees:

Contracts will cover all work on the pipeline, including construction and supportive services.

The unions will give a firm, "no exceptions" guarantee that there will be no strikes during the construction work. Ordinarily, craft unions reject no-strike contracts, particularly for extended periods.

The crafts will set up special procedures for handling jurisdictional disputes over work assignments without any interruptions of work.

They will allow "more flexibility than ever granted before" in the use of prefabricated materials and preassembled equipment.

Other restrictive work rules and practices will be relaxed on the pipeline project to increase productivity.

Overtime premium pay will be limited to time-and-a-half. Ordinarily, union contracts require double-time or even triple-time for weekend work or hours beyond specified limits in a week. The straight-overtime agreement clears the way for seven-day work, if it is scheduled.

The unions will cooperate with Alyeska in dealing with any other problems that might arise, including hiring problems. Each union president will designate a personal representative to be contract administrator for his craft on the project.

To avoid any loopholes in labor agreements, and to make the international unions fully responsible for them, all pacts must be negotiated under the auspices of the general presidents of the participating unions and must be signed by all parties at national and local levels. It is not unusual for a local to balk at a national agreement, or for a parent body to disclaim responsibility for an infraction of a locally negotiated agreement. On the Alyeska project, everyone will be equally responsible.

What Daylight Savings Time Will Mean In Conserving Fuel

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Shifting to daylight saving time in the winter in the U. S. is expected to:

Save at least enough energy to provide heat and hot water for about 589,000 homes for a year — 100,000 barrels of crude oil a day. Highest estimate: Four and one-half times that much — or 450,000 barrels a day. Experts say that the saving does not mean that much in itself — the anticipated shortage is expected to be two million to three million barrels a day — but it is important in the nation's overall effort to conserve energy.

Cut down the number of robberies and muggings — more of these crimes take place in the dark hours of the afternoon than in the morning.

Decrease the number of traffic accidents. More motor vehicle accidents occur during evening than morning rush hours.

End the semiannual disruption of the nation's schedules in "springing forward" to daylight saving time in the spring and "falling back" to standard time in the fall.

Experts say that schools can reschedule hours so that children can go in daylight. Also, children could wear luminous arm bands or sashes visible to motorists.

A spokesman for the U. S. Department of Transportation (the agency which administers dayling saving time) says sunrise will be at 8 a.m. or 9 a.m., but normal outdoor activities are possible a short time before then.

Walter Kirchner of the Associated Milk Producers says that dairy farmers have diverse views about winter daylight saving time, but many feel that turning the clocks forward an hour would be "quite immaterial."

Dr. Douglas Baure, deputy assistant director of the Office of Energy Conservation in the U. S. Department of the Interior, says that winter daylight saving time is "a capstone to a much broader conservation effort which includes the whole range of saving energy — slowing cars down, lowering thermostats, limiting gas service — and if you are going to save 100,000 barrels of oil a day, you do it."

Another reason to adopt winter daylight saving time, points out Dr. Bauer, is the psychological effect.

"By taking this action, a large number of people will say, 'Hey, this is really a problem — maybe I'd better take a look at my own situation and see what I can do."

Experts hope winter daylight saving time will save 1 per cent to 3 per cent of the total electricity load.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

South Caught With A Problem: A Top-Notch Defensive Player

The best way to play a difficult hand is to furnish yourself beforehand with cooperative opponents. South's only mistake in today's hand is that he played it against Lee Hazen, the legal profession's gift to contract bridge.

Opening lead — ♠ Q

REASONABLE BID

South got to the very reasonable contract of three no-trump, and West made the very reasonable opening lead of the queen of spades.

Cooperative defense would have made it very easy for South. Declarer would let West win the first trick with the queen of spades. West would have to shift to a new suit, and South would romp home with 10 easy tricks.

As it happened, Hazen didn't cooperate. He just played the king of spades from the East hand at the first trick, covering his partner's queen, and South was as dead as a doornail.

A FORCE OUT

If South refused to win, East could continue spades, which was the whole point of playing the king. Hence South was sure to have one of his spade tricks forced out.

Now South could lead a diamond, giving up one trick to East. Back would come another spade to set up the rest of Hazen's suit. And then Hazen was sure to get in with his other high diamond to defeat the contract with the rest of the spades.

ANSWER: Pass.

With 12 points in high cards you would open the bidding if you had good distribution, length in both majors or even a fair supply of tens and nines. With none of these inducements, you might just as well pass.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Friday, Dec. 14, the 348th day of 1973 with 17 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

James (Jimmy) Doolittle, American hero flyer of World War II, was born Dec. 14, 1896.

On this day in history:

In 1799, George Washington, first president of the United States, died at his Mount Vernon home after asking his doctors to "let me go off quietly."

In 1819, Alabama was admitted to the Union as the 22nd state.

In 1911, Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen discovered the South Pole.

A thought for the day: American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said, "The grave is but a covered bridge leading from light to light, through a brief darkness."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Fund Compiles Quite A Record

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Some time ago you mentioned Johnston Mutual Fund as an above-average no-load growth fund. Do you still think this fund is a good investment? Would you also include their address in your column? — J.M.

A. A prospectus, annual and quarterly report on Johnston may be obtained by writing to the fund at 460 Park Ave., New York, NY 10022. With total assets in excess of $300 million, this growth/income fund is one of the largest of the no-loads. In the five years 1968-72, Johnston scored a 60 per cent increase in asset value compared with 24 per cent for funds as a whole and 34 per cent for the Dow Jones Industrial Average.

Through October the fund's performance was in line with that of other funds although the drop in asset value was sharper than that of the various market averages. This was attributable to the drubbing taken by the glamour/growth sector of the market. In addition to being a leader in uncovering emerging growth situations, the fund currently returns close to 2 per cent from income dividends.

Q. What are the prospects for the better-managed REITs? I own shares in six of the companies. I also hold shares of six other income stocks. My portfolio list is enclosed. — C.E.

A. Your portfolio, valued at $39,000, appears to be in relatively good shape considering your investment goal. Although half the issues you hold are real estate/mortgage investment trusts, only 24 per cent of the dollar value of your portfolio is in this one area. Some REITs, particularly those with a large portion of their portfolios in mortgages and loans which are not tied to the prime, have been caught in a profit squeeze with short-term borrowing costs exceeding returns on older loans. Others have experienced a high rate of defaults on interest and principal repayment. Usury laws in some states impose ceilings on permissible borrowing charges, which has also affected certain REITs. The only issue in your portfolio which has been seriously affected by these problems is Mortgage Trust of America (NYSE) which should be sold.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Security Industry In Muddle When Direction Needed Most

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Like a lot of blue chip stocks, the securities industry seems to have lost its sense of direction, its ability to determine which is the way to progress, which to reaction.

Colloquailly speaking, someone might say it's lost its understanding of which end is up, and at a very important time not only for its own industry, but for all endeavors that rely on capital.

Says Ray Garrett Jr., chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, the primary regulator of the industry: "At a time when its role in the formation of capital appears to be more critical than at any time one can recall, the securities industry is in a state of confusion and bickering, with morale low."

The consolidated ticker tape which was to report transactions for stocks wherever they were traded, a substitute for various tickers reporting trades for just one exchange, is still in limbo.

The original time table called for the tape to be operative now, but instead the various exchanges are only reaching agreement on ground rules. And after that they have to resolve differences with federal regulators.

After bitter infighting and negotiating with the SEC, it was finally decreed that the industry would drop fixed commission rates on all transactions by April 30, 1975. Now that determination is being questioned.

The SEC tries to convince brokers that the end to monopoly pricing should spur them to become more efficient and imaginative and, consequently, provide them with opportunities for profits. But, while they are convinced of the goodness of that system for others, the brokers aren't sure it's for them.

Currently, the New York Stock Exchange is arguing that proposed legislation threatens to destroy the individual stock exchanges because it would permit trading of listed stocks outside of exchange floors.

The alternative would be to kill the third market by making brokers join an exchange and conduct their trading through that exchange. But, the SEC says, that would mean less competition, return to monopoly conditions.

Speaking a few weeks ago to the Securities Industry Association, Garrett told them that it "cannot re-create the happy world of the past."

"There is only one way to go," he said, "and those who cannot adjust to the future, for whatever reason, will have to drop out. Those are harsh words; but, then, these are harsh times."

Early Rally Peters Out On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rallied at the market's opening today but then fell back and lost their earlier gains on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market's turnaround coincided with reports from Cairo that President Anwar Sadat has said Egypt will not negotiate directly with Israel at Middle East peace talks scheduled to open Tuesday in Geneva.

Steels were fractionally higher, Armco and U.S. Steel each adding ½.

New Plant To Be Constructed By Digital Telephone Systems

DTS (Digital Telephone Systems Inc. at 85 Mitchell Boulevard in Northgate Industrial Park plans to build a new plant north of Hamilton Industrial Park next summer with more than an acre of floor space.

The new building, off Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, will have 50,000 square feet of floor area, with 15,000 square feet devoted to engineering, administrative and corporate offices and 35,000 square feet to manufacturing. Bill Corey, public relations officer for the company, said the building, of tilt-up concrete, will be built between live oak trees, which will be saved to preserve the natural surroundings.

DTS, established in June of 1969, is now operating in three separate buildings at Northgate Industrial Park, with a total space of about 26,000 square feet. It makes advanced telephone equipment for all users including Pacific Telephone.

The company hopes to move into its new plant about June of next year.

M. DOUGLAS WOODRING of Kentfield was named assistant vice president and manager of Wells Fargo Bank's new Market and First Street office in San Francisco. Scheduled to open for business next Monday, it is Wells Fargo's 32nd San Francisco office and the 301st in California.

Woodring joined the bank in 1964 and was formerly assistant manager of the bank's Crown Zellerbach office, San Francisco. He also served in the Mill Valley and the San Rafael offices of Wells Fargo.

EUGENE A. PANKAU of San Anselmo, assistant vice president with Security Pacific Bank, has transferred to the bank's San Francisco-based Real Estate Finance Department in Northern California where he will head the interim and tract financing division.

Pankau joined Security Pacific as a management trainee in 1962. In 1970, he became assistant vice president with the Real Estate Finance Department in the Los Angeles head office, where he served until his new assignment in San Francisco.

EUROPEAN WINE Selections of Marin, specializing in direct warehouse sales of selected German and French wines, opened this week at 52 Bay Street in the canal area of San Rafael.

Owner is Benson I. Hattem of Tiburon, who has been with the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency for eight years. He became interested in wines about three years ago and decided to import carefully selected wines at reasonable prices.

"More Americans are learning to taste past the astringency of the tannin present in young, noble wines in order to discern the complexity and body that eventually will be enjoyed by laying down the wines for several years in a cool spot under the stairs," said Hattem. "Why pay several dollars a year per bottle for the aging that you can do yourself?"

European Wine Selections' temperature-controlled warehouse is on Bay Street, which connects to Francisco Boulevard East (San Rafael's auto row) at Annex Motors. It is open Wednesdays from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Thursdays from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The company's new wine catalogue is available free at the warehouse.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Proper Planning May Effect Substantial Saving In Taxes

Suppose you work for wages and your taxes are all paid by withholding. If you itemize your deductions, they would not amount to more than the standard deduction anyway, so you use the tax table or Form 1040A and come out about even.

Tax planning may effect a substantial tax savings. Here's how. Pay two years contributions and interest; two years taxes and medical expenses, etc., all in 1973. This could give you itemized deductions andyou would use the long form for 1973.

In 1974, don't pay anything deductible that can be put off to 1975. When you file your 1974 return, you use the tax table which gives you the standard deduction. Then, again in 1975, pay two years expenses in the one year and itemize.

How does thiw work? If you have enough medical expenses to overcome the 1 per cent floor on drugs and 3 per cent floor on medical expenses overall, pay all other medical expenses you may have for 1973, prepay the medical insurance for 1973 and 1974, have that pending dental work done, get new glasses, have that operation.

You probably paid half your real estate tax in April 1973. Now, pay all of your 1973-1974 tax in December 1973. This will give you three halves to deduct in 1973. Buy your 1974 car license in December. You probably paid 1973 in January already and this will give you two for 1973.

If you don't have the money to pay these bills in advance, consider borrowing and compare the interest expense on a loan with possible tax savings. It may be profitable to borrow money to pay your expenses a year in advance and effect the tax savings.

You may be able to prepay the interest on the loan and have that also as a deduction this year or you may be able to defer paying the loan until 1975 when you will again itemize deductions and pay the interest at that time, thus making a tax deductible item out of it.
